Unit description

This unit introduces you to a model of language useful for language teaching contexts in which learners are faced with a variety of language demands. You will explore the social and cultural underpinnings of language, and gain an introduction to key concepts such as: the relations between text and context, language in context, text structure, the multi-functionality of language, clause-level and text-level grammar, spoken and written English, phonology and graphology. There is a strong emphasis on applying these concepts to second and foreign language teaching and learning.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Analyse a range of spoken and written text types, within a range of genres, for their formal and functional linguistic features.

ULO2: Identify and differentiate between a range of everyday and English language learning spoken and written text types within a range of genres through analysis of their structure, their communicative purpose, and their formal and functional linguistic features.

ULO3: Apply knowledge of functional grammar for language teaching to appraise English language learners' spoken and written language performance and to provide formative feedback to learners.

ULO4: Discriminate between the features of spoken-like and written-like language through analysis of students' language performance.

ULO5: Apply knowledge of phonology, graphology, orthography and graphophonic awareness to analyses of English language learners' written language performance.

General Assessment Information

All assessment tasks must be submitted in order to be eligible to pass this unit.

Requesting an extension to assignment due date

On occasion, you may be in a situation when you aren't able to submit an assessment task on time. Extensions are only given in special circumstances, by completing a Special Consideration request. For more information on Special Consideration, see <https://students.mq.edu.au/study/my-study-program/special-consideration>

Late submission of assignments

If you haven't been approved for an extension and you submit your assessment task late, penalties are applied. You should consult your unit convenor if you are in this position. Late submissions will receive a 5% per day penalty. If you submit the assessment task 10 days or more beyond the due date, without an approved extension, you will be awarded a maximum of 50% of the overall assessment marks. Weekends and public holidays are included.

Use of Generative AI

Please refer to instructions from your lecturers on the use and acknowledgement of use of Generative AI in your submitted assignments.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Language diary	20%	No	End of Week 4
Analysing text-level features	35%	No	End of Week 9
Analysing a learner text	45%	Yes	End of Week 13

Language diary

Assessment Type ¹: Case study/analysis

Indicative Time on Task ²: 10 hours

Due: End of Week 4

Weighting: 20%

For this task, you will collate samples of language from a range of language events in your daily life and comment on each of these language events as entries in a language diary. This assessment task will introduce you to the kinds of text analyses you will do throughout the unit and in remaining assessment tasks.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse a range of spoken and written text types, within a range of genres, for their formal and functional linguistic features.
- Identify and differentiate between a range of everyday and English language learning spoken and written text types within a range of genres through analysis of their structure, their communicative purpose, and their formal and functional linguistic features.

Analysing text-level features

Assessment Type ¹: Qualitative analysis task

Indicative Time on Task ²: 35 hours

Due: End of Week 9

Weighting: 35%

For this task, you will analyse two texts for their overall social purpose, their rhetorical staging, the genre and text types, as well as the language used to realise Field and Tenor.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse a range of spoken and written text types, within a range of genres, for their formal and functional linguistic features.
- Identify and differentiate between a range of everyday and English language learning spoken and written text types within a range of genres through analysis of their structure, their communicative purpose, and their formal and functional linguistic features.
- Apply knowledge of functional grammar for language teaching to appraise English language learners' spoken and written language performance and to provide formative feedback to learners.

Analysing a learner text

Assessment Type ¹: Report

Indicative Time on Task ²: 40 hours

Due: End of Week 13

Weighting: 45%

This is a hurdle assessment task (see assessment policy for more information on hurdle assessment tasks)

This final task requires you to analyse in more detail the linguistic features of a text in relation to its social context and purpose, and then consider what areas of language would best be focused on for this learner. For this task you will analyse an English language learner's written text.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse a range of spoken and written text types, within a range of genres, for their formal and functional linguistic features.
- Identify and differentiate between a range of everyday and English language learning spoken and written text types within a range of genres through analysis of their structure, their communicative purpose, and their formal and functional linguistic features.
- Apply knowledge of functional grammar for language teaching to appraise English language learners' spoken and written language performance and to provide formative feedback to learners.
- Discriminate between the features of spoken-like and written-like language through analysis of students' language performance.
- Apply knowledge of phonology, graphology, orthography and graphophonic awareness to analyses of English language learners' written language performance.

- the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
- the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

² Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

Delivery and Resources

The unit is delivered face-to-face for internal students, with one weekly seminar. The approach to learning is "flipped" and "dialogic" (see this Teche article for details). Also see timetables.mq.edu.au for information on day and time of seminar. All resources are online apart from the required and recommended text books, which need to be bought. For online students, mini-lectures and associated learning activities are available for each week. Seminars are recorded and there are also online forum discussions to be carried out.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central \(https://policies.mq.edu.au\). Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

Inclusion and Diversity

Social inclusion at Macquarie University is about giving everyone who has the potential to benefit from higher education the opportunity to study at university, participate in campus life and flourish in their chosen field. The University has made significant moves to promote an equitable, diverse and exciting campus community for the benefit of staff and students. It is your responsibility to contribute towards the development of an inclusive culture and practice in the areas of learning and teaching, research, and service orientation and delivery. As a member of the Macquarie University community, you must not discriminate against or harass others based on their sex, gender, race, marital status, carers' responsibilities, disability, sexual orientation, age, political conviction or religious belief. All staff and students are expected to display appropriate behaviour that is conducive to a healthy learning environment for everyone.

Professionalism

In the Faculty of Medicine, Health and Human Sciences, professionalism is a key capability embedded in all our courses.

As part of developing professionalism, students are expected to attend all small group interactive sessions. Some learning activities are recorded (e.g., face-to-face seminars), however you are encouraged to avoid relying upon such material as they do not recreate the whole learning experience and technical issues can and do occur. As an adult learner, we respect your decision to choose how you engage with your learning, but we would remind you that the learning opportunities we create for you have been done so to enable your success, and that by not engaging you may impact your ability to successfully complete this unit. We equally expect that you show respect for the academic staff who have worked hard to develop meaningful activities and prioritise your learning by communicating with them in advance if you are unable to attend a small group interactive session.

Another dimension of professionalism is having respect for your peers. It is the right of every student to learn in an environment that is free of disruption and distraction. Please arrive to all learning activities on time, and if you are unavoidably detained, please join activity as quietly as possible to minimise disruption. Phones and other electronic devices that produce noise and other distractions must be turned off prior to entering class. Where your own device (e.g., laptop) is being used for class-related activities, you are asked to close down all other applications to avoid distraction to you and others. Please treat your fellow students with the utmost respect. If you are uncomfortable participating in any specific activity, please let the relevant academic know.
