Unit description
This unit provides both an introduction to the formal study of curriculum as well as an opportunity to undertake a more in-depth and specialised study of an area of curriculum interest. The nature of curriculum is explored from national and international perspectives. Curriculum design, implementation and change are considered from both theoretical and practical orientations with a focus on contemporary curriculum issues.

Important Academic Dates

Learning and Teaching Activities

Unit Overview

Curriculum is central to our understanding of educational institutions. It can be focused on the learning of a single student or group of students; on the formal curriculum of a school or other educational workplace; or it can be expansive in its national and international focus. We will touch on each of these aspects of curriculum during the course of the unit. The unit provides a broad introduction to the curriculum field. It is also designed for students seeking to specialize in an aspect of curriculum studies. This might apply to understanding current curriculum trends and/or resolving issues and working towards improvements in the workplace through critical reflection on practice within theoretical frameworks derived from the international literature.
