Unit description

This unit introduces students to the Italian Renaissance, a key historical period that marked the point of departure from the medieval to the modern world, and laid the foundations for modern Western values and society. The unit provides an overview of the wide variety of aspects touched by this period of rapid change and development, from the arts and architecture, to science and politics, society and government, and introduces students to some of the key cultural achievements and figures of that period.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Essay one

Due: Week 8 (class time)

Weighting: 30%

Choose one of the following topic and create a 2000 words essay. Make sure all work, whether quoted or rephrased, is appropriately acknowledged (in the notes) and all sources are listed in the bibliography.

Any common academic referencing standard can be used. Cover sheet must be included!

1. Many would describe the Italian Renaissance as the beginning of the "modern world". What evidence have you seen thus far, either for or against this view?

2. "Petrarch was an egocentric who saw himself as far superior to everybody else. He looked down, upon his contemporaries and on mankind in general." Comment.

3. Cavallini, Cimabue and Arnolfo di Cambio are three names often associated with Giotto's. Did they play any part in Giotto's success? What relationship exists, if any, among these four artists?

4. Boccaccio has been "labeled" in many ways: realist, humanist, feminist, philosopher, atheist, anti-clerical, master of prose, genius and many other. Which of these (or any other) do you think best fit Boccaccio and why?

5. Fortune, nature and reason are three terms often mentioned in relation to the Decameron. How do these terms apply specifically to the Decameron and what was Boccaccio's view?

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Have an understanding of the early Italian language development (through historical, geographical and cultural events)
- Have an understanding of (and be able to identify) painting techniques of this period and the thinking behind them
- Have an understanding of (and be able to identify) major architectural styles of this period and their development
- Be able to identify the major political and historical events that shaped cities like Florence, Rome, Milan, and Italy at large
- Be able to identify the major intellectual movements of the period

- Have an understanding of the relationship between power and patronage

Essay two

Due: 12 June

Weighting: 35%

Choose ONE of the following topic. Follow guidelines for essay one.

1. Discuss the Medici as rulers of Florence. What are the characteristics of their regime? What was the role of artistic and political patronage in the Medici "System"?
2. Machiavelli's Prince and Castiglione's Courtier are two different ways of responding to an identical historical situation. Comment.
3. The Prince is often seen as a guide to immoral behaviour. How would you interpret the work, especially in the broader context of what you have learned about the period in which it was written?
4. Castiglione's third book is an impassioned plea for female liberation. Argue for or against this thesis, using the text as your evidence.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Have an understanding of the early Italian language development (through historical, geographical and cultural events)
- Have an understanding of (and be able to identify) painting techniques of this period and the thinking behind them
- Have an understanding of (and be able to identify) major architectural styles of this period and their development
