Unit description

This unit accommodates the special skills and expertise of visitors to Macquarie Law School or accommodates a unit of study in developmental mode according to the teaching plans of the School. The unit is designed to capture particular expertise and interest of colleagues, both professional and academic. The particular subject area of the unit will change from year to year.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Demonstrate an understanding of the history and context of environmental dispute resolution (EDR).

Demonstrate an understanding of the theoretical basis of EDR

Critically analyse the role various mechanisms and state and non-state actors in EDR

Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.

Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.

Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.

Evaluate EDR problems with a solutions-based method to gain skills within a group-based learning setting

Engage in a practical problem-based EDR exercise

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Quiz	10%	Friday October 3, 2014
EDR Practice Exercise	30%	Saturday October 4, 2014
Research Essay	60%	Friday October 31,2014@ 2pm

Quiz

Due: Friday October 3, 2014

Weighting: 10%

There will be a short quiz consisting of multiple choice and short answer questions designed to test your understanding of the basic concepts of the unit and to provide early feedback.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the history and context of environmental dispute resolution (EDR).
- Demonstrate an understanding of the theoretical basis of EDR
- Critically analyse the role various mechanisms and state and non-state actors in EDR

EDR Practice Exercise

Due: Saturday October 4, 2014

Weighting: 30%

Students will be engaging in a moot exercise. Students will be given a role to play in a hypothetical environmental dispute which may be based on a real dispute. The exercise may involve taking instructions, drafting procedural documents including submissions, briefing counsel and appearing in court or an adjudicative procedure such as mediation or conciliation. Basic information will be given to students prior to the task but independent research is to be conducted. Students will work in a group and a detailed summary of the group's arguments will be prepared in the form of written submissions up to a word limit of 3,000 words including full legal citations. Written submissions with an additional three(3) copies must be handed in to the Convener prior to the moot commencing.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.
- Evaluate EDR problems with a solutions-based method to gain skills within a group-based learning setting
- Engage in a practical problem-based EDR exercise

Research Essay

Due: Friday October 31, 2014 @ 2pm

Weighting: 60%

Students are to complete a paper of 3,000 words by 2:00pm on Friday 31 October 2014 on the following topic:

"Future change will more overtly challenge and, I believe cause us to abandon what we have hitherto thought of as the essential elements of our system - orality, a single climactic trial and party control over the dispute resolution process - and to abandon also what we once thought was the basic tenet of our system, that the best and fairest way of resolving a dispute is by a contest between competing adversaries" (Mr Justice Geoffery Davies of the Queensland Court of Appeal in 2002)

Critically analyze this statement in relation to the future of environment dispute resolution techniques and issues. Please refer to case examples to illustrate your arguments.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the theoretical basis of EDR
- Critically analyse the role various mechanisms and state and non-state actors in EDR
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.

- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.
- Evaluate EDR problems with a solutions-based method to gain skills within a group-based learning setting

Required and recommended resources:

Prescribed

There is no prescribed textbook. All materials for this unit are on e-reserve or accessible via the internet. The Reading List, with details of the materials, is on ILearn.

Recommended

In addition to the set reading there are a range of textbooks available from the university library which you may find useful or if you wish to do some extra reading on a particular topic. The following list is not exhaustive and a search of the library catalogue may reveal other useful texts.

For students new to the study of law or in need of a refresher we recommend:

Michelle Sanson, David Worswick and Thalia Anthony, Connecting with Law (Oxford University Press 2nd Edition 2010)

Trischa Mann (ed), Australian Law Dictionary (Oxford University Press, 2009).

The following text is an excellent aid for academic writing and university study in general:

Jean Brick, Academic Culture: A Students Guide to Studying at University (NCELTR Publications 2009)

Other relevant texts include:

L S Bacow and M Wheeler, Environmental Dispute Resolution (Plenum Press, 1984).

Gerry Bates, Environmental Law in Australia, (LexisNexis Butterworth's, 8th ed, 2013)

U Beyerlin, et al (eds), Ensuring Compliance with Multilateral Environmental Agreements: A Dialogue between Practitioners and Academia (Martinus Nijhoff Publishers, 2006).

D E Fisher, Australian Environmental Law (Thomson Reuters,3rd edition,2014).

Michael Freeman, Alternative Dispute Resolution (New York University Press, 1995).

Rosemary Lyster, et al, Environmental and Planning Law in NSW (Federation Press,#rd edition 2012). Brian J Preston, Environmental Litigation (Law Book, 1989).

Roger Sidaway, Resolving Environmental Disputes: From Conflict to Consensus (Earthscan, 2005).

Tania Sourdin, Alternative Dispute Resolution (Thomson Reuters, 4th ed, 2012).

David Spencer and Samantha Hardy, Dispute Resolution in Australia: Cases, Commentary and Materials (Thomson Reuters, 2nd ed, 2009).

David Spencer, Essential Dispute Resolution (Cavendish Publishing, 2nd ed,2005)

Michael Legg(ed),The Future of Dispute Resolution, (Lexis Nexis Butterworths,2013)

(Please note that in consulting these texts they should be read carefully because subsequent developments may mean the text no longer reflects the current law.)

Graduate Capabilities

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.
- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.
- Evaluate EDR problems with a solutions-based method to gain skills within a group-based learning setting
- Engage in a practical problem-based EDR exercise

Assessment tasks

- EDR Practice Exercise
- Research Essay

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.
- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.

Assessment task

- Research Essay

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate an understanding of the history and context of environmental dispute resolution (EDR).
- Demonstrate an understanding of the theoretical basis of EDR
- Critically analyse the role various mechanisms and state and non-state actors in EDR
- Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.
- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.

Assessment task

- EDR Practice Exercise

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.
- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.

Assessment tasks

- Quiz
- Research Essay

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.
- Evaluate EDR problems with a solutions-based method to gain skills within a group-based learning setting
- Engage in a practical problem-based EDR exercise

Assessment tasks

- Quiz
- EDR Practice Exercise
- Research Essay

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.
- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.

Assessment task

- EDR Practice Exercise

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Engage in a practical problem-based EDR exercise

Assessment tasks

- EDR Practice Exercise
- Research Essay

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate an understanding of the history and context of environmental dispute resolution (EDR).
- Demonstrate an understanding of the theoretical basis of EDR
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically analyse the role various mechanisms and state and non-state actors in EDR
- Overview the court practice and procedure especially in the Land and Environment Court of NSW and apply this knowledge to a factual scenario.
- Identify the emerging trends and influences shaping EDR.
- Propose solutions and reform for the EDR process.
