Unit description

What kinds of social behaviour and meaning are called law? Who does this, how and why? Who wants to criticise law, how do they do that, and why is there such resistance to the idea of looking at law from the outside? This unit introduces major critical orientations, both fairly traditional and recent. The unit is intended for those with a specific interest in critical contemporary theory of law. Assessment is by essay and students are encouraged to pursue topics that particularly interest them.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.

Identify the mechanisms of how knowledge is constructed in discourse. Identify and describe the foundational assumptions made in any theoretical perspective.

Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.

Formulate, present and evaluate oral and written arguments appropriate to a range of audiences, drawing on relevant primary and secondary sources included in the readings for the unit.

Demonstrate sophisticated research, writing and referencing skills.

Understanding of the law in this area Thorough and accurate understanding of concepts and processes of law. Uses this knowledge to abstract principles and applies them in novel situations. Uses concepts to build new knowledge and understanding. Recognises the limitations of current theories. Thorough and accurate understanding of concepts and processes of law and can analyse and apply them in new situations. Knows basic concepts and can use them to solve problems and extend to new areas Knows a few concepts. Focussed introduction Uses the introduction to formulate a clear argument, identify parts of the argument, relevant issues and theories that will be addressed. Recognises the limitations of current thinking and the need for new ways of thinking. Can formulate an argument, and identify relevant issues and theories to be addressed. Basic introduction with all the formal elements but stops short of giving clear picture of the essay. Formal introduction with not clear articulation of the argument or structure.

Coherent Structure and Written Expression Meets all expectations and conventions. Distinctive personal style in the specific execution of the task. A unique but appropriate presentation of work. Fulfils standard conventions with all expected attributes present. Some translation and interpretation of the conventions to suit personal style and the specific execution of the task. Fulfils basic expectations regarding the formatting and presentation of work. E.g., titles name on work, introduction, conclusion. Spell checked & grammatically correct. Lacks a coherent structure of argument, organization of ideas into different sections, fails to use spell checker, some sentences fail to use correct grammatical rules. Depth of Analysis Uses principles to formulate a position or an argument about the literature. Can articulate the limited nature of their argument and can challenge to boundaries of disciplinary understanding. Recognises competing explanations and can identify the relative merits and limitations of an argument. Can describe and defend their own view or position. Mostly reports others' views without assessing them. Little interpretation or translation to a new problem or issue. Descriptive account of the available literature without any or very little analysis. Developed and Sustained Argument Uses available ideas and theories accurately. Abstracts and applies them in novel situations. Uses concepts to build new knowledge and understanding. Recognises the limitations of current thinking Shows a thorough and accurate understanding of concepts and processes. Has the capacity to analyse and apply them in new situations Knows basic concepts and rules. Requires more effort in synthesizing own arguments. Knows some of the ideas and rules. Does not extend own analysis or argument. Consistent Conclusion Makes a major contribution to the essay by pulling together all strands of the argument. Makes a judicious use of the available space to reinforce the argument of the essay. Makes a significant contribution to the structure of the essay. Can pull together various strands of the argument. Competent summary of the main arguments with very little effort at reinforcing the argument. Repetitious reiteration of points already discussed without any effort to reinforce the argument. Use of AGLC Style Guide for footnotes and bibliography References and citations, including the bibliography use accurate, consistent and appropriate styles. Good effort at adapting the approach to different disciplinary conventions when using non-law literature. References and citations, including the bibliography are accurate, consistent and appropriate. References and citations are basically accurate in style. Occasional lack of consistency; reasonable acknowledgment of the sources of information Absence or inaccurate use of referencing and citation conventions

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.
- Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.
- Formulate, present and evaluate oral and written arguments appropriate to a range of audiences, drawing on relevant primary and secondary sources included in the readings for the unit.

- Demonstrate sophisticated research, writing and referencing skills.

Take Home Exam

Due: 26th January, 2015, 5 pm

Weighting: 45%

A Take Home Exam will be issued on January 24, 2015. It will be posted on the iLearn page of the unit.

Word length: Maximum of 2500 words excluding footnotes and bibliography. Tutors will stop reading an assignment after the specified word limit.

Footnotes and Bibliography are required in AGLC style. Referencing that does not follow the AGLC style will be penalised.

Research: Students may use the readings prescribed for the unit. Independent research is not required. The main emphasis should be on demonstrating that you can apply the ideas and construct your own argument.

All assignments should be submitted through Turnitin link provided on the unit's iLearn page

Graduate Capabilities

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Assessment task

- Take Home Exam

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Demonstrate sophisticated research, writing and referencing skills.

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.
- Identify the mechanisms of how knowledge is constructed in discourse. Identify and describe the foundational assumptions made in any theoretical perspective.
- Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.
- Formulate, present and evaluate oral and written arguments appropriate to a range of audiences, drawing on relevant primary and secondary sources included in the readings for the unit.

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.
- Identify the mechanisms of how knowledge is constructed in discourse. Identify and describe the foundational assumptions made in any theoretical perspective.
- Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.
- Identify the mechanisms of how knowledge is constructed in discourse. Identify and describe the foundational assumptions made in any theoretical perspective.
- Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.

- Formulate, present and evaluate oral and written arguments appropriate to a range of audiences, drawing on relevant primary and secondary sources included in the readings for the unit.
- Demonstrate sophisticated research, writing and referencing skills.

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.
- Demonstrate sophisticated research, writing and referencing skills.

Assessment task

- Take Home Exam

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify the mechanisms of how knowledge is constructed in discourse. Identify and describe the foundational assumptions made in any theoretical perspective.

- Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify links between sociological, historical, philosophical and political perspectives in various legal theories.
- Identify the mechanisms of how knowledge is constructed in discourse. Identify and describe the foundational assumptions made in any theoretical perspective.
- Critically analyze the range of issues that arise from adopting a particular theoretical perspective. In particular, understand, evaluate and critique existing legal theories with the view to promoting an egalitarian society which is geared towards overcoming aspects of economic and social disadvantage experienced by some of the more vulnerable members of society.
