Unit description

European colonisation of the globe is one of the most important stories of world history. It defined and shaped coloniser and colonised and left legacies which are still being felt today. This unit charts key aspects of this history in a global comparative frame from the fifteenth century to the present day. Using a range of historical sources from archives to documentary, Indigenous biography and oral histories, as well as a growing body of rich web-based resources it will apply a wide geographical lens to explore issues from contact, resistance and adaptation to the contemporary politics of rights, reparation and reconciliation.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century.
2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation.
3. An appreciation of the historical backdrop to contemporary Indigenous/non-Indigenous relations, issues and debates.
4. Capacity to locate, retrieve, analyse and apply a range of historical information.
5. Capacity to communicate effectively in written and oral forms. 6. Capacity to engage effectively in group work with peers.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Primary Source Analysis	20%	Friday, 20th March by 5 pm
Group Presentation	20%	From weeks 2-13
Research Essay	40%	Friday, 15th May, by 5 pmm
Reading Blog	20%	Weeks 2 - 13

Primary Source Analysis

Due: Friday, 20th March by 5 pm

Weighting: 20%

You will be required to write a short (1500 word) paper on a primary source which will be provided by the unit convenor. Primary sources are key to historical investigation and inquiry. They are also important sources to incorporate into your major essays. This task is designed to get you thinking critically about them, to build your confidence in using them and provide you with historical literacy in their use. It is designed to stimulate historical inquiry. More information will be provided in class time about this exercise and there will be specific instructions and assistance via iLearn.

Things to consider will be:

- Who created it?
- Where and in what context was it created?
- What, if any, questions does it raise?
- What is its purpose?
- What is its provenance?
- What is the point of view of the author?
- Are there any biases?
- What is the intended audience?
- How will you use it?
- Questions for the future?

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century. 2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation. 3. An appreciation of the historical backdrop to contemporary Indigenous/non-Indigenous relations, issues and debates. 4. Capacity to locate, retrieve, analyse and apply a range of historical information. 5. Capacity to communicate effectively in written and oral forms. 6. Capacity to engage effectively in group work with peers.

Group Presentation

Due: From weeks 2-13

Weighting: 20%

Working in groups of 2 or more, you will be required to select one week to create a group presentation to the rest of the class. These can be in whatever format you decide but they will be required to do the following things:

1. Map out the terrain, using the readings, etc, and other supportive materials.
2. Identify a set of questions for the class (these should not be basic questions of fact but more conceptual questions, eg. Not - What year was the Myall Creek Massacre but What were the lessons, if any, of the Myall Creek massacre or what were the implications of the massacre).
3. Be informative and engaging (you should aim to provide stimulus and resources where possible, perhaps images, documents, objects, web-resources, youtube clips, documentary, film, etc)

The criteria for assessing this component will be:

- Organisation/preparation (How prepared were you? Did you present your material in an organised way?)
- Communication (How effectively have you communicated your ideas? Was it clear? Was it specific or too broad?)
- Presentation (What was the style of the presentation and did it work?)
- Responsiveness (How well did the class respond to the presentation? Did you illicit questions and engagement from your peers?)

Note: The 20% weighting will be divided between my assessment of you as per the criteria above (10%) and peer review (10%). With the latter you will be required to assess other members of your group according to the following criteria:

- Collaboration (How effectively did they collaborate with you? Was this a shared exercise? Was there regular meetings and communication?)
- Communication (Did you communicate effectively with each other?)

- Equity of contribution (Were tasks evenly distributed? Did you co-operate with each other?)
- Problem solving (Were you all flexible, open to compromise, suggestion, criticism?)

NOTE FOR EXTERNAL STUDENTS: Those undertaking this unit in external mode will be required to do the same online. I will set up a group space on iLearn where you can share information and communicate with other members of your group. If there are not enough of you to do group work in this way, you will each present individually but I will get you to provide a peer assessment of at least one other external student in the group at the end of the semester. This will be based on their overall contribution to the online forum across the semester and I will provide the specific criteria for this once I see what is possible.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century. 2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation. 3. An appreciation of the historical backdrop to contemporary Indigenous/non-Indigenous relations, issues and debates. 4. Capacity to locate, retrieve, analyse and apply a range of historical information. 5. Capacity to communicate effectively in written and oral forms. 6. Capacity to engage effectively in group work with peers.

Research Essay

Due: Friday, 15th May, by 5 pmm

Weighting: 40%

You will be required to write a long research essay. You will select one question from a list of 6-8 questions which will be provided on the iLearn site. Bibliographies for these questions will be attached but you will be required to locate primary sources to use in the essay.

Further information about this assessment task will be provided in class and on the iLearn homepage.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century. 2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation. 3. An appreciation of the historical backdrop to contemporary Indigenous/non-Indigenous relations, issues and debates. 4. Capacity to locate, retrieve, analyse and apply a range of historical information. 5. Capacity to communicate effectively in written and oral forms. 6. Capacity to engage effectively in group work with peers.

Reading Blog

Due: Weeks 2 - 13

Weighting: 20%

You will be required to contribute to a weekly 'reading blog'. This will consist of two parts:

1. Contribute your reflections or specific responses to questions asked;
2. Pose a question. (This can be either specific or more general but it has to be about that week's content).

Each week you will have two readings to digest around a specific theme which are in a Unit Reader. (YOU MUST PURCHASE THIS BEFORE THE FIRST WEEK OF CLASSES FROM THE COURSENOTES OUTLET ON CAMPUS). You are required to read these BEFORE coming to class and contribute to the online reading blog. When you open the blog there will be some questions (these will vary from week-to-week depending on the contents of the readings. Sometimes, I will ask something specific of you, other times I will require a more general response. You will also be required to pose a question of your peers.

This is designed as a reflective and interactive activity and will be cumulatively assessed (that is, you will do the blog each week and I will assess your contribution/participation across the semester at the end of the semester).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century. 2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation. 3. An appreciation of the historical backdrop to contemporary Indigenous/non-Indigenous relations, issues and debates. 4. Capacity to locate, retrieve, analyse and apply a range of historical information. 5. Capacity to communicate effectively in written and oral forms. 6. Capacity to engage effectively in group work with peers.

Delivery and Resources

This unit is offered in day and external mode (via iLearn).

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Assessment tasks

- Primary Source Analysis
- Group Presentation
- Research Essay

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

- Primary Source Analysis
- Research Essay
- Reading Blog

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- 1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century. 2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation. 3. An appreciation of the historical backdrop to contemporary Indigenous/non-Indigenous relations, issues and debates. 4. Capacity to locate, retrieve, analyse and apply a range of historical information. 5. Capacity to communicate effectively in written and oral forms. 6. Capacity to engage effectively in group work with peers.

Assessment tasks

- Research Essay
- Reading Blog

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Assessment tasks

- Primary Source Analysis
- Research Essay
- Reading Blog

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- 1. A broad understanding of indigenous-settler relations in comparative context from the fifteenth century. 2. An appreciation of Australia's indigenous-settler history in the context of the global pattern of colonisation. 3. ## Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.
