Unit description

This unit examines how law, ethics and policy affect population health in Australia and globally. Lectures and tutorial discussion will equip students with the knowledge and ability to engage meaningfully in debate and discourse surrounding the role of ethical and legal considerations and the policy process in health provision. Topics include debate around vaccination programs, infectious disease control, and the impact of corporate conduct on public health.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Define main terms in relation to key legal, ethical and policy aspects of public health
- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Summarise and analyse key developments in health policy with an emphasis on legal and ethical contexts
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Exemplify the key elements involved in planning, implementing and evaluating public health policies with due regard for ethical and legal aspects
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

General Assessment Information

Assessment/Standards

Macquarie University uses the following grades in coursework units of study:

HD	High Distinction	85-100
D	Distinction	75-84
CR	Credit	65-74
P	Pass	50-64
F	Fail	0-49

Grade descriptors and other information concerning grading are contained in the Macquarie University Grading Policy, which is available at: <http://www.mq.edu.au/policy/docs/grading/policy.html>

Further details for each assessment task will be available on iLearn including marking rubrics.

All final grades are determined by a grading committee and are not the sole responsibility of the Unit Convenor.

Students will be awarded one of these grades plus a Standardised Numerical Grade (SNG). The SNG is not necessarily a summation of the individual assessment components. The final grade and SNG that are awarded reflect the corresponding grade descriptor in the Grading Policy.

To pass this unit, students must complete all assessments and receive a total mark of at least 50%.

Extensions for Assessment Tasks

Applications for assessment task extensions must be submitted via www.ask.mq.edu.au. For further details please refer to the Disruption to Studies Policy available at http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/disruption\_studies/policy.html

Late Submission of Work

All assignments which are officially received after the due date, and where no extension has been granted by the unit convenor, will incur a deduction of 5% for the first day, and 5% for each subsequent day including the actual day on which the work is received. Weekends and public holidays are included. For example:

Final Mark	Raw Mark	Deduction	Days Late	Received	Due Date
60%	e.g. 75%	15%	3	Monday, 17 th	Friday, 14 th

Delivery and Resources

About this Unit

HLTH350 Legal, Ethical and Policy Directions in Health provides an introduction to ways in which legal, ethical and policy issues influence the evolution of public health, both in Australia and internationally. It is intended to equip students with knowledge, research and analytical skills to be informed and confident when working in the area of health. It is important to note that the unit is not designed to provide students with qualifications or specialist skills in law, but is designed to provide an understanding of jurisdictional boundaries and the need for relevant specialist consultation in complex matters.

The unit consists of two (2 x 1 hour) lectures and one (1 x 1 hour) tutorial per week.

Assessment is based on four elements described in detail in the guide to assessments on iLearn.

Technology

HLTH350 has an online learning space accessed via iLearn.mq.edu.au. You are required to have available appropriate technology e.g. a laptop or a desktop computer and a reliable internet connect to access course content, online assessment tasks and recorded lectures.

Textbooks and Readings

There is no set textbook for the unit. Required readings for lectures are identified on the HLTH350 iLearn guide to lectures, tutorials and readings. These readings are readily available via the library online catalogue; public access websites (e.g. PLoS Medicine, WHO). The complete list of readings can be found in the Student Guide to HLTH350 available on the HLTH350 iLearn page. You will get more out of the lectures if you familiarise yourself with the readings in advance. The readings expand upon the key points covered during lectures and will be part of the material covered in the assessment tasks, including the take home exam.

Attendance

All lectures and tutorials are scheduled in your individual timetable. In most cases lectures are recorded, however, attendance is expected at lectures as this is where the majority of learning occurs. Failure to attend may impact your final results. The structure and content of the lecture program, including related readings, are available in iLearn.

The timetable for classes can be found on the University web site at: <http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au/>

Anticipated Workload

This is a 3cp unit. It is generally expected that students will commit about 4 hours per week per credit point in their studies, or a total of approximately 150 hours. Thus, in addition to attending the weekly classes and the tutorial for a total of three hours, students are expected to complete appropriate reading, research and other activities equivalent to at least 8.5 hours per week. You should note that there are peak times of study during the semester when several more hours per week will be required in order to complete the required assignments. Students are advised to consider the due date for all their assessment tasks as these peak times may coincide with similar demands from other units of study.

N.B. The list of weekly topics was accurate at time of planning, but is subject to change.

Availability of guest speakers, extended discussion of a specific topic in class and emerging public health issues are among the reasons that schedules have been altered in previous years.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central. Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

Academic Honesty Policy http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/academic\_honesty/policy.html

Graduate Capabilities

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Define main terms in relation to key legal, ethical and policy aspects of public health
- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Summarise and analyse key developments in health policy with an emphasis on legal and ethical contexts
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Exemplify the key elements involved in planning, implementing and evaluating public health policies with due regard for ethical and legal aspects
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

Assessment tasks

- Ethical research
- Essay

- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

Assessment tasks

- Essay
- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Define main terms in relation to key legal, ethical and policy aspects of public health
- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Summarise and analyse key developments in health policy with an emphasis on legal and ethical contexts

- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Exemplify the key elements involved in planning, implementing and evaluating public health policies with due regard for ethical and legal aspects
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

Assessment tasks

- Ethical research
- Essay
- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Summarise and analyse key developments in health policy with an emphasis on legal and ethical contexts
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

Assessment tasks

- Essay
- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Exemplify the key elements involved in planning, implementing and evaluating public health policies with due regard for ethical and legal aspects

Assessment tasks

- Essay
- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Define main terms in relation to key legal, ethical and policy aspects of public health
- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Summarise and analyse key developments in health policy with an emphasis on legal and ethical contexts
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions

- Exemplify the key elements involved in planning, implementing and evaluating public health policies with due regard for ethical and legal aspects
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

Assessment tasks

- Ethical research
- Essay
- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Define main terms in relation to key legal, ethical and policy aspects of public health
- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Summarise and analyse key developments in health policy with an emphasis on legal and ethical contexts
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
- Deconstruct the evolving cross-sectional nature of public health law globally and the effect on public health and health promotion

Assessment tasks

- Ethical research
- Essay
- Group Presentation & Report
- Take home examination
- Participation and contribution

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Exemplify the impact and influence of legal, ethical and policy concerns on public health both nationally and internationally
- Critique the social, cultural, economic and political factors that can influence public health initiatives and the legal and ethical decisions underpinning these decisions
