Unit description

The Asia–Pacific is a highly differentiated and dynamic region undergoing rapid social, spatial and political transformation. Communities and governments within the Asia–Pacific region are continually dealing with dilemmas associated with development, economic, political and environmental change and contestation by various stakeholders over resources at various scales (international, national and local level). Aid organisations, national bodies and foreign affairs departments in the Asia–Pacific region require graduates with the appropriate knowledge and skills to work in these areas. This unit explores the processes and consequences of development in the Asia–Pacific region and aims to give students a perspective on working professionally within an international context by gaining communication, research, critical thinking, negotiation and decision-making skills, and an appreciation of cultural differences and approaches.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;

An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;

A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;

An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;

An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

General Assessment Information

Assignment submission

To successfully complete ENVG330 students must complete all assessment tasks. Failure to complete any single assessment task may result in failure of the unit. The final grade is based on the total mark accumulated from all four assessment tasks.

All students must keep a clean electronic copy of all assignments (preferably as a PDF) submitted for assessment.

For both internal and external students all assignments in ENVG330 must be submitted via Turnitin by 5pm on the due date as part of the submission process, and the Turnitin receipt number recorded on the coversheet of each assignment. You will be able to access the result of the Turnitin scan and be able to review your assignments in light of this result. Not everything that Turnitin picks up as comparable to other work is plagiarised. Use this process constructively to ensure you are referencing correctly and effectively. Instructions for submitting assignment to Turnitin can be found at: http://mq.edu.au/iLearn/student_info/assignments.htm

Your assignment must be submitted with a cover sheet. Please use the barcoded coversheets which can be downloaded from the web at: http://www.arts.mq.edu.au/current_students/undergraduate/coversheet

Students must complete all the details on the cover sheet and sign the declaration regarding academic honesty that is part of the cover sheet. You must attach a copy of the email approval or medical certificates to justify any late submission.

Turnitin

Both internal and external students must submit a copy of their assignments via Turnitin – accessed via the iLearn site. Macquarie University promotes student awareness of information management and information ethics. As well as training and the provision of general information, the University tackles the issue of academic honesty through use of an online text matching tool - Turnitin. This software is used in conjunction with a set of procedures to ensure its use is equitable. Your assessment task will automatically be compared to work of your classmates, previous students from Macquarie and other universities, with material available on the Internet, both freely available and subscription-based electronic journals. The results will be sent only to your lecturer, who will analyse these in reference to the University's standard Policy on Academic Honesty: http://www.mq.edu.au/policy/docs/academic_honesty/policy.html.

Extensions and penalties

Extensions will be granted only in unforeseen or exceptional circumstances and only by the unit convenor. Written evidence of illness or misadventure will normally be the only grounds on which extensions will be given. Essays submitted after the due date and without extension will be penalised 10% per day or part thereof. This penalty will be applied unless you are granted an extension by the unit convenor and provide appropriate supporting documentation. Please talk to (or email) the convenor about any circumstances that affect your assignments before the due date. Late essays will not be accepted once marked essays have been returned.

Returning Assessment Tasks

Marked assignments will be returned within approximately 3 weeks of submission through Grademark in Turnitin. Feedback will include a grade range (no numerical mark), extensive in-text comments, overall comments and a detailed rubric.

Critical Reflection Paper

Due: 21 August 2015

Weighting: 25%

Assessment task: The aim of this 1500 word paper is to critically engage with and reflect upon the position of major aid actors in development by linking theory to development practice. This paper should critically reflect on the development ethos of ONE donor development agency. You should undertake research about the organisation and its programs, and include in your paper a specific case study example from the organisation in the Asia Pacific region to illustrate your argument.

Detailed Explanation: Weeks 2 - 3 of ENVG330 will provide an overview of various theoretical frameworks that have influenced development theory and practice over time. This assignment provides an opportunity to apply this theory to the analysis of the development ethos of ONE donor development agency (see examples below). You are encouraged to include in your paper a specific case study example (e.g., project, program) from the organisation to illustrate your argument, and draw upon examples from the Asia-Pacific region.

In order to complete the assignment you should first select from the list of possible agencies given below, then research the organisation as deeply as possible, drawing on information available publicly through the organisation's web site, as well as scholarly articles, media coverage etc. The critical reflection paper should:

1. Analyse and explain the organisation's approach to development through discussion of particular theories of development referred to in the unit.
2. Consider how the organisation's public profile reflects their approach to development.
3. Discuss how the organisation's programs reflect their particular development approach (such as the kinds of programs they fund, the way the funding is distributed, the requirements they place on partner agencies, etc.).
4. Discuss how the organisation's development ethos shapes the ways in which they represent and portray the people and regions that they work with.

Some examples of donor agencies to choose from:

- Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade - Australian Aid (formerly AusAID)
- Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA)
- Oxfam Australia
- ActionAid Australia
- World Vision
- International Women's Development Agency (IWDA)
- Asian Development Bank (ADB)
- Government of China
- Fairtrade Australia New Zealand

Grading Criteria for Assessment 1

Grade

Criteria

F

Fail

<50%

Failed to complete all aspects of the assigned task. Fail papers will not succeed in demonstrating an understanding of the development ethos of the chosen organisation or they will focus on an inappropriate development organisation. Assignments will receive a fail due to plagiarism and very poor communication. If you fail this assignment, you should consult with the unit convenor.

P

Pass

50-64%

This is the standard required to pass this assignment. To achieve a pass you must write clearly and coherently, demonstrate a basic understanding of the development ethos of an organisation and make some reference to theory (as discussed in weeks 2-3). Pass grade papers must provide accurate referencing.

Credit

65-74%

Credit range assignments will fulfil all the requirements for a pass grade, but also provide a sophisticated analysis and explanation of the approach taken to development by the organisation. Credit grade papers will relate the organisation's approach to development to particular theories of development (link theory to practice). Credit grade papers will refer to specific examples (e.g., programs, people, places) and draw upon appropriate evidence and academic sources to build an argument.

75-84%

In addition to the above, assignments must demonstrate in-depth thought and critical reflection on the way that the organisation's approach to development relates to development theory. Distinction grade papers must demonstrate very strong communication skills, including clear and persuasive argumentation, and an ability to deal with complexity in engaging and effective ways.

HD

High Distinction

>85%

In addition to meeting the above criteria, assignments will demonstrate exceptional writing, deep and analytical understanding, original thinking and sophisticated argumentation.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Issues Brief

Due: 16 October 2015

Weighting: 25%

Assessment task: The aim of this 1500 word paper is to research a particular development challenge (and opportunity) in the context of one country in the Asia Pacific. The issues brief should be based on a review of literature covered in the unit plus independent research on the development challenge in the context of ONE country in the Asia Pacific region (excluding Australia). The issues brief should clearly identify, assess and synthesise information about the development challenge.

Detailed Explanation: The aim of this assessment is to allow you to investigate a particular development challenge and opportunity confronting the Asia Pacific region in more depth in the context of ONE country and to explore the uneven nature of development. The task requires you to communicate complex issues in a critical, analytical and succinct manner.

The issues brief should address the questions: What are the emerging challenges and opportunities associated with the issue in the context of your chosen country? How is the uneven nature of development reflected in the ways different social groups and/or parts of the country are affected by this issue?

The audience of the paper is a development actor (such as an NGO, aid agency, government department, development bank, community group or activist network) concerned with the chosen development challenge in a particular country. Your paper should thus identify what are the key issues of concern as well as opportunities, the uneven impacts associated with the issue, and draw connections with the theory and practice of development.

Such a paper could serve the purpose of briefing a program director or team leader on the issue as part of program planning, development of an advocacy program, as part of preparation for an upcoming country visit or meeting.

Grading Criteria for Assessment 2

Grade

Criteria

F

Fail

<50%

Failed to complete all aspects of the assigned task. Fail papers will not succeed in demonstrating an understanding of the development challenge or they focus on an inappropriate country. Fail papers will not include sufficient references. Assignments will receive a fail due to plagiarism and very poor communication. If you fail this assignment, you should consult with the unit convenor.

Pass

50-64%

This is the standard required to pass this assignment. To achieve a pass you must write clearly and coherently, demonstrate a basic understanding of the development challenge in the context of a particular country and make some reference to the uneven nature of development. Pass grade papers must provide accurate and sufficient referencing.

Credit

65-74%

Credit range assignments will fulfil all the requirements for a pass grade, but also provide a sophisticated analysis and explanation of the development challenge and make connections with the uneven nature of development in the chosen country. They will relate the challenge to particular theories of development (link practice to theory) referred to in the unit. Credit grade papers will draw upon appropriate evidence and academic sources to build an argument and present information clearly.

75-84%

In addition to the above, assignments must demonstrate in-depth thought and critical reflection on the development challenge and connections with the uneven nature of development. Distinction grade papers must demonstrate very strong communication skills, including clear and persuasive argumentation, an ability to deal with complexity in engaging and effective ways, and present information creatively.

HD

High Distinction

>85%

In addition to meeting the above criteria, assignments will demonstrate exceptional writing and creative presentation, deep and analytical understanding, and demonstrate original thinking and sophisticated argumentation.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;

- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Class participation

Due: Weeks 2-13

Weighting: 10%

Assessment task: Internal students: Attend all tutorials plus contribute to tutorial discussion (all tutorials). Give at least two 5 minute talks and lead class discussion (tutorials 3-11). External students: Contribute substantive comments online in response to tutorial discussion questions at least 3 times as well as regularly respond to online discussion.

Detailed explanation: For internally enrolled students, attendance at tutorials is compulsory. Minimum attendance is 90% (i.e., you can not miss more than one tutorial). If you do not meet minimum attendance requirements, you will receive a zero grade. Beginning with Tutorial 3 and running till Tutorial 11, your tutor will call for 2-3 volunteer presenters each week to contribute to the tutorial with a 5 minute talk on one of the essential readings and thereafter the presenters will be expected to lead class discussion and debate. Students must come to class prepared every week ready to discuss the essential readings, as you may be called upon to present any one of them to the class in any given week. Numbers permitting, each student will give a 5 minute talk at least twice over the semester.

Presenters will be expected to jointly lead class discussion on the tutorial topic, based on the issues and questions that have been raised across each of the student 5 min talks. The 5 minute talk by internal students or online posting by external students should:

- identify the main point(s) of the reading
- critically reflect upon issues/debates raised in the reading and relate to wider development issues
- pose at least one question to prompt further discussion and debate.

For external students, it is expected that they will make at least three brief postings (150-300 words) on the unit's iLearn website in response to the questions posted by the tutor and based on the readings, as well as respond to others' comments each week.

Grading Criteria for Class Participation

Internal students

External students

0%

Failed to attend more than 90% of classes

Failed to make brief postings online

5%

Attend more than 90% of classes, minimal participation in class discussion and completed only one 5 minute talk

Three brief posting online

8%

Attend more than 90% of classes, active participation in class discussion and completed both 5 minute talks

Three brief postings online and some participation in online discussion

10%

Attend more than 90% of classes, active participation in class discussion and excellent 5 minute talks

Three brief postings online and regular participation in online discussion

On successful completion you will be able to:

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Exam

Due: TBA

Weighting: 40%

Assessment task: 2 hour exam (plus 10 minutes reading time)

You are expected to present yourself for examination at the time and place designated in the University Examination Timetable. The timetable will be available in Draft form approximately eight weeks before the commencement of the examinations and in Final form approximately four weeks before the commencement of the examinations. http://students.mq.edu.au/student_admin/exams/

On successful completion you will be able to:

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Delivery and Resources

Lectures:

Internal Students: There will be one two-hour lecture session every week on Fridays from 9.00am–11.00am in E6A 131.

External Students: Lectures will be recorded using Echo-360 and can be accessed through iLearn.

Tutorials:

Internal students: One-hour long tutorials will be held every week on Fridays at 11:00–12:00 pm (W5C 334), 1:00-2:00 pm (W5A 105) and 2:00-3:00 pm (W5C 210). Internal students are required to register for one of these three timeslots by the beginning of semester.

iLearn:

It is very important that all students are familiar with the iLearn site for ENVG330 and check it on a regular basis. Please see the unit convenor immediately if you can foresee any problems.

Required and recommended resources:

There is no required text for ENVG330; however, the required weekly tutorial readings are available through multi-search via the Library's homepage (http://www.mq.edu.au/on_campus/library/) or via the link off the unit's iLearn site. There are several books that will be useful as general reference and background reading. The list below provides recommended general resources for the course:

- Connell, John and Waddell, Eric (Eds.) (2007) Environment, development and change in rural Asia-Pacific: between local and global, Routledge, London.
- Connors, Michael K., Davison, Remy and Dosch, Jorn. (2004) The new global politics of the Asia-Pacific, Routledge, New York and London
- Crump, Thomas. (2007) Asia-Pacific, Hambleton Continuum, London and New York
- McGregor, Andrew. (2008). Southeast Asian Development, London: Routledge.
- McMichael, Philip (2000) Development and social change: a global perspective, Pine Forge Press, Thousand Oaks, London, Singapore, New Delhi.
- Osbourne, M. (1992). Southeast Asia: An illustrated Introductory History, St Leonards:

Allen and Unwin.

- Peet, R (1999) Theories of development, New York and London, Guilford Press.
- Rahnema, M. and Bawtree, V. (2003) The post-development reader, Zed books, London.
- Sachs, W (1992) The development dictionary London & New Jersey; Zed Books Ltd
- Simon, D (2006) Fifty key thinkers on development London & New York: Routledge

Learning and Teaching Activities

Lectures

A series of weekly 2 hour lectures covering development theory and case studies of development theory and practice in context.

Tutorials

A series of weekly 1 hour tutorials focused on readings covering development theory and case studies of theory and practice in context as well as a series of interactive learning activities.

Online discussion

Through a series of weekly discussion questions online discussion mirroring the tutorial program will be available for all students, especially external students.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Assessment tasks

- Critical Reflection Paper
- Issues Brief
- Class participation

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;

Assessment tasks

- Class participation
- Exam

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;

Assessment tasks

- Issues Brief
- Class participation

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Assessment tasks

- Critical Reflection Paper
- Issues Brief
- Class participation

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Assessment tasks

- Critical Reflection Paper
- Issues Brief
- Class participation

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;

Assessment tasks

- Critical Reflection Paper
- Issues Brief
- Class participation
- Exam

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to research development issues and identify, assess, and synthesise complex information;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Assessment tasks

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;
- An ability to communicate clearly about development issues in both oral and written formats.

Assessment tasks

- Critical Reflection Paper

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An advanced understanding of development theory, context, practice and methods;
- An ability to critically reflect upon and relate development theory to empirical examples from the Asia Pacific region;
- A demonstrated understanding of contemporary development issues and development practice in the Asia Pacific region;

Changes from Previous Offering

As a result of a detailed review of the unit a number of changes were made to the unit in 2014. A number of new readings have been added as well as some new lecture topics. The first and second assessment task were modified to give more emphasis to research skills. The second assessment task was also modified to allow students to select a topic of their choice. The tutorial program will include a number of updated interactive and practice-oriented learning activities.
