Unit description
In this leading-edge unit we examine and use social media and explore how language and social practices are changing in the contemporary computer-driven world. Issues surrounding online identity will be explored as well as the challenges of linguistic change for education and business practices. Some issues that we discuss are how women and men communicate online, and how online language may vary according to age, ethnicity or context. The unit explores the collaborative processes involved in contemporary education and media. Some issues that we will consider are: Do we know who we are 'talking to' these days? What are the ethical issues involved in using new media: what can you say or do in a text message? Are young people losing the ability to talk face-to-face? You can apply your knowledge of other units in linguistics in this unit, but no previous knowledge of linguistics is necessary or expected. The unit will connect with other areas of your University study and your life experience. You will find that the unit is relevant to business and marketing, to media and communications, to education and psychology, as well as to linguistics.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at http://students.mq.edu.au/student_admin/enrolmentguide/academicdates/
Learning Outcomes

1. Demonstrate an insight into the historical patterns of linguistic innovation and change and how these patterns are evidenced in online communication.

2. Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.

3. Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.

4. Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.

5. Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

General Assessment Information

Assessment tasks, assignments and associated information about criteria and submission requirements will be provided throughout the semester and are posted on the LING248 iLearn site.

Assignment submission

All assignments will be submitted electronically via the LING248 iLearn page.

The Short Essay, and the CMC Report are to be submitted to Turnitin via the LING248 iLearn page.

A copy of your Tutorial Presentation (either in PPT or PDF format) is to be submitted via the Assignment link on the LING248 iLearn page. Your presentation should be submitted by 5pm on the Friday of the week when you present.

All assignments must be submitted before the cut-off times. Assignments submitted after these times are likely to incur late submission penalties.

Please keep a copy of your assignments in case of misadventure.

All Assignment marks will be available via the LING248 iLearn page on GradeBook.

Extensions

Extensions are granted only on grounds of serious and unavoidable disruption, and appropriate supporting documentation must be submitted. Assignments submitted after the deadline, regardless of the reason, will be marked and returned at a date determined by the unit convener.

Extensions cannot continue beyond the start of the following semester, and students should be aware that long extensions may impact graduation dates.
Requests for an extension can be made by submitting a notification of Disruption to Studies via AskMQ [http://ask.mq.edu.au/] Note that your notification should be submitted within five (5) working days of the disruption beginning.

For the university Disruption to Studies Policy, please see [http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/disruption_studies/policy.html]

To ensure you provide appropriate documentation, please see the Disruption to Studies Supporting Evidence Schedule [http://www.mq.edu.au/policy/docs/disruption_studies/schedule_evidence.html]

Please note that submitting a notification of Disruption to Studies does not guarantee an extension, and you should consider carefully before making a notification. As a university student, you are expected to plan your time so that all assessments can be submitted in a timely manner. A Notification of Disruption to Studies is for serious and unavoidable disruption, not for poor time management.

Requests for an extension made within one week of the due date, or after the due date will only be granted if warranted by the circumstances and supported by appropriate documentation (see the Disruption to Studies Supporting Evidence Schedule link above).

If required, in cases where notification of disruption to studies is applied for and granted an alternative assessment task will be provided.

Late submissions Penalty

Late submissions will attract a penalty of 5% per day for each day it is late after the due date. This includes Saturdays and Sundays. Assignments submitted after the return of marked materials will not be marked.

In the event of an exceptional circumstance such as a major illness or misadventure, students should submit a notification of Disruption to Studies via AskMQ [http://ask.mq.edu.au/] (please see the extensions policy above).

All information on assessment including the marking criteria will be available via iLearn.

Short Essay
Due: 5pm, 13 March
Weighting: 10%

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:
  • Demonstrate an insight into the historical patterns of linguistic innovation and change and how these patterns are evidenced in online communication.
  • Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.

Tutorial Presentation
Due: Weeks 7 to 12
Weighting: 20%

Tutorial Presentation: Finding and Evaluating Computer Mediated Communication

Students will find two different types of CMC based on the same topic. They will then present a critical evaluation of the linguistic content and visual features incorporated in the materials, and articulate how these communicate the shared topic. Students will use relevant research and professional literature to support their critique. The Presentations will be delivered during tutorials, and will be assessed by both peers and tutors.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:
  • Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
  • Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
  • Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
  • Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

CMC Report
Due: 5pm, 1 June
Weighting: 35%

Report: Modifying language for various online communication types
Students will submit a report outlining an online campaign promoting one of the five aspects of Academic Integrity: honesty, trust, fairness, respect, and responsibility. In their report, students will be required to create and present a set of four different types of computer mediated communication (tweet/text, email, blog, and image-macro meme), and justify their linguistic choices in each context. Justifications for these decisions will be based on the theory and research discussed in the unit. Length: 1750 words.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

• Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
• Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
• Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
• Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Final Exam

Due: Formal Exam Period
Weighting: 35%

Short answer exam based on all readings, lectures, and tutorial materials. The exam will be held during the session 1 formal examination period.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

• Demonstrate an insight into the historical patterns of linguistic innovation and change and how these patterns are evidenced in online communication.
• Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
• Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
• Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Delivery and Resources

1. There is one 2-hour lecture per week for this unit, for which you are required to read one article per week in advance. You are encouraged to participate during the lectures, and to engage with the issues raised. Recordings of lectures on Echo 360 will be available on iLearn.
2. Students attend one 1-hour tutorial per week. Students are expected to participate in tutorial discussions and to share their thoughts and experiences of online communication and practices. In order to participate effectively in tutorials, you will need to demonstrate that you have done the weekly set reading and followed the lectures. There are no tutorials in the first week of classes.

3. Please note that 80% tutorial attendance is required.

4. You will need to access the internet during the unit.

5. Finally, there is no textbook for this unit. However, course content will be supplemented with course readings, references to which will be provided on iLearn. Students are responsible for accessing and reading all assigned reading materials.

Graduate Capabilities

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Demonstrate an insight into the historical patterns of linguistic innovation and change and how these patterns are evidenced in online communication.
• Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
• Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
• Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.
Assessment tasks

• Short Essay
• Tutorial Presentation
• CMC Report

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
• Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
• Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
• Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Assessment tasks

• Short Essay
• Tutorial Presentation
• CMC Report

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:
Learning outcomes

• Demonstrate an insight into the historical patterns of linguistic innovation and change and how these patterns are evidenced in online communication.
• Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
• Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
• Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
• Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Assessment tasks

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate an insight into the historical patterns of linguistic innovation and change and how these patterns are evidenced in online communication.
- Show an understanding of, and a critical approach to, the sociolinguistic theories used to explain and investigate online communication.
- Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
- Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
- Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Assessment tasks

- Short Essay
- Tutorial Presentation
- CMC Report

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically analyse academic material and deliver written and oral presentations of their findings.
- Analyse and apply effective strategies relevant to online community engagement.
Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Communicate theories of and practice in online community engagement to appropriate audiences, in both academic writing and social network modes i.e. via Text, Tweet, Blog, and Meme.

Assessment tasks

- Tutorial Presentation

Changes from Previous Offering

1. The 2014 Tutorial Presentation has been adjusted to:
   ◦ remove the 500 word critique,
   ◦ change the presentation to an individual rather than group presentation
   ◦ introduce the concept of a 10% peer assessment/ 10% tutor assessment split.

2. The 2014 major essay will be replaced with a research report worth 35% and 1750 words in length.
