

LING290

Language, Globalisation and World Englishes

S2 Day 2015

Dept of Linguistics

Contents

General Information	2
Learning Outcomes	2
Assessment Tasks	3
Delivery and Resources	8
Unit Schedule	10
Policies and Procedures	11
Graduate Capabilities	14

Disclaimer

Macquarie University has taken all reasonable measures to ensure the information in this publication is accurate and up-to-date. However, the information may change or become out-dated as a result of change in University policies, procedures or rules. The University reserves the right to make changes to any information in this publication without notice. Users of this publication are advised to check the website version of this publication [or the relevant faculty or department] before acting on any information in this publication.

General Information

Unit convenor and teaching staff

Unit Convenor

Peter Roger

peter.roger@mq.edu.au

Contact via peter.roger@mq.edu.au

Flexible - please e-mail to arrange a time

Credit points

3

Prerequisites

12cp

Corequisites

Co-badged status

Unit description

This unit explores the ways in which globalising forces are shaping the way that language is used in today's world, and examines in detail the shifts in language dominance and patterns of use that continue to occur in the coming decades. Against this broad context, we examine critically the social, cultural, political and ethical dimensions of the spread of English as a global language, and the emergence of a range of Englishes. From their studies in this unit, students gain a deep understanding of the strategic adjustments necessary for effective intercultural communication in both professional and social domains. They also develop a balanced awareness of the risks of linguistic marginalisation and prejudice, as well as the wealth of opportunities for communicative interaction and engagement that accompany the processes of globalisation.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes

Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'

Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes

Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world

Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit

Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.

Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.

Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.

Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Assessment 1	15%	28 August 2015
Assessment 2	35%	9 October 2015
Assessment 3	10%	Aug - Nov 2015
Assessment 4	40%	Exam period

Assessment 1

Due: 28 August 2015

Weighting: 15%

For this assignment, you will be given two short news articles in your tutorial. Select one of these articles, and write a 500 word commentary, in which you:

(1) identify the main issues raised by the article and link them to concepts covered so far in LING290

(2) explain your own reaction to the issues raised by the article

You should refer briefly to one or more of the readings associated with the lectures so far. Be sure to use appropriate referencing techniques (see the guidelines later in this outline) and include a referenced list that is structured according to the guidelines available through the iLearn site for LING290. You do not need to do extra library research for this assignment, although you may do so if you wish.

Length: 500 words + references (*Please adhere to this word limit)

Grading criteria for Assignment 1

The assessment of this assignment will be based on:

- Identification and description of the linguistic issues (and your reaction to them) raised by the article that you choose
- Discussion of these issues from a linguistic standpoint, drawing on material covered in the unit so far
- The use of appropriate and accurate referencing formats (for in-text references and the reference list at the end)

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.

Assessment 2

Due: 9 October 2015

Weighting: 35%

This assignment involves writing short critical reviews of two articles on different areas covered in the first half of the unit, as described below. The goal of this assignment is that you demonstrate your understanding of the concepts and research findings relating to topics covered in the first half of LING 290.

Instructions

For each publication, you are asked to provide the full bibliographic details (following the style used in the guidelines provided in your tutorial) followed by a 800 word summary, commentary and critique. This will include a brief summary of the overall scope and focus of the article, and the author's principal conclusion(s), followed by your critical reflection on issues such as applications to the 'real' world, the theoretical approach or framework used in the article, the way in which the author's claims are (or are not) supported by the evidence presented. It is also important to refer (even briefly) to other related publications in your review.

Remember that it is well-presented critical commentary that will earn marks, so be sure that you do much more than merely summarise the articles that you select. You should choose your two articles from a list of references that the convenor will provide early in the semester.

Length: 1600 words \pm 10% (including everything in the body of the assignment text, but excluding the reference list at the end) *Please adhere strictly to this word limit

Grading criteria for Assignment 2

The assessment of this assignment will be based on your ability to:

- demonstrate an understanding of key concepts contained in the articles
- evaluate the arguments (e.g. for support, currency, clarity and relevance)
- make links/comparisons with other published work in the field

You will also be assessed on the degree to which you:

- write clearly and concisely in formal academic style
- clearly organise and structure your work
- demonstrate familiarity with a range of relevant sources from published literature in the field

- demonstrate an understanding of how argumentation and discussion presented in your paper are positioned in relation to the literature
- present in-text and bibliographic references accurately and consistently

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment 3

Due: Aug - Nov 2015

Weighting: 10%

The marks allocated for tutorial participation will be based on attendance at tutorials as well as participation in discussion and group activities as part of these tutorials. Tutorial attendance is compulsory, and students who do not attend 80% of tutorials without documented reasons for absence will not be able to pass the unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language,

globalisation and World Englishes

- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment 4

Due: Exam period

Weighting: 40%

This will be scheduled during the examination period, and will involve multiple choice, short answer questions, and questions requiring answers of 1-2 paragraphs in length. It will include questions relating to material covered throughout the unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes

- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.

Delivery and Resources

1. GENERAL INFORMATION

Students in this unit should read this unit outline carefully at the start of semester. It contains important information about the unit. If anything in it is unclear, please consult the unit convenor

1a. Teaching Staff in 2015

Convenor: Dr Peter Roger

Building C5A Room 424

Email : peter.roger@mq.edu.au

Telephone: +61 2 9850 9650

Lectures will be given by:

Dr Peter Roger

Dr Jill Murray

Mr Adam Smith

Ms Jean Cho

1b. General Enquiries

Ms Margaret Wood

Linguistics Undergraduate Office, Room 508, Level 5, Building C5A

Telephone: +61 2 9850 8740

2. ACADEMIC CONTENTS

2a. Unit Description

Welcome to LING 290!

This unit explores the ways in which globalising forces are shaping the way that language is used in today's world, and examines in detail the shifts in language dominance and patterns of use that continue to occur in the coming decades. Against this broad context, we examine critically the social, cultural, political and ethical dimensions of the spread of English as a global language, and the emergence of a range of Englishes. From your studies in this unit, you will gain a deep understanding of the strategic adjustments necessary for effective intercultural communication in both professional and social domains. You will also develop a balanced awareness of the risks of linguistic marginalisation and prejudice, as well as the wealth of opportunities for communicative interaction and engagement that accompany the processes of globalisation.

2b. Unit Rationale

Language is fundamental to human engagement at both local and global levels. The forces of globalisation have brought about large shifts in the languages that are used for communication on a global scale, and immigration to countries such as Australia has seen a great increase in the number of languages spoken within our own societies. One language, English, has taken on a role as a global lingua franca, and second language speakers of this language now outnumber those for whom it is a first language. Through your studies in this unit, we hope that you will acquire a respect for all languages and language varieties spoken around the world, as well as developing an awareness of the varieties of English that are used in the broad sphere of international communication. This unit thus seeks to inculcate an understanding of and sensitivity to these issues

3. DELIVERY AND RESOURCES

3a. Teaching and Learning Strategies

LING 290 involves a weekly lecture session (2 hours), as well as a weekly tutorial (1 hour) which will involve participation in discussions and small group activities. One of the aims of this unit is that students develop skills in searching for research articles relevant to their own interests, and the lecturer will provide guidance in this respect during the course of the semester. Students are strongly advised to attend lectures if they are able to do so. Tutorial attendance is a mandatory element of the unit. Students should ensure that they have attended the lecture or listened to the recording prior to the tutorial the following week.

3b. Technology and Required Resources

This unit makes use of the iLearn facility, and students will find it useful to have internet and computer access with the capacity to play sound files, in order to listen to recorded lectures.

3c. Required and Recommended Texts and Materials

Prescribed unit materials: There is no set textbook for this unit. Some lectures will be accompanied by 1-2 core readings. These readings will be provided by the unit convenor in hard copy, or made available electronically through e-reserve (www.mq.edu.au/library) or through a link on the iLearn site for the unit (ilearn.mq.edu.au)

3d. Online Resources

There is an iLearn site for this unit, where notices about the unit will be posted (www.learn.mq.edu.au), as well as a link to the weekly lecture recordings (Echo) and the lecture notes or PowerPoint slides. Please check this site regularly. There is a range of other resources available to Macquarie students, including electronic access to a variety of book chapters and journal articles:

Unit Schedule

WEEK	DATE	TOPIC
Week 1	30 July	The linguistic dimensions of globalisation (PR)
Week 2	6 August	English: From humble beginnings to global language (PR)
Week 3	13 August	English as a global language: Dark clouds and blue skies (PR)
Week 4	20 August	Globalisation and the world's biggest languages (PR)

Week 5	27 August	Endangered languages: Is globalisation to blame? (PR)
Week 6	3 September	Varieties of World English: Case Study I - Singapore (PR)
Week 7	10 September	Varieties of World English: Case Study II - South Korea (JC)
Week 8	29 September	World Englishes: Implications for English language teaching around the world (JM)
Week 9	8 October	Varieties of World English: Case Study III - Australia (AS)
Week 10	15 October	Language and globalisation: Implications for commerce and international diplomacy (PR)
Week 11	22 October	The global language of the future: What will it be? (PR)
Week 12	29 October	Linguistic landscapes in the modern world (PR)
Week 13	3 November	Pre-exam Summary: Language, Globalisation and World Englishes (PR)

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central. Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

Academic Honesty Policy http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/academic_honesty/policy.html

Assessment Policy <http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/assessment/policy.html>

Grading Policy <http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/grading/policy.html>

Grade Appeal Policy <http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/gradeappeal/policy.html>

Grievance Management Policy http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/grievance_management/policy.html

Disruption to Studies Policy http://www.mq.edu.au/policy/docs/disruption_studies/policy.html The Disruption to Studies Policy is effective from March 3 2014 and replaces the Special Consideration Policy.

In addition, a number of other policies can be found in the Learning and Teaching Category of Policy Central.

Student Code of Conduct

Macquarie University students have a responsibility to be familiar with the Student Code of Conduct: https://students.mq.edu.au/support/student_conduct/

Results

Results shown in iLearn, or released directly by your Unit Convenor, are not confirmed as they are subject to final approval by the University. Once approved, final results will be sent to your student email address and will be made available in eStudent. For more information visit ask.mq.edu.au.

Academic integrity means you submit only your own work, and make it easy for the reader to work out which parts of your assignment are original and which parts come from named sources.

Collusion needs to be avoided

We value students collaborating together as part of their learning experience. Often students form informal study groups, where they share understanding of unit content, and approaches to the assessments. However, it is important to realize that unless you are doing Group Work for an assignment, all of the work you submit for individual assessment should be completely your own independent work. Students are encouraged to form study groups, but this must not involve collusion to present group work as the work of the individual.

How is an informal or formal study group different from engaging in Group Work?

Working in study groups is different from engaging in assessed Group Work. Working in Groups involves a group of students combining their efforts in different ways to produce an evaluated piece of work.

Please see the Macquarie university information on Group Work available at http://www.google.com.au/url?sa=t&rct=j&q=&esrc=s&source=web&cd=5&ved=0CEIQFjAE&url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.students.mq.edu.au%2Fpublic%2Fdownload.jsp%3Fid%3D55221&ei=plG_U7jIDovHkAWisoDYAg&usg=AFQjCNHNASv9JxEF9vY-q4TcsSuCO2qVog&bvm=bv.70810081,d.dGI

What is collusion?

This is the unauthorised presentation of group work as your own. It may involve

- Working with someone to provide one piece of work
- Allowing others to share your assignment answer or copy your work
- Using the assignment answer or work of another student (past or present) with or without their permission. It is collusion even if only small parts of the assignment are used
- Allowing others to edit and write your work
- Editing or writing the work of another student
- Offering to do work for another student or seeking payment for preparing academic work for someone else

How can you avoid collusion?

- Do not share your findings or answers to an assignment
- Do not use another student's case studies, findings or ideas about an assignment
- Do not ask another student for a copy of their assignment
- Do not share your current or past assignments with another student (whether to "look at the structure" or any other reason).

Student Support

Macquarie University provides a range of support services for students. For details, visit <http://students.mq.edu.au/support/>

Learning Skills

Learning Skills (mq.edu.au/learningskills) provides academic writing resources and study strategies to improve your marks and take control of your study.

- Workshops
- StudyWise
- Academic Integrity Module for Students
- Ask a Learning Adviser

Student Services and Support

Students with a disability are encouraged to contact the Disability Service who can provide appropriate help with any issues that arise during their studies.

Student Enquiries

For all student enquiries, visit Student Connect at ask.mq.edu.au

IT Help

For help with University computer systems and technology, visit <http://informatics.mq.edu.au/help/>.

When using the University's IT, you must adhere to the Acceptable Use Policy. The policy applies to all who connect to the MQ network including students.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 1
- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3

- Assessment 4

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 1
- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3
- Assessment 4

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment task

- Assessment 2

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 1
- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3
- Assessment 4

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 1
- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3

- Assessment 4

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Describe a range of theories and approaches in the study of the inter-relationships between language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3
- Assessment 4

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit
- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3
- Assessment 4

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit

- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 1
- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3
- Assessment 4

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Describe a range of current issues and research trends in the area of language, globalisation and World Englishes
- Adopt a thoughtful, critical approach to the ideas and recommendations of writers in this field, both 'expert' and 'non-expert'
- Demonstrate an understanding of the major debates that currently surround the role and status of English in the contemporary world
- Suggest personally relevant applications the material covered in the unit

- Communication skills – This unit deals fundamentally with issues surrounding language and communication, and seeks to promote respect among participants for the communicative needs of others.
- Critical analysis skills – This unit requires students to examine critically a range of (sometimes conflicting) theoretical viewpoints, in light of empirical evidence. It thus provides significant opportunities to practice and develop crucial analysis skills.
- Problem-solving skills – Many of the assignment topics for this unit require the application of research and theory to real-life problems surrounding language and communication in a globalising world. This is an important step in formulating possible solutions to such problems.
- Thinking creatively to identify new ideas and approaches – The tutorial discussion topics for this unit will provide opportunities to propose new ideas or approaches to problems, and to do so in a creative way. Students are encouraged to comment on the ideas of others, and this provides an opportunity for collaborative creativity. The assignments completed as part of this unit will offer similar opportunities.

Assessment tasks

- Assessment 1
- Assessment 2
- Assessment 3
- Assessment 4