Unit description

A growing body of literature from criminology, psychology, evolutionary psychology, media studies, women's studies and men's studies is coming to focus on men in relation to crime. In particular, they are putting the spotlight on gender and its determinations. How are the social constructions of masculinity, within and across cultures, implicated in the conduct and character of crime? Alternatively (in socio-biology), how are the biological constructions of masculinity, within the body (hormones and genes) and across time (evolution), implicated in crime? The unit explores these central questions across a range of topics. Gender is complicated by other dimensions of difference: race and ethnicity, class, sexuality, generation, and more. Males are considered as both perpetrators and victims of crime. Further complication is found in problematising the perpetrator/victim opposition. Special attention is paid to Australian material, but the displacements of modernity and globalisation (the need to find work, escape conflict etc) are also brought into consideration. Focus is on the 'the naughty boy'; 'the juvenile delinquent'; 'the gang banger'; 'the prisoner'; 'the king of his castle'; the stranger of 'stranger danger'; 'the paedophile' and 'the gay basher'; 'the white collar criminal' and 'the people smuggler'; the 'terrorist', the 'war criminal', the 'veteran', and more.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Gender Studies.

Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Criminology.

Explain the complexity and significance of a number of key issues in the study of masculinities.

Explore the complexity and importance of cross-cultural dialogue in the study of masculinities.

Articulate a coherent, developed argument on the question of a gendered symbolic order of power.

Analyse critically a variety of texts (print, oral, film, multimedia) and data sources concerning masculinities within their historical, social and theoretical contexts.

Examine the relationship between forms of knowledge and forms of everyday living.

General Assessment Information

Detailed Assessment Guidelines explaining the requirements for each assignment are available on the GEND220 iLearn page in the Assessment Resources section. It is necessary to have read these guidelines in order to successfully complete each task.

All essays are to be submitted electronically through Turnitin on the GEN220 iLearn page.

Essay extensions of less than one week should be requested through the student's tutor. Longer extensions should be submitted through the convenor and Disruption to Studies. Approved extensions will not incur a late penalty.

The late submission of essays (without approved extensions) will be accepted but will incur a penalty of 3% on the first day and 1% per weekday thereafter.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Quizzes	30%	Weeks 2-12
Two summaries	20%	Week 7

Name	Weighting	Due
Essay	40%	Week 13
Participation	10%	throughout

Quizzes

Due: Weeks 2-12

Weighting: 30%

- Starting from week 2, students will be required to complete one online multiple choice quiz each week (10 quizzes in total).
- There will be three questions for each quiz based on the required readings and/or the lecture material.
- Quizzes will be opened on the day of the lecture and remain open for one week.
- Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Gender Studies.
- Explain the complexity and significance of a number of key issues in the study of masculinities.
- Explore the complexity and importance of cross-cultural dialogue in the study of masculinities.

Two summaries

Due: Week 7

Weighting: 20%

- This assessment exercise requires students to write a short precis (a summary in one's own words) of two readings chosen from a provided list (see iLearn Assessment Resources for reading list).
- The point of this exercise is for students to learn to reproduce a concise but accurate account of the principal argument of an academic text, rather than exploring their own opinions (this can be done during tutorials and within the research essay).
- The minimum number of words for each summary is 500 and the maximum without penalty is 750.
- Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Gender Studies.
- Explain the complexity and significance of a number of key issues in the study of masculinities.
- Explore the complexity and importance of cross-cultural dialogue in the study of masculinities.
- Articulate a coherent, developed argument on the question of a gendered symbolic order of power.

Essay

Due: Week 13

Weighting: 40%

- Compose a 2000 word essay on one of the questions listed on iLearn for this task.
- Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Gender Studies.
- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Criminology.

- Analyse critically a variety of texts (print, oral, film, multimedia) and data sources concerning masculinities within their historical, social and theoretical contexts.

Participation

Due: throughout

Weighting: 10%

- Regular attendance and contribution to group discussions within GEND220 tutorials is a requirement of this unit for internal students.
- Participation should provide evidence of the student having done the readings, listened to the lecture and thought about the topics in relation to both local and global events and contexts.
- 2 absences are permitted without penalty. Additional absences without supporting documentation will be penalised.
- Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate a coherent, developed argument on the question of a gendered symbolic order of power.
- Analyse critically a variety of texts (print, oral, film, multimedia) and data sources concerning masculinities within their historical, social and theoretical contexts.
- Examine the relationship between forms of knowledge and forms of everyday living.

Assessment tasks

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Criminology.
- Explain the complexity and significance of a number of key issues in the study of masculinities.
- Explore the complexity and importance of cross-cultural dialogue in the study of masculinities.

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Gender Studies.
- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Criminology.

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify the features, key figures and texts of the study of masculinities within Gender Studies.
- Explore the complexity and importance of cross-cultural dialogue in the study of masculinities.
- Articulate a coherent, developed argument on the question of a gendered symbolic order of power.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate a coherent, developed argument on the question of a gendered symbolic order of power.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes
