Unit description This unit introduces students to basic techniques for counselling couples. Key themes are identified including love, intimacy, power and sex as common underlying dynamics to couples' presenting problems. The basic processes of engaging and holding two people as they present their divergent views of the problem, as well as exploring the differing perceptions and contexts surrounding their presenting problems are emphasised. A framework of exploring couple problems at the levels of behaviour, meaning, belief and emotion is presented. Basic in-session interventions and therapeutic tasks are elaborated. Finally, a range of special couple issues are examined such as separation and divorce, domestic violence, sexual problems and same-sex relationships.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. Demonstrate skills in presenting problem exploration to develop conceptualisations that are linked to an integrative meta-framework.
2. Articulate a conceptualization of a relationship presenting problem together with appropriate intervention strategies.
3. Articulate general strategies for dealing with special problems such as domestic violence, affairs, and separation and divorce in couple therapy situations.

4. Reflect upon personal beliefs and attitudes regarding relationships and how those beliefs and attitudes may influence the therapy done with couples.

General Assessment Information

ONLINE SUBMISSION OF ASSIGNMENTS

You are required to submit your conceptualisation and reflection on beliefs about relationships (Assignments 2 & 3) to the Turnitin anti-plagiarism detection software via the iLearn page for the unit. Your assignment will be automatically compared to work of your classmates, previous students from Macquarie and other universities, with material available on the Internet, both freely available and subscription-based electronic journals and book chapters

PENALTIES FOR ASSIGNMENTS

Penalties will be levied for:

1. late submission of assignments and
2. exceeding the word limit by > 10%:
 - o For late assignments, 5% will be deducted for every day late. For example, if you submit your written assignments late by 2 days, then 10% will be deducted from your final grade.
 - o 5% will also be deducted for work that is more than 10% over the word limit. For instance, the Self Assessment Schedule word limit is set at 4000 words (hence students are expected to not have an assignment longer than 4400 words).
 - o If you choose to include Tables – these need to be included as part of the word limit.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Reflection on Reading	40%	TBA
Conceptualisation Essay	60%	30/05/16

Reflection on Reading

Due: TBA

Weighting: 40%

For your reading for this unit, you may choose two readings from the selection for each of the workshops. Pick any two that interest you and reflect on them. This way you may be exposed to a range of readings from the comments of other classmates. These readings will spark reflections about your own relationships and you are encouraged to reflect at the level that you feel comfortable on your own beliefs and experiences as they relate to material you have read and areas that are discussed in the workshops. Thus, your online discussion should not only relate to the readings that you have selected.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 3. Articulate general strategies for dealing with special problems such as domestic violence, affairs, and separation and divorce in couple therapy situations.
- 4. Reflect upon personal beliefs and attitudes regarding relationships and how those beliefs and attitudes may influence the therapy done with couples.

Conceptualisation Essay

Due: 30/05/16

Weighting: 60%

This assignment will assist you to think about and articulate a beginning understanding of how you may conceptualise presenting problems from a couple perspective. Frequently one person will present in therapy with issues that can be more fully understood in considering their personal relationships with family and partner. Choose a case that you have worked with, are currently working with in a therapeutic manner or some relationship you know well enough to comment on dynamics. The case may be an individual or couple and there may be some gaps that you will need to fill in from your imagination. This will be acceptable for this exercise. You should not simply retell your case from the way you worked with it, but use the dynamics the think freshly about the case using ideas discussed in the unit. The essay should focus on how you can begin to understand the presenting problems from the perspective of the meta-framework used in the unit. The essay should focus on conceptual tools and practice strategies and techniques that you have either already found helpful or that you think you might be able to utilise with sufficient practice in the future. It should draw on seminars, workshops, and your reading.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. Demonstrate skills in presenting problem exploration to develop conceptualisations that are linked to an integrative meta-framework.
- 2. Articulate a conceptualization of a relationship presenting problem together with appropriate intervention strategies.
- 3. Articulate general strategies for dealing with special problems such as domestic violence, affairs, and separation and divorce in couple therapy situations.

Delivery and Resources

Readings for online discussion will be provided through the reserve library accessed through the online unit guide
