Unit description

We often think politically without being aware of it. When we say that some people in our society have not been treated justly or when we condemn violence and injustice in other societies, we are making political judgments and using political concepts. How does our sense of fairness or our compassion in cases such as these relate to our political judgments? This unit explores key political concepts such as justice, equality, democracy and the rule of the law as well as the role of morality in political judgment. We also consider the concept of ideology and examine particular ideologies including: liberalism, nationalism, conservatism and fundamentalism. Among the selected readings for this unit are the classics of political thought such as Plato, Aristotle, Machiavelli and Hobbes.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form

Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts

Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory

The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Student run class.	10%	Continuous
Major Essay.	40%	Friday 14 Oct
Exam	40%	examination period
Participation	10%	ongoing

Student run class.

Due: Continuous

Weighting: 10%

Student run class. For internal students only.

Each student will, along with some classmates, run a tutorial. The people running the class should plan the session together, sharing responsibilities and coordinating their activities. This is not a class presentation. Your assignment is to stimulate class discussion, and to manage that discussion, not to summarise the readings.

Further instructions to follow.

Imaginary dialogue. For external students only (weighting 15%). Due Friday 9 September.

Instructions: Construct a three way dialogue (modelled on Plato's writings) between Plato, Gordon Graham, and a modern voter. The dialogue should focus on the key issues that are raised in Graham's essay 'Reason and Politics', (from The Case Against the Democratic State) in week 3 of the unit. The dialogues of Plato and Graham should reflect their central ideas and you are to imagine how they might respond to each other. The 'modern voter' can play a role akin to one of the minor characters in Plato's dialogues (such as Glaucon or Adeimantus in the Republic) who could be convinced either way.

The mark you receive will be based on the following criteria: demonstrated understanding of the central ideas; critical analysis; creativity; style and presentation.

Submit the assessment through turnitin.

Length: 900-1100 words.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Major Essay.

Due: Friday 14 Oct

Weighting: 40%

Essay 2000-2500 words for internal students and 1500-2000 words for external students.

Weighting for external students, 35%.

Questions and instructions to be distributed in week 5 of unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Exam

Due: examination period

Weighting: 40%

2 hour examination.

The exam is compulsory for all students. It will take place within the official exam period between 14 November and 2 December. The final date will be set by the University approximately 4 weeks before the exam period. Do not make travel arrangements for this time until you know the date of the final exam. If you cannot guarantee that you will be available to complete the exam then do not enroll in the unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena

in oral and written form

- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Participation

Due: ongoing

Weighting: 10%

Tutorial participation for internal students. Online participation for external students

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory

Delivery and Resources

Delivery:

Day and External

This unit will use:

ilearn and echo recordings for lectures. You will need access to a computer and internet.

Times and Locations for Lectures and Tutorials:

Lectures: Monday 1-2pm and 4-5pm.

Y3A T1

Tutorials: consult the MQ timetables website: <http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au>

There are no tutorials in week 1.

Required and Recommended resources:

Most of the unit readings can be found on e-reserve in the library. Type the unit code or name into the multi-search facility. Many of the classic texts that we read in this unit can be accessed electronically. These texts are listed in the unit schedule on the ilearn site. However you might like to purchase hard copies of some of these texts and they are available relatively cheaply in the Penguin series. These texts include: Plato, The Republic, Aristotle, The Politics, Machiavelli, The Prince, Thomas More, Utopia, Thomas Hobbes, Leviathan, J.S. Mill, On Liberty.

A recommended textbook for this unit is Bruce Haddock, A History of Political Thought (Polity, 2008). There are copies of this available in the reserve section of the library and the co-op has some copies for purchase.

Feedback:

Feedback and unit evaluation

The Faculty of Arts values student feedback and seeks to continually improve its teaching. At present, the Faculty collects student feedback in two ways:

1. Anonymous evaluation surveys which are disseminated at the completion of each unit.
2. Student feedback meetings which are held twice a year in the Faculty of Arts. These meetings are advertised on campus and all students are encouraged to attend.

Based on feedback obtained from past students, this unit has been adapted in the following ways:

Some alteration of unit content and assessment tasks.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment tasks

- Student run class.
- Major Essay.
- Exam
- Participation

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory

Assessment task

- Participation

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment tasks

- Student run class.
- Major Essay.
- Exam

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment tasks

- Major Essay.
- Exam
- Participation

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory
- The ability to integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment task

- Major Essay.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The ability to analyse and express your judgement about a range of political phenomena in oral and written form
- Read and critically interpret some classic and contemporary political texts
- Think more critically and systematically about politics, the relationship between political ideas and political action, and differentiate between types of political theory

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.
