Unit description

This unit focuses on the analysis of spoken, written and multimodal discourses in a range of real-life settings and domains. It locates such discourses in their historical, institutional, and local contexts and presents a range of methodologies associated with key questions raised by scholars and researchers in discourse analysis research and practice, focusing on descriptive, interpretive and explanatory analysis.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. An understanding of discourse as a rich, complex phenomenon with qualities that can be understood through a wide range of different theoretical approaches.
2. An understanding of how discourse functions in everyday and professional encounters, emphasising the links to be made between social and institutional practices, and discursive practices.

3. A basic theoretical and practical foundation for carrying out your own discourse-related research.
4. An understanding of how to combine different research methodologies in a multi-perspectival approach.
5. An understanding of how to work cooperatively with professionals in different contexts who wish to explore the discourses of their communities.
6. In addition to these discipline-based learning outcomes, academic programs at Macquarie seek to develop students' generic skills, that is, skills that are generally applicable to study and workplace requirements in a range of areas.

Assessment Tasks

Critical Review Essay	50%	13 June 2016
Class/Group Participation	5%	Ongoing

Discourse Analysis Task

Due: 22 April 2016

Weighting: 45%

This assignment is a task which is related directly to the course notes and requires data analysis drawing on appropriate methodologies. You will be given some fresh data plus some specific analytical questions to answer. You are expected to give precise answers to the questions, in the form of a report.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. An understanding of discourse as a rich, complex phenomenon with qualities that can be understood through a wide range of different theoretical approaches.
- 2. An understanding of how discourse functions in everyday and professional encounters, emphasising the links to be made between social and institutional practices, and discursive practices.
- 3. A basic theoretical and practical foundation for carrying out your own discourse-related research.
- 4. An understanding of how to combine different research methodologies in a multi-perspectival approach.
- 5. An understanding of how to work cooperatively with professionals in different contexts who wish to explore the discourses of their communities.

- 6. In addition to these discipline-based learning outcomes, academic programs at Macquarie seek to develop students' generic skills, that is, skills that are generally applicable to study and workplace requirements in a range of areas.

Critical Review Essay

Due: 13 June 2016

Weighting: 50%

You will write an extended critical review essay integrating three (3) academic articles or book chapters related to a particular Theme of your choice drawn from the Unit. All three readings must be from the Unit Readings for APPL910.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. An understanding of discourse as a rich, complex phenomenon with qualities that can be understood through a wide range of different theoretical approaches.
- 2. An understanding of how discourse functions in everyday and professional encounters, emphasising the links to be made between social and institutional practices, and discursive practices.
- 4. An understanding of how to combine different research methodologies in a multi-perspectival approach.
- 5. An understanding of how to work cooperatively with professionals in different contexts who wish to explore the discourses of their communities.
- 6. In addition to these discipline-based learning outcomes, academic programs at Macquarie seek to develop students' generic skills, that is, skills that are generally applicable to study and workplace requirements in a range of areas.

Class/Group Participation

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 5%

Your participation in classroom-based discussions (internal students) or online group discussions (external students) will be noted, but the content of your contributions will not be evaluated.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. An understanding of discourse as a rich, complex phenomenon with qualities that can be understood through a wide range of different theoretical approaches.

Delivery and Resources

The learning and teaching strategies used in this Unit are face-to-face sessions (for on-campus students) and recordings of these sessions; interaction with materials on iLearn; discussion; and self-study of course readings.

The course notes (posted on iLearn) form the backbone of this Unit, and should be read in advance of each lecture session.

It is also expected that students in this Unit will read most of the set readings, participate in group discussions, and go beyond the recommended readings to follow areas of specific interest to them in the academic literature.

The course lecturer will be contactable through email to answer any queries that might arise.

Unit Schedule

The Unit Schedule is available through iLearn.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central. Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

Changes from Previous Offering

Learning outcomes have been modified for clarity, and a new LO (concerning "understanding discourse") has been added.

Delivery and Resources have also been updated and modified for clarity.

Policies and Procedures have been updated since the Unit was last taught (in 2013).

The assessment tasks have been reduced in number from three to two, and class participation is now noted, but not evaluated.
