Unit description This unit is a study of the New Testament within the political, social and cultural context of the Jewish and Graeco-Roman world of the first century CE. The unit is based on New Testament documents and other contemporary evidence, and investigates: the historical contours of the period and career of Jesus and the early Christian communities; and the literary genres and ideas of the New Testament in their Jewish and Graeco-Roman context.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early Christian thinking;
- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;
- conduct independent research on a chosen topic;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

General Assessment Information

With the exception of the Examination, all assessable work for the Unit is to be submitted via Turnitin, using the links provided on the Unit iLearn page.

Late assignments will normally be penalised at the rate of 2% per day, unless prior arrangements have been made with your Tutor. If your assignment is going to be late, please contact your Tutor in advance! In case of major disruption to your study schedule, see the Disruption to Study Policy in the section of this Unit Guide on Policies and Procedures.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Tutorial Paper	20%	Varies; before end of Week 8
Major Essay	35%	Monday May 9th
Participation	15%	End of Semester
Examination	30%	Examination Period

Tutorial Paper

Due: Varies; before end of Week 8

Weighting: 20%

The student must write a c. 1,000 word short essay based on one of the weekly tutorial discussion topics of their choice from Weeks 2-7. It must be handed in within a week of the relevant tutorial. Tutorial Short Papers are to be handed in via Turnitin, using the link on the relevant weekly section of the Unit iLearn page.

For Weeks 2-7 (and 9-12) you will find a number of questions on the document(s) set, and an overall interpretative question. (There is no Tutorial topic for Weeks 8 and 13.) All of these questions ought to be prepared for the weekly Tutorial discussion. When you decide to hand in the short paper based on a particular week's topic from Weeks 2-7, you should write on the overall interpretative question, using the individual questions as a guide as to what ought to be discussed.

The Short Papers are exercises in careful and critical reading of documentary sources. Their aim is to develop skills of analysis and deduction, and the ability to write a lucid short answer to a precise set of questions. They are not primarily exercises in the collection of the opinions of others, even if those others are great scholars. The assignments will be marked primarily on your understanding of the sources themselves.

The short paper will be graded on attention to the details of the ancient sources, proper citation of those sources, clarity of presentation, good expression and grammatical accuracy.

Please note that essay form is required for all work submitted. Point form or extended notes are not good enough. Footnotes should be given, and should conform to the rules laid out in “Essay Presentation & Conventions: Style Guide”, which is available from the Ancient History Office on the Fifth Floor of W6A (Room 540), and on the Unit iLearn Page.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early Christian thinking;
- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- conduct independent research on a chosen topic;

Major Essay

Due: Monday May 9th

Weighting: 35%

Major essay topics are to be chosen from the list of topics, with introductory bibliographies, which will be made available before the fourth week of Semester. Students may also negotiate for an alternative topic with Dr. Forbes. All Major Essays are to be submitted via Turnitin on or before Monday May 9th. The submission link will be found on the Unit iLearn page.

Wider reading is required for the essays. Referencing should follow the guidelines in the “Essay Presentation & Conventions: Style Guide”, which is (again) available from the Ancient History Office on the Fifth Floor of W6A (Room 540), and on the Unit iLearn page. Footnotes and a full alphabetical Bibliography are required.

The essay will be graded on attention to the details of the ancient sources, understanding of the wider scholarly literature on the chosen topic, proper citation of both the ancient evidence and modern scholarship, clarity of presentation, good expression and grammatical accuracy.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early Christian thinking;
- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;
- conduct independent research on a chosen topic;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Participation

Due: End of Semester

Weighting: 15%

Internal students will be assessed on their contribution to Tutorials throughout the Unit. External students will be assessed on their participation in the weekly Online Forum (iLearn) and their attendance at and contribution to the On Campus Session. Participation will be graded based on the relevance and clarity of students' contributions to the tutorial discussion, and the evidence of preparatory reading for and understanding of the tutorial questions.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early Christian thinking;
- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;

Examination

Due: Examination Period

Weighting: 30%

The examination will run for two hours. Students will be asked to answer four questions: two precirculated document-based questions and two unseen questions from a range of approximately six.

The examination answers will be graded on the student's understanding of the major areas of the Unit, attention to the details of the ancient sources, clarity of presentation, good expression and grammatical accuracy. In the case of the two pre-circulated document questions they will also be graded in terms of evidence of independent research into the selected documents.

The University Examination period in the First Semester of 2016 is from Tuesday June 14th to Friday July 1st. You are expected to present yourself for examination at the time and place designated in the University Examination Timetable. The timetable will be available in Draft form approximately eight weeks before the commencement of the examinations and in Final form approximately four weeks before the commencement of the examinations at:

<http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au/exam>. The only exception to sitting an examination at the designated time is documented illness or unavoidable disruption. In these circumstances you may wish to consider applying for Special Consideration. Information about unavoidable disruption and the special consideration process is available under the Extension and Disruption of Study section of this Unit Guide.

If a Supplementary Examination is granted as a result of the Disruption of Study process, the examination will normally be scheduled after the conclusion of the official examination period.

You are advised that it is Macquarie University policy not to set early examinations for individuals or groups of students. All students are expected to ensure that they are available until the end of the teaching semester, that is, the final day of the official examination period.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early Christian thinking;
- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Delivery and Resources

Technology:

Lectures will be given live and also made available on Echo360. Visual materials used in lectures will be taken from the main Unit Booklet or made available as PDF files on iLearn. Brief bibliographies, lists of people, places and technical terms will be made available for each lecture on iLearn.

A computer and Internet access are required. Basic computer skills (e.g., internet browsing) and skills in word processing are also a requirement. You will need a copy of Adobe Acrobat Reader, as most Unit documents are provided in PDF format. This software is freely available on the Internet. Please consult the Course Convenor for any further, more specific requirements.

Face-to-face Tutorials will be held for Internal students; for External students there will be the On Campus Session, regular postings on iLearn and discussion on the weekly Online Forum. External students who can come to Internal tutorials are welcome to do so.

Lectures and Tutorials:

For lecture times and classrooms please consult the MQ Timetable website: <http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au>. This website will display up-to-date information on your classes and classroom locations.

At the time of publication class times are as follows:

Lecture times: Monday 10am, Y3A 212, Tuesday 12 midday, W6B 345. Where the Monday lecture falls on a public holiday, the lecture will be pre-recorded and made available via Echo360 as usual.

Tutorial times: Monday 2pm and 3pm, W5C 312; Tuesday 2pm and 3pm, W5A 204. Other tutorials may be organised, depending on student numbers. Where the Monday tutorial falls on a public holiday, special arrangements will be announced the week before.

Changes since the last offering of this Unit:

You may only submit your Tutorial Short Paper on the topics for Weeks 2-7. See separate Section below.

Books you will need:

The required Text Books for the Unit are P.J. Achtemeier et al., eds., Introducing the New Testament (Grand Rapids, 2000), and S. Neill & N.T. Wright, eds., The Interpretation of the New Testament (1861-1986) (Oxford, 1988).

If students want a more conventional narrative history, I recommend either P.W. Barnett's Jesus and the Rise of Early Christianity (Downer's Grove, IVP, 1999) or Ben Witherington III's New Testament History: a Narrative Account (Grand Rapids, Baker / Carlisle, Paternoster, 2001). They are both available in Reserve, and are regularly referred to in the weekly reading lists.

You will (of course) require a copy of the New Testament. It will be the basis of nearly all work in tutorials. The R.S.V., N.R.S.V., Jerusalem Bible, N.I.V., N.A.S.B. and E.S.V. versions are all acceptable: if you have another version please check with the lecturer. The King James ("Authorised Version") is not recommended; its translation is over 400 years old.

Other Material:

The Main Unit booklet, a PDF file of introductory material, Unit requirements, the Weekly schedule, Tutorial questions and full Bibliographies will be made available on iLearn. There is no need to print it all out; in most cases only 2-3 pages per week will be needed in class.

In addition, a number of other policies can be found in the Learning and Teaching Category of Policy Central.

Student Code of Conduct

Macquarie University students have a responsibility to be familiar with the Student Code of Conduct: https://students.mq.edu.au/support/student_conduct/

Results

Results shown in iLearn, or released directly by your Unit Convenor, are not confirmed as they are subject to final approval by the University. Once approved, final results will be sent to your student email address and will be made available in eStudent. For more information visit ask.mq.edu.au.

Submission of Work:

All assessable work for the Unit is to be submitted via Turnitin, using the links on the Unit iLearn page.

Extensions:

Extensions for assignments can only be granted for medical reasons or on compassionate grounds. Without documentation (medical or counselling certificates) or prior staff approval, a penalty of 2% a day, including weekends, will normally be applied. If required, applications for extensions should be made to the Unit Convenor before the assignment's due date. Naturally, if this is not possible or reasonable, particular cases will be dealt with on their merits.

Unit requirements:

To complete the unit you will need to submit all assessment tasks and achieve an overall mark of 50% or above. You will also need to attend tutorials regularly. If you are unable to attend any two tutorials or more (Internal students), you will need to explain your absence to the convenor in writing.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Assessment tasks

- Major Essay
- Participation
- Examination

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- conduct independent research on a chosen topic;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Assessment tasks

- Tutorial Paper
- Major Essay
- Participation
- Examination

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Assessment tasks

- Major Essay

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early

Christian thinking;

- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- The student will learn from a variety of ancient text types about the varieties of early Christian thinking;
- demonstrate a comprehension of ancient world-views and cultural concepts;
- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- conduct independent research on a chosen topic;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- conduct independent research on a chosen topic;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Assessment tasks

- Major Essay
- Participation

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- contextualise particular ancient documents within their wider cultural environment;
- show an awareness of the complexity of ancient accounts of past events and experiences;
- engage with and responding critically to a variety of scholarly opinions;
- and formulate an independent view in dialogue with both ancient evidence and modern interpretations.

Changes from Previous Offering

The previous time the Unit was offered students could submit their Short Paper on any of the weekly tutorial topics. For 2016 students must submit on one of Weeks 2-7. This change has been made to facilitate early feedback. Tutorial topics for Weeks 9-12 will be assessed under Participation.

The Aim of the Unit

This Unit is designed to introduce students to a range of the historical questions which arise from the study of the New Testament, in the context of Second Temple Judaism, late Hellenistic culture and the Roman Empire. The focus will be on the historical and cultural context of the life of Jesus, the available sources of information on Jesus' public career, the movement he founded, and its development in approximately the first sixty years of its existence.

The unit is based on the historical study of the New Testament documents and other contemporary ancient evidence, and investigates both the historical contours of the period and career of Jesus and the early Christian communities; and the literary genres and ideas of the New Testament, in their Jewish and Graeco-Roman context. No previous familiarity with the New Testament is assumed.
