Unit description This is a self-directed research project under supervision. Students will identify a contemporary or historical policy problem, and plan and undertake in-depth research culminating in an original dissertation.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Plan, design and execute self-directed research into a current or historical policy problem
- Critically apply key concepts, theories and methodologies in the discipline of public policy
- Analyse, integrate and synthesise complex information related to a real-world case studies
- Critically reflect on the importance and relevance of contextual factors in the development of policy arguments
- Analyse, evaluate and synthesise a range of evidence related to a chosen policy
- Effectively communicate concepts, arguments and recommendations

General Assessment Information

Assignment Submission

All written assignments must be submitted using the “Turnitin Assignments” facility on the iLearn website. This facility includes software which scans the uploaded assignments for plagiarism. Follow the instructions on the screen carefully. Your assignment should be uploaded before midnight on the due date.

Note that two hard copies of the final dissertation must also be submitted by the due date.

In all cases, you should ensure that you keep a copy of the assignment.

Return of marked work

Marked assignments will be returned via Turnitin Assignments on iLearn. When marks are released, you will need to go back in to the assignment submission box, and open your uploaded assignment. When you click on the “GradeMark” button, you will be able to see the marker’s comments on your work. You can save or print the assignment with the comments.

Extensions

Extensions will only be granted in exceptional circumstances, and will require documentary evidence such as a medical certificate to support the request for an extension. You should contact the convenor as early as possible if you think you may need an extension. While we do understand that most students are engaged in paid employment, extensions cannot be granted on this basis alone.

Penalties for late submission

Assignments which are submitted after the due date, without having an extension granted by the convenor, will be penalised, at a rate of 5% of the mark for each week day after the due date. Any paper submitted more than 3 weeks after the due date will not be marked, and the student will be failed for the assignment.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Research Proposal	20%	End of Week 2
Literature Review	20%	End of Week 6
Dissertation	60%	First Monday of exam period

Research Proposal

Due: End of Week 2

Weighting: 20%

The first assessment task requires you to refine your general topic area so that it addresses a specific problem. You should do this in consultation with your project supervisor. This task involves defining some research questions which your project will answer, and developing a tentative argument in relation to the problems/issues you intend to address. Your proposal should also give an indication of the relevant research literature in your chosen area, and identify the methodology which you intend to use in conducting your research.

Your written research proposal should include the following components:

- a working title
- an abstract (maximum 150 words)
- a preliminary literature review (approximately 800 words)
- justification of your chosen research questions(s) (approximately 300 words)
- the proposed methodology (approximately 300 words)
- a preliminary annotated bibliography (at least 10 relevant scholarly sources)
- a work plan

Total word limit for the research proposal: 1500 words

A marking rubric and marking criteria are provided on the iLearn site.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Plan, design and execute self-directed research into a current or historical policy problem
- Effectively communicate concepts, arguments and recommendations

Literature Review

Due: End of Week 6

Weighting: 20%

The second assessment task requires you to identify and analyse the relevant scholarly literature for your research project. You will need to do a substantial amount of reading to be able to find the most relevant books and articles. The literature review also requires you to demonstrate your reading, comprehension and analytical skills.

The literature review should do the following:

- provide a theoretical context for the research project
- demonstrate where the research project fits in the existing body of public policy knowledge
- identify flaws or gaps in the existing literature
- justify the research questions of your project, and your chosen approach

The literature review may form part of your final essay, subject to revisions in response to feedback from your supervisor.

Word limit: 1500 words

The marking criteria and rubric are posted on the iLearn site.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Plan, design and execute self-directed research into a current or historical policy problem
- Critically apply key concepts, theories and methodologies in the discipline of public policy
- Analyse, integrate and synthesise complex information related to a real-world case studies
- Analyse, evaluate and synthesise a range of evidence related to a chosen policy
- Effectively communicate concepts, arguments and recommendations

Dissertation

Due: First Monday of exam period

Weighting: 60%

The final task is the submission of the dissertation which is the end result of your research project. Your dissertation will be a piece of formal academic writing, which demonstrates mastery of the topic area, shows originality in your analysis, and presents a clear, coherent and well-substantiated argument.

Your dissertation should include:

- title page
- plagiarism (academic honesty) declaration
- abstract
- table of contents indicating section or chapter headings
- page numbers
- bibliography

Submission instructions: You should submit two hard copies of the dissertation to your supervisor on or before the due date, as well as submitting the dissertation electronically to Turnitin Assignments on the iLearn website by midnight on the due date.

Examination of dissertation: Your dissertation will be marked by two examiners from within the department.

Word limit: The dissertation has a maximum word limit of 6000 words, not including the bibliography.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Plan, design and execute self-directed research into a current or historical policy problem
- Critically apply key concepts, theories and methodologies in the discipline of public policy
- Analyse, integrate and synthesise complex information related to a real-world case studies

- Critically reflect on the importance and relevance of contextual factors in the development of policy arguments
- Analyse, evaluate and synthesise a range of evidence related to a chosen policy
- Effectively communicate concepts, arguments and recommendations

Delivery and Resources

Resources:

This unit has a unit webpage which is accessible only to currently enrolled students. Online units can be accessed at: <http://ilearn.mq.edu.au>

There is no text book for this unit. There are suggested readings about research practice posted on the iLearn site, and these will be available in the Macquarie University library.

There are many valuable resources within the Macquarie University Library, and the staff in the library are also able to help you to find the materials you need. The Library also runs useful sessions on You should get to know the library well during this unit, and familiarise yourself early in the session with the databases and other resources available through the Library website. Further details are available here: <http://www.mq.edu.au/about/campus-services-and-facilities/library/research>

Supervision:

This is an exercise in independent research, and you are expected to draw on knowledge and skills which you have developed in other units in the Master of Politics and Public Policy, and to further develop your knowledge and skills as you work independently on a topic of your choice. You will be allocated a supervisor from within the department who will be able support and guide you as you undertake your research project. You should meet or communicate by telephone with your supervisor on a regular basis during the semester. As a guide, you should meet your supervisor in the first week of the session, and then on a fortnightly basis from that point on, depending on semester breaks and the teaching schedule.

There are no timetabled classes for this unit.

Graduate Capabilities

PG - Capable of Professional and Personal Judgment and Initiative

Our postgraduates will demonstrate a high standard of discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgment. They will have the ability to make informed choices and decisions that reflect both the nature of their professional work and their personal perspectives.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Analyse, integrate and synthesise complex information related to a real-world case studies

Assessment tasks

- Literature Review
- Dissertation

PG - Discipline Knowledge and Skills

Our postgraduates will be able to demonstrate a significantly enhanced depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content knowledge in their chosen fields.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Plan, design and execute self-directed research into a current or historical policy problem
- Critically apply key concepts, theories and methodologies in the discipline of public policy
