Unit description This unit examines the ways in which various contestations (over postmodernism, poststructuralism and queer theory) challenged the foundational categories of feminist theory in the 1980s and 1990s. The unit will ponder whether the call for a contingent feminist theory and practice undermined or, in fact, invigorated feminist critical thought and practice. Through an engagement with the various critical frameworks that emerged in the wake of these contestations, the unit will then examine the reformulations and reframings that feminist scholars have produced in the decades since these interventions. What do these new critical frameworks seek to explain? Do they represent a return or a critical rupture? Are we living in a post-feminist moment? This unit will be framed as a cross-disciplinary unit, students are encouraged to bring their diverse disciplinary perspectives to the discussion and assessment.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Critically reflect on the relationship between feminist politics and research in the humanities and social sciences
- Exercise independence in the identification of a research problem and formulate a sophisticated approach to investigate it

Practice ethical and inclusive engagement with learning peers

Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

General Assessment Information

Late submissions will be penalised 2% per day, please contact Leigh if you have any learning difficulties or would like to apply for an extension due to unforeseeable problems.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Due
Seminar Participation	25%	Ongoing
Critical Review	25%	13/9 5pm
Research Essay	50%	11/11 5pm

Seminar Participation

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 25%

Students should come to the seminars ready to engage and discuss the weekly materials. There is no hurdle requirement to come to class – if students haven't completed the readings, attendance is not recommended. Please also be aware of others in the seminar-room and differing levels of familiarity with feminist thought – some students will not have engaged closely with this material before. As part of the seminar participation mark, each week all students must contribute either a "post" or a "response" to the class blog. This can be accessed via ilearn, "posters" and "responders" will be nominated each week.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Critically reflect on the relationship between feminist politics and research in the humanities and social sciences
- Practice ethical and inclusive engagement with learning peers
- Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

Critical Review

Due: 13/9 5pm

Weighting: 25%

Write a critical review of one piece of scholarship (article or book chapter) that engages with a concept/idea developed in one of the weekly seminars. Select a piece of scholarship that emerges in your own field. You should consider how this piece of research engages with the concept you have selected and consider its utility in your chosen research field (ie, is the sex/gender distinction useful for media studies?).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

Research Essay

Due: 11/11 5pm

Weighting: 50%

Produce a piece of independent research that employs a key framework from the weekly topic schedule. You should design this project yourself. Students must obtain approval for their research topic (via appointment). The essay should be submitted via turnitin.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Exercise independence in the identification of a research problem and formulate a sophisticated approach to investigate it
- Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

Delivery and Resources

Seminars will take place on Fridays, 12-2
