Unit description

To produce a good translation needs more than language proficiency. This unit introduces useful translation theories and skills and encourages their use in translation practice. Students will analyse Chinese texts to identify the genre, style, register and potential reader of the text. Students will learn how to conduct English translation which meets the needs of English readers. They will develop awareness of the cultural and social factors that contribute to effective translation. Students will also become familiar with translation procedure and be able to identify and solve problems when translating from Chinese into English.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Class participation	10%	every week

Reflective journal

Due: Week 13 Weighting: 10%

You are required to hand in a 1000-word reflective journal in English by week 13. This task aims to learn how to justify your translation decisions. The journal should contain problems identified, possible solutions and the decision in selecting the best solution. You are allowed to use same examples used in your presentations. However, journals are written assignments, it should cover the issues from more than one of your translation assignments, and your language skills will be taken into account in the mark of this task. This assignment should be your own original work. Plagiarism is not acceptable (For further information and advice, see www.student.mq.edu.au/ plagiarism). Students will only be granted extensions/special consideration with valid reasons (eg., serious and unavoidable disruption from completing any unit requirements in accordance with their ability.)via lodging Disruption to Studies application. Work that is submitted late will be subjected to an assessment penalty if an extension has not been granted. Please check the late submissions section of the unit quide.

Indicative examples of assessment tasks will be available on iLearn or in class.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- · Understand the main translation theories.
- Demonstrate key translation skills in Chinese English translation practice.
- Analyze various Chinese texts to identify the genre, style, register and potential reader of the text.
- Develop awareness of the cultural and social factors that contribute to effective translation.
- · Translate different genres of Chinese text into English.

· Identify and solve problems when translating from English into Chinese

Weekly Translation

Due: from week2 to week11

Weighting: 50%

There will be 1 weekly translation assignment (from Chinese into English) given on iLearn every week from week 1 to week 10. You are required to submit each of your translation assignment on iLearn by the due time. It is strongly suggested that you write annotations for your translation assignments, which can contribute to your in-class presentation and your reflective journals (see the tasks below).

Your marks will be determined by but not limited to:

- 1) your understanding of the source language text;
- 2) grammar in your translation;
- 3) idiomatic usage in your translation;
- 4) meaning and word choice in your translation;
- 5) style and tone in your translation.

Indicative examples of assessment tasks will be available on iLearn or in class.

Students will only be granted extensions/special consideration with valid reasons (eg., serious and unavoidable disruption from completing any unit requirements in accordance with their ability.) Work that is submitted late will be subjected to an assessment penalty if an extension has not been granted.

Please check the late submissions section of the unit guide.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the main translation theories.
- Demonstrate key translation skills in Chinese English translation practice.
- Analyze various Chinese texts to identify the genre, style, register and potential reader of the text.
- Develop awareness of the cultural and social factors that contribute to effective translation.
- Translate different genres of Chinese text into English.
- Identify and solve problems when translating from English into Chinese presentation

Due: one week in Week3-13

Weighting: 10%

You are required to do an individual presentation in class. In the beginning of the semester, by the end of week 2, you will be asked to choose a translation assignment as your presentation topic on iLearn. Indicative examples of assessment tasks will be available on iLearn or in class.

Late submission policy will be applied if you fail to register a presentation topic by the due time set on iLearn. Please check the Late submissions section of this unit guide.

You are expected to share your experiences in dealing with translation problems when doing your assignments. Your oral presentation is expected to be 5-8 minutes long. You have to finish your presentation within the time limit or marks will be deducted. You should be prepared that the rest of the class will raise questions.

When preparing your presentation, you may wish to consider the following questions:

- 1) What are the functions of the source language texts?
- 2) What difficulties do you have in understanding the source language text?
- 3) What difficulties do you have in finding equivalent expressions in English?
- 4) What kinds of translation strategies do you use in your translation?
- 5) What factors do you concider in finding equivalent expressions in Chinese?

After the in class presentation, you need to submit a presentation report through iLearn by the end of the week you do the presentation.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- · Understand the main translation theories.
- Demonstrate key translation skills in Chinese English translation practice.
- Analyze various Chinese texts to identify the genre, style, register and potential reader of the text.
- Develop awareness of the cultural and social factors that contribute to effective translation.
- Identify and solve problems when translating from English into Chinese

Final exam

Due: Examination period

Weighting: 20%

There will be an examination for this unit in the examination period. During the end-semester exam, you will have 2 hours to translate one Chinese text into English. The length of the text is approximately 350-400 words. You are also to answer an ethic question for professional translators. Paper-based dictionaries are allowed for the examination.

Indicative examples of assessment tasks will be available on iLearn or in class.

The only exception to not sitting an examination at the designated time is because of documented illness or unavoidable disruption. In these circumstances you may wish to consider applying for Special Consideration. Information about unavoidable disruption and the special consideration process is available under the Extension and Special Consideration section of this Unit Guide. It should also be stressed that failing to turn up for exams without prior notification to (WITH DOCUMENTATION) and obtaining approval from the lecturers for resitting the exams will mean that the students have forgone (that is, given up the opportunity to sit for) the exams. In which case, no supplementary exams can be arranged.

If a Supplementary Examination is granted as a result of the Special Consideration process, the examination will be scheduled after the conclusion of the official examination period. Individual Departments should contact the Associate Dean Learning and Teaching to confirm when Supplementaries are scheduled.

You are advised that it is Macquarie University policy not to set early examinations for individuals or groups of students. All students are expected to ensure that they are available until the end of the teaching semester, that is the final day of the official examination period.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the main translation theories.
- Demonstrate key translation skills in Chinese English translation practice.
- Analyze various Chinese texts to identify the genre, style, register and potential reader of the text.
- Develop awareness of the cultural and social factors that contribute to effective translation.
- · Translate different genres of Chinese text into English.
- Identify and solve problems when translating from English into Chinese

Class participation

Due: every week Weighting: 10%

Class participation is required. Participation will be marked on in-class activities, your willingness to participate in class discussion, preparation and performance of reading and responding to questions. Students are expected to be well prepared in order to participate in class discussion – this will ensure good use of class time as well as improving your learning skills and sharing your knowledge with others. Class participation is expected and will be part of the assessment. This means you not only come and sign in the class but come well prepared and participate in class discussion. You need to reflect on your assignments and think about the translation issues you have encountered and share your thought with others. Your marks for class participation will be determined by a) Whether you attend class regularly or not; b) How much effort you have taken to prepare for the class; c) How actively you participate in class discussion; and d) How helpful your comments are on the work of our fellow students.

Description of the behaviours evaluated for high-level student participation:

- independent engagement with online communicative activities, including discussion forum, zoom, voice thread etc, reading game/ revision/ vocab acquisition
- · spontaneous contributions to discussion, expression of opinions
- evidence of preparation for class through contributing specific examples demonstrating understanding of textbook/readings/home study
- · constructive collaboration with and feedback to peers
- · consistent target language use

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate key translation skills in Chinese English translation practice.
- Analyze various Chinese texts to identify the genre, style, register and potential reader of the text.
