Unit description

What role does government have in addressing inequality between individuals and groups? If governments make things fairer, what incentives are there for hard work and individual effort? Is the welfare state in decline because of an ageing population, tight budgets and globalisation? Is Australia overly generous when it comes to social spending? Few areas in sociology are as contentious and vital as the ongoing debates about who should get social support and how it should be delivered. This unit offers a detailed introduction to the history, design and institutions of social policy and welfare states. Throughout we examine the role of the state in delivering social outcomes for citizens, including social justice, social equality and social efficiency outcomes. We look closely at the development of Australian social policy and consider how policymakers are dealing with problems like an ageing population, unemployment, poor families, and income inequality in a comparative context. We also consider how social policy in Australia and elsewhere is made, and how power and institutional dynamics shape policy outcomes. Through this we assess how different forms of social policy provide alternative views of what a society represents and values. The unit caters for students interested in policy practice, policy analysis, development studies and welfare state research.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at http://students.mq.edu.au/student_admin/enrolmentguide/academicdates/

Learning Outcomes

1. Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
2. Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
3. Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
4. Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems
5. Understand the dynamics that shape different trajectories of national welfare states and their social policies
6. Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
7. Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area
8. Understand the critical junctures between work (labour markets), families and social security systems.
9. Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

General Assessment Information

There are 2 major assessment tasks in this course. Together they are designed to aid your learning, encourage you to engage with the course material and test your knowledge.

Assignment 1 should be submitted via Turnitin

Assignment 1

Due: Sunday 1 May 11.55PM TURNITIN
Weighting: 35%

The first assignment involves answering 5-6 questions about inequality and social policy. You will have three (uni) weeks to complete the task.

The total word length for the assignment will be 1,500 words.

The assignments may require you to:

- read a passage on social policy and discuss or interpret it
- interpret statistical evidence
- comment on, interpret, and discuss a policy document

The assignment will be available on ILearn at the end of week 5.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
- Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Final exam
Due: Exam period (end of semester)
Weighting: 50%

A test (120 minutes) to be held during the University exam period consisting of:

- 20 multiple choice questions
- 5 answers to questions (up to a page each)

A study guide, as well as practice papers, will be available to help you prepare for the test.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
- Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
- Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
- Understand the dynamics that shape different trajectories of national welfare states and their social policies
- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
- Understand the critical junctures between work (labour markets), families and social security systems.
- Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Online forum participation
Due: week 13
Weighting: 15%

Class participation will involve online participation.

A special web forum will be set up and, each week, there will be questions for you answer and post comments about.

Your participation will be assessed according to (i) the quality and insights of your contributions (ii) the frequency of your contributions (iii) your ability to engage with the comments on others.
To achieve a strong overall participation for this task, you would need to perform well across these three criteria. It's important to make regular and detailed contributions to demonstrate signs of genuine engagement in the unit.

In week 13, we will send you an email with comments on your participation and a mark.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:
- Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
- Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
- Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems
- Understand the dynamics that shape different trajectories of national welfare states and their social policies
- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
- Understand the critical junctures between work (labour markets), families and social security systems.
- Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Graduate Capabilities

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
- Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems
- Understand the dynamics that shape different trajectories of national welfare states and their social policies
- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Assessment tasks

- Final exam
- Online forum participation

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

When using the University's IT, you must adhere to the Acceptable Use of IT Resources Policy. The policy applies to all who connect to the MQ network including students.

• Online forum participation

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
• Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
• Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Assessment tasks

• Final exam
• Online forum participation

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
• Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
• Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
• Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
• Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
• Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems

Assessment tasks
- Assignment 1
- Final exam
- Online forum participation

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes
- Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Assessment tasks
- Final exam
- Online forum participation

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:
Learning outcomes

• Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
• Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area
• Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Assessment tasks

• Final exam
• Online forum participation

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:
Learning outcome

- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Changes from Previous Offering

This year, we will look closely at changing definitions and debates about social class.
