Unit description
The aim of this reading course is to introduce students to the main principles of the German language in order to enable them to read academic texts in German. They will develop a basic vocabulary and insight into grammatical structures, practice language learning techniques, use relevant tools such as dictionaries (both general and specialist dictionaries) and computer-based translation programs. Students will acquire a reading strategy enabling them to unravel and translate more complex texts, thus preparing them with the tools to access scholarly work in their research discipline.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning and teaching activities

- Exploring, applying and consolidating knowledge of German

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.
