Unit description

This unit examines how gender identities and relations are shaped as individuals and groups interact in the institutions that frame our everyday lives. We look at common activities such as shopping, eating, grooming, talking, reading, working, forming relationships and more, to examine some of the discourses – biological, cultural, social– that reproduce ideas of masculinity and femininity, of being a man or woman. We look at intersections of gender with class, ethnicity, and race. We engage with a range of theories of gender, and draw on research across the social sciences and humanities.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.

Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies

Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom

Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts

Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

General Assessment Information

Detailed Assessment Guidelines explaining the requirements for each assignment are available on the GEN210 iLearn page in the Assessment Resources section. It is necessary to read these guidelines in order to successfully complete each task.

All essays are to be submitted electronically through Turnitin on the GEN210 iLearn page.

Essay extensions of less than one week should be requested through the student's tutor. Longer extensions should be submitted through Disruption to Studies. Approved extensions will not incur a late penalty.

The late submission of essays (without approved extensions) will be accepted but will incur a penalty of 2% per business day.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Reading journal	21%	No	Weeks 2-8
Research Essay Proposal	25%	No	11.59pm Sunday of Week 7
Research Essay	40%	No	Week 13
Tutorial Participation	14%	No	Throughout the semester

Reading journal

Due: Weeks 2-8

Weighting: 21%

This assessment exercise requires students to keep an online journal about the weekly readings from weeks 2-8 (7 weeks in total). You are required to:

- For weeks 2-4 write annotations (brief summaries of no more than one paragraph) about each of the set readings for that week
 - Identify the main argument of the reading and express it in your own words.
 - Explain why it is relevant to the broader topic of the week
- For weeks 5-8 write a 200-word answer to one of the questions set for that week's tutorial.

The point of this exercise is for students to learn to identify and summarise other people's arguments in their own words. This will, in turn, help with note-taking, researching for the essay, and avoiding plagiarism.

There is a 10% margin on the word count

Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.
- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies
- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts

Research Essay Proposal

Due: 11.59pm Sunday of Week 7

Weighting: 25%

Research and write a 1000 word essay proposal with an annotated bibliography (annotated bibliography is not included in word count).

Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault,

and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies

- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts

Research Essay

Due: Week 13

Weighting: 40%

Research and write a 2000 word essay on one of the questions listed on iLearn for this task (questions to be made available by week 3).

Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.
- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies
- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts

Tutorial Participation

Due: Throughout the semester

Weighting: 14%

The mark is given for active participation in tutorials and not for mere attendance. Active participation includes evidence that you have done the readings, listened to the lecture, and thought about the topics in relation to your contemporary context.

Regular attendance and contribution to group discussions within GEN210 tutorials is a requirement of this unit. Participation in fewer than 80% of tutorials without documentation could result in a fail for this assessment. 2 absences are permitted without penalty. Additional absences without supporting documentation will be penalised.

Please see Assessment Guidelines in the Assessment Resources section on iLearn for further details.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.
- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies
- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts
- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts

- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Reading journal
- Research Essay Proposal
- Research Essay
- Tutorial Participation

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts
- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Reading journal
- Research Essay
- Tutorial Participation

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault,

and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies

- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Reading journal
- Research Essay
- Tutorial Participation

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.
- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies
- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Reading journal
- Research Essay Proposal

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.
- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies
- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.
- Appraise the deployment of theories of major thinkers including Marx, Freud, Foucault, and Butler, and the ways their ideas have been used, challenged, and critically extended in Gender Studies
- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts

- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Research Essay Proposal
- Research Essay
- Tutorial Participation

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts
- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Reading journal
- Research Essay Proposal
- Research Essay
- Tutorial Participation

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically examine the operations of gender, identity and power in everyday life.

- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers

Assessment tasks

- Reading journal
- Research Essay
- Tutorial Participation

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Interpret the relationship between everyday life and theories of gender and power and apply analyses outside the classroom
- Practice skills in summarising texts, designing basic research plans, and writing research essays. These skills will in turn support the analysis and evaluation of and engagement with everyday texts
- Synthesise ideas through discussion with peers
