Unit description

What value should we attach to work? Is it something we do just for the wages? Or does work have a value beyond that? How does work affect our identity? Should the availability and quality of work be left to the job market? Or does the state have responsibilities to provide decent work? In the first half of the unit we look at how some of the great philosophers of the past answered such questions, including Plato, John Locke, Adam Smith, Hegel, Marx and Hannah Arendt. Using these philosophical models, in the second half of the unit we look at the worries people have about work from a contemporary perspective. With a focus on issues such as unemployment, precarious work, disrespect at work and meaningless work, we ask how things can go well or badly with work and what might be done about it.

Important Academic Dates

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate clearly and coherently philosophical arguments about the meaning of work.
- Analyse and critically evaluate philosophical arguments

Assessment tasks

- Participation and engagement
- Text analysis 1
- Text analysis 2

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Develop a philosophical understanding of contemporary social issues around work

Assessment task

- Take-home exam

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate clearly and coherently philosophical arguments about the meaning of work.
- Acquire knowledge of the history of the philosophy of work.
- Develop a philosophical understanding of contemporary social issues around work

Assessment tasks

- Take-home exam
- Participation and engagement
- Text analysis 1
- Text analysis 2

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate clearly and coherently philosophical arguments about the meaning of work.
- Acquire knowledge of the history of the philosophy of work.
- Develop a philosophical understanding of contemporary social issues around work
- Analyse and critically evaluate philosophical arguments

Assessment tasks

- Take-home exam
- Participation and engagement
- Text analysis 1
- Text analysis 2

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate clearly and coherently philosophical arguments about the meaning of work.
- Acquire knowledge of the history of the philosophy of work.
- Develop a philosophical understanding of contemporary social issues around work
- Analyse and critically evaluate philosophical arguments

Assessment tasks

- Take-home exam
- Text analysis 1
- Text analysis 2

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Develop a philosophical understanding of contemporary social issues around work
- Analyse and critically evaluate philosophical arguments

Assessment tasks

- Participation and engagement
- Text analysis 1
- Text analysis 2

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Articulate clearly and coherently philosophical arguments about the meaning of work.
- Acquire knowledge of the history of the philosophy of work.
- Develop a philosophical understanding of contemporary social issues around work
- Analyse and critically evaluate philosophical arguments

Assessment tasks
