Unit description

The ANZAC Legend has long been at the core of Australian mythology. With 2015 marking the Centenary of the Gallipoli campaign and the birth of this legend, this new unit will explore the impact of armed conflict on Australian national life. As well as tracing the history of the major conflicts that have engaged Australians from before white colonisation to the War on Terror, the course will explore how the experience of war has shaped national identity. Themes will include; the idea of ANZAC and the militarization of Australian History, the 'Australian way of war'; gender, race and ethnicity; relationships with allies and enemies; the homefront; loss, disability and rehabilitation; and other legacies of war and commemoration. A range of sources — from literature to film, from private diaries to official records — will be used to examine these themes. An innovative feature of the on-campus version of the unit will be a collaborative undergraduate research project that will contribute to an exhibition to be held in the Museum of Australian History as one of the University's public contributions to the centenary of ANZAC.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

General Assessment Information

In order to satisfactorily complete this unit you are required to use the resources supplied to you, to complete all assessment tasks, and submit them by their respective submission dates (unless an extension has been arranged).

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Online Quizz	20%	No	Weekly
Major Research Project	50%	No	Thursday Week 12
Online Reflective Portfolio	30%	No	Weekly

Online Quizz

Due: Weekly

Weighting: 20%

This tasks consists of ten online quizzes with each quiz worth 2% of the final grade. The quiz will be delivered and graded through the learning management system and will be based on the videos and readings for the relevant week.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources

- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia

Major Research Project

Due: Thursday Week 12

Weighting: 50%

Students will be instructed and provided with resources to allow them to work effectively in teams to produce a group project that will be presented at the end of the semester. Progress on the collaborative task will be strictly monitored and scaffolding used to develop roles and responsibilities within each group. Fifty percent of marks for the project will be earned from the group effort; fifty percent from individual contributions.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Communicate effectively in oral forms, and in a range of written forms
- Participate actively in group discussions
- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life

Online Reflective Portfolio

Weighting: 30%

Guided questions will assist students to reflect on the unit content and learning outcomes. Each week tasks will be set to which students will respond in their portfolio. In addition, at the end of every week they will reflect on the themes and issues presented and discussed.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Communicate effectively in oral forms, and in a range of written forms
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life

- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life

Delivery and Resources

You will be provided with videos, resources, readings and links on the unit's iLearn site. You will also conduct elements of your own research in preparation for in-class discussions, weekly quizzes and group work. Each week you will be required to engage with the material provided and to discuss it with your peers in tutorials and in conjunction with your instructor.

The major piece of assessment is a group project in which you will work with a small group of your fellow students to produce original historical research on Australian history. Tutorial class time will be set aside to work on this project, although additional work outside of tutorials will also be required.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Communicate effectively in oral forms, and in a range of written forms
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia

Assessment tasks

- Major Research Project
- Online Reflective Portfolio

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Participate actively in group discussions
- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life
- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life

Assessment tasks

- Online Quizz
- Major Research Project
- Online Reflective Portfolio

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life

Assessment tasks

- Online Quizz
- Online Reflective Portfolio

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life

- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life

Assessment tasks

- Online Quizz
- Major Research Project

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Communicate effectively in oral forms, and in a range of written forms
- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills

- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life

Assessment tasks

- Online Quizz
- Major Research Project
- Online Reflective Portfolio

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Read and analyse different kinds of historical evidence, including visual and textual sources
- Find, analyse and apply historical information
- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills

Assessment task

- Major Research Project

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Communicate effectively in oral forms, and in a range of written forms
- Participate actively in group discussions
- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills
- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life

Assessment tasks

- Major Research Project
- Online Reflective Portfolio

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Participate actively in group discussions

- Develop and/or enhance their collaborative/teamwork skills
- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life
- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life

Assessment task

- Online Reflective Portfolio

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Describe and understand key events in the military history of Australia
- Critically analyse contemporary debates about the place of the military and armed conflict in Australian national life
- Understand and discuss the ways in which Australian historians have written and argued about the role of war and the military in Australian national life
