| Unit descriptionThis unit provides an advanced introduction to core social theories and is open to students from all disciplines. The focus is on the relationship between social theory and empirical research as an essential and meaningful skill for postgraduate research in various disciplines. The candidate will acquire an advanced understanding of social theory and an awareness of how theory is informed by but also informs empirical research. The design of the unit takes into account students' own research plans and designs and provides them with the competence to apply both theoretical and empirical research skills. |

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

The unit provides a fundamental understanding of various theoretical approaches in social theory. The link between social theory and its application plays a central role in this. The aim is to develop skills to not only research and identify particular social theories, but to use them to interpret and analyze everyday life.

Assessment Tasks

| Review essay | 40%       | No     | week 13 09/06/2017 |

Participation

Due: ongoing

Weighting: 20%

Participating in class discussion is essential. This means not only to be there in person, but to come prepared (readings) and participate in discussions. Your consistent and continuous input is required.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The unit provides a fundamental understanding of various theoretical approaches in social theory. The link between social theory and its application plays a central role in this. The aim is to develop skills to not only research and identify particular social theories, but to use them to interpret and analyze everyday life.

research

Due: weekly

Weighting: 40%

This assignment has two components:

1) Every student needs to be prepared to lead the discussion every week on the basis of a summary of the set weekly reading. At the beginning of the class we will choose one person as the presenter for this week (over duration of the course everyone will need to present twice) The summary needs to

- identify the main area of research / school / approach / topic / theme (keywords)
- explain the main argument in your own words
- identify another major reading in the set reading and introduce it briefly on the basis of a book review or similar (email to convenor together with handout before class)
- raise discussion points
- relate to contemporary example(s)

2) A handout (no longer than 2 pagers) needs to be prepared by every student and emailed to the convenor before class. After class the presenter of the week adds a summary / refines the handout on the basis of the class discussion and sends it to the convenor who posts it on iLearn for everyone.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The unit provides a fundamental understanding of various theoretical approaches in social theory. The link between social theory and its application plays a central role in this. The aim is to develop skills to not only research and identify particular social theories, but to use them to interpret and analyze everyday life.

Review essay

Due: week 13 09/06/2017

Weighting: 40%

The final assignment is a review essay. Your first task is to identify a book in consultation with the unit convenor that is central to your research interests (does not need to be a purely theoretical book). You then review/assess this book on the basis of the weekly material from the course.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- The unit provides a fundamental understanding of various theoretical approaches in social theory. The link between social theory and its application plays a central role in this. The aim is to develop skills to not only research and identify particular social theories, but to use them to interpret and analyze everyday life.

Delivery and Resources

All course material will be made available through iLearn and the university library.
