Unit description

Asia's rapid pace of social and economic change is unprecedented. Much of this dynamism is underpinned by flows of people, capital, and culture within and from the region. This unit will explore how these flows relate to questions of labour, gender, family and life course, inequality, education, social development and new Asian capitalisms. The unit begins with a look at contemporary flows of Asian migrants to Australia. It will explore new modalities of migration that have emerged in the last decade, and the social, cultural and economic impacts for Australia. The unit then moves to its primary focus of intra-Asia migration and mobility. Drawing on current empirical research on the Asian region, the unit will consider examples of Labour migration (low wage, middling and transnational elites); Labour offshoring; Foreign domestic workers; International marriage within Asia; Trafficking of migrant labourers and sex workers; Migrant labour brokers and intermediaries; How Asian states mediate and regulate migration flows; Transnational elites in and from Asia; Chinese business migrants, 'Astronaut families' and 'Parachute Kids'; Transnational parenting and grand-parenting, Retirement migration in Asia; Asian migrant remittances and development; Circular and return migration; International student flows within Asia; Health tourism; Transnational Migrant advocacy.

This is a hurdle assessment task (see assessment policy for more information on hurdle assessment tasks)

Students will be graded against a participation rubric - on attendance and participation in tutorial discussions.

ON CAMPUS: Attendance at weekly seminars is compulsory. No more than two may be missed during the course of the semester. Grading will occur on attendance pattern, frequency and quality of class discussion, and evidence of having completed weekly reading tasks.

EXTERNAL STUDENTS: Watching/listening to lectures each week is compulsory and will be monitored. No more than two weeks may be missed during the session. Completing the weekly set readings and documentaries is compulsory and will be monitored. Students are to make AT LEAST three postings each week to the online tutorial discussion forum, comprising: 1) At least 200 words posting covering "CCQ: Comments; Critique; Questions" on the weekly lecture, documentary and readings. 2) At least one response to another student's online tutorial post. This can be in the form of a comment, an example, a question or reflection. 3) At least one follow up to another student's response (i.e. to turn the individual posts into a discussion thread).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Deepen and extend an understanding and knowledge of migration and human mobility within and from Asia.
- Develop the capacity to categorise and critically differentiate between different forms of migration and human mobility in Asia and situate these within a sociological framework .
- Develop the capacity to critically analyse how these differentiated forms of human mobility relate to social, cultural and economic changes within the Asian region.
- Develop the capacity to critically apply the sociological concepts of 'mobility studies' to analyse human mobility in Asia.

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Deepen and extend an understanding and knowledge of migration and human mobility within and from Asia.
- Develop the capacity to categorise and critically differentiate between different forms of migration and human mobility in Asia and situate these within a sociological framework .

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Deepen and extend an understanding and knowledge of migration and human mobility within and from Asia.
- Develop the capacity to categorise and critically differentiate between different forms of migration and human mobility in Asia and situate these within a sociological framework .

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Develop the capacity to critically analyse how these differentiated forms of human mobility relate to social, cultural and economic changes within the Asian region.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Develop the capacity to categorise and critically differentiate between different forms of migration and human mobility in Asia and situate these within a sociological framework .
- Develop the capacity to critically analyse how these differentiated forms of human mobility relate to social, cultural and economic changes within the Asian region.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Deepen and extend an understanding and knowledge of migration and human mobility within and from Asia.
- Develop the capacity to critically apply the sociological concepts of 'mobility studies' to analyse human mobility in Asia.
