Unit description

This unit examines the critical and cultural development of children's literature from the nineteenth century to the present. The unit relates the literature to social and intellectual history, and considers the impact of major paradigm shifts. Topics may include the social and literary constructions of childhood; the development of the Bildungsroman for younger readers; representations of gender, class, race and power; and the development of social realism and of fantasy.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. To develop a broad sense of how children's literature has evolved over the past three centuries
2. To gain an understanding of the relationship between texts and the changing cultural constructions of childhood and adolescence

3. To acquire skills in identifying narrative techniques and evaluating how the use of such techniques has developed over a historical period.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Participation	10%	No	Evaluated weekly
Written Report	40%	No	23 August 2017
Final Essay	50%	No	7 November 2017

Participation

Due: Evaluated weekly

Weighting: 10%

A requirement for participation marks is attendance and involvement in all the seminars. Attendance is mandatory in LIT854—there is no quota of classes you can miss without impact on your participation grade. Absences will be excused only under exceptional (documented—i.e. with a medical certificate and a Professional Authority Form) circumstances.

In addition to attendance and involvement, participation entails completing all the readings before class and reflecting on those materials (make notes).

In particular, you should think about the discussion questions posed under each week's heading in this Unit Handbook and arrive at your own answers synthesized from what you've read, listened to and thought about. You will be called upon to answer these questions in class, and you should prepare to speak to the broader issues they raise.

Class Participation for External Students:

External students must participate in online discussions via the LIT 854 iLearn site. One post per week is the minimum participation requirement. External students should read the weekly texts and prepare the seminar discussion topics in advance, then post responses to the seminar questions and respond to the postings of other students, to facilitate an active discussion such as would occur in a face-to-face seminar. Students are also encouraged to raise other relevant points of interest in their online discussions. Be prepared to question the opinions of others, to have your opinions challenged and to participate actively in discussion. Please also be aware that overly-long posts DO NOT encourage discussion. Keep your posts short and to the point – and encourage others to respond.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. To develop a broad sense of how children's literature has evolved over the past three centuries
- 3. To acquire skills in identifying narrative techniques and evaluating how the use of such techniques has developed over a historical period.

Written Report

Due: 23 August 2017

Weighting: 40%

What is the impact of non-literary writing and poetry about children and/or education on writing for children in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries? Focusing on ONE or TWO primary texts from this period, examine how other writings about children and education influenced the production of fiction for children.

You may choose either ONE novel or TWO short stories intended for children and refer to at least TWO or THREE other (non-fiction) texts.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. To develop a broad sense of how children's literature has evolved over the past three centuries
- 2. To gain an understanding of the relationship between texts and the changing cultural constructions of childhood and adolescence

Final Essay

Due: 7 November 2017

Weighting: 50%

Write a 3000 word research essay based on one of the questions in the LIT 847 Unit Handbook.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. To develop a broad sense of how children's literature has evolved over the past three centuries
- 2. To gain an understanding of the relationship between texts and the changing cultural constructions of childhood and adolescence
- 3. To acquire skills in identifying narrative techniques and evaluating how the use of such techniques has developed over a historical period.
