Unit description

This distance education course will introduce students to different types and forms of Polish poetry and prose. It will consider the relationship between the content and form, texts and readers, and language and communication. The selected texts will be studied to help students develop and refine skills in textual analysis and to equip them with a range of interpretive tools to aid their understanding of how cultural context influences the way texts are written and read, how different literary techniques deployed by writers invite meaning making, and how literature can be used as a vehicle for exploring social, cultural and historical issues. More broadly, this course aims to increase students' awareness of Polish literary texts and to cultivate an appreciation of their cultural specificity and richness.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

An increased awareness of different kinds and forms of Polish literary texts and an appreciation of their cultural specificity and richness.

Ability to develop critical reading skills and competence in interpretive analysis.

Ability to identify how different types of literary texts are strategically constructed to convey ideas and values, and how they are open to a range of interpretations.

Ability to develop and justify one's interpretation of a text by identifying ideas, themes and values and by responding to implied points of view.

Development of a critical consciousness informed by scholarly research and a self-reflexive awareness of the reasoned views of others.

Ability to effectively participate in online sessions, on campus sessions and associated activities.

General Assessment Information

Detailed grading standards (such as rubrics) and indicative examples of tasks are provided in the iLearn unit.
