Unit description

This unit is intended for students who have sufficient vocabulary and knowledge of Polish grammar to read modern short stories in the original. The unit uses a variety of delivery modes such as printed materials, a recorded CD, as well as computer-mediated communication. The students can also listen to the short stories in their online unit. Students will find the revision material in their online unit.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Ability to read a range of literary and non-literary texts, including poetry, prose narratives and newspaper articles (in the Polish language and in translation); to recognise specific language features used to convey meaning, to identify different methods of characterization, and to understand various aspects of newspaper articles, such as the type, the presentation of ideas, the positioning of points of view and the style.

Ability to develop critical reading skills and competence in interpretive analysis; to develop and justify one's interpretation of a text by identifying ideas, themes and values, and by responding to implied points of view.

An increased awareness of different kinds and forms of Polish literary texts and an appreciation of their cultural specificity and richness; an understanding of some of the contemporary issues in Poland today through reading Polish press.

Ability to demonstrate comprehension of spoken discourse by native speakers in video segments.

Ability to provide answers to specific questions related to the set texts; to construct critical responses to a text, to complete a range of grammatically specific exercises, and to be able to flexibly write sentences including targeted vocabulary.

Expansion of knowledge of grammar which students should already be familiar with (in particular, adjectival and adverbial participles).

An increased awareness of areas of vocabulary that are useful in a wide range of situations. This involves a consideration of collocations, idiomatic expressions, proverbs, as well as particles. Some of the vocabulary in prescribed texts is formal and used for specific rhetorical and political purposes (e.g., in newspaper articles).

Ability to effectively participate in online sessions, on campus sessions and associated activities.

General Assessment Information

Detailed grading standards (such as rubrics) and indicative examples of tasks are provided in the iLearn unit.

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline.

No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Special Consideration Policy

All assessments are compulsory and must be submitted on time. Students unable to meet due dates must apply for 'Special Consideration' via ask.mq.edu. An approval will not be granted without a valid and documented reason (e.g. medical certificate).

If a Special Consideration Application is either not submitted or approved, the student will be awarded a mark of 0 for the task.
