Unit description

The collapse of the Roman empire, after five centuries of domination of the Mediterranean world, represents a major shift in the political, military, and cultural forces of antiquity. Rome's fall is also a key concept in contemporary understanding of the ancient and indeed modern world, arguably the defining idea of the European historical tradition. This unit studies the politics and culture of the Roman and post-Roman period from the fourth to the sixth centuries (segueing into early medieval Europe) through close examination of texts ranging from historical narratives to imperial documents to saints' lives. We also consider how modern thinkers have defined this period and used it as a paradigm for later history, from Gibbon's "triumph of barbarism and religion" to more recent views of Rome's fall as "an interesting experiment that got a little out of hand".

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Knowledge of the historical period and its modern study: Students should gain a broad understanding of major historical developments in the western half of the Mediterranean and Europe from the late fourth to late sixth centuries; acquire a fundamental body of knowledge of key concepts, events, and figures of the period; gain a broad understanding of historiographic debates and constructs concerning the ‘Fall of Rome,’ ‘barbarian invasion,’ and related historiographic themes; and gain a detailed understanding of a particular historical issue or event examined in the student’s Research Essay.

Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.

Disciplinary research skills: students should develop skills at identification of sources of information (such as research tools, databases, and online resources), and problem-solving skills in dealing with these resources.

Communication skills: Students should develop their oral and written communication skills, with particular emphasis on the abilities to discuss complex material in public, to reflect on research and organise one’s ideas, and to comprehend alternative views and respond to them profitably; and on the ability to construct sustained arguments in writing, supported by clear logic and detailed research.

General Assessment Information

Submission of Written Assignments

Quiz: The quiz will be available on the unit iLearn site.

Submission of written assignment (Historical Genre Study): The Historical Genre Study is to be submitted through TurnItIn via the iLearn unit website.

Policies on Written Assessment: Extensions, Late/Early Submission, Length

Extensions can only be granted if an application is made through the Special Consideration system.

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Length policy: Essays exceeding or falling short of the specified word lengths will attract a penalty: divergences of more than 10% will attract a penalty of 10%.

Assignment tasks handed in early will be marked and returned with other papers (i.e. not before the due date).

For Special Consideration Policy see under Policies and Procedures.

EXTENSION REQUESTS

Extensions for the written assignment will only be granted in the case of overwhelming personal circumstances or medical situation, with supporting documentation (e.g. medical certificate, counsellor statement), submitted as a Special Consideration request. Barring genuine major emergencies, extensions must be sought in advance of the due date, not retrospectively. Bear in mind that all written assessment should be begun long before the due date; generally, an extension can't be given because of a problem which arises a day or two before the due date. If it is necessary to request an extension, please submit a Special Consideration request well before the due date. Generally extensions will be made on a day-for-day basis (i.e. a medical certificate or counsellor statement for three days will be basis for three days' extension).

Remember that restrictions on extensions apply with a view to fairness to other students who have worked to submit their items within the common restrictions.

Back-ups and evidence of work completed: Where an extension is granted, proof of work already undertaken already may be required. You should back up your work at all times, with multiple back-ups; claims of loss of work due to computer failure may not be granted if there is no evidence of maintenance of back-up copies.

Please see under "Policies and Procedures" for policies on plagiarism.

IMPORTANT NOTE ON FINAL MARKS

Please note with respect to the marks you receive for work during the session that the marks given are indicative only; final marks will be determined after moderation. See further the note on Results in the Policies and Procedures section below.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Quiz	10%	No	Week 3, Friday 16 March 5.00pm
Historical Genre Study	40%	No	Week 8, Wednesday 2 May 9.00am
Tutorial Participation	10%	No	Weeks 2-6, 8-12
Examination	40%	No	Central Examination period

Quiz

Due: Week 3, Friday 16 March 5.00pm

Weighting: 10%

The quiz will be a short online quiz examining key points from the reading for Week 2 and class discussions in the Week 2 tutorials. The quiz will be available on the unit iLearn site.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Knowledge of the historical period and its modern study: Students should gain a broad understanding of major historical developments in the western half of the Mediterranean and Europe from the late fourth to late sixth centuries; acquire a fundamental body of knowledge of key concepts, events, and figures of the period; gain a broad understanding of historiographic debates and constructs concerning the 'Fall of Rome,' 'barbarian invasion,' and related historiographic themes; and gain a detailed understanding of a particular historical issue or event examined in the student's Research Essay.
- Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.

Historical Genre Study

Due: Week 8, Wednesday 2 May 9.00am

Weighting: 40%

This is a study of types of genres of late Roman literary texts which historians employ as historical sources, exploring what it is necessary to know about works written in a particular genre in order to be able to use examples of it for historical research. Full details of the assignment will be provided on the unit iLearn site. Submission will be via Turnitin on the unit iLearn site.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Knowledge of the historical period and its modern study: Students should gain a broad understanding of major historical developments in the western half of the Mediterranean and Europe from the late fourth to late sixth centuries; acquire a fundamental body of knowledge of key concepts, events, and figures of the period; gain a broad understanding of historiographic debates and constructs concerning the 'Fall of Rome,' 'barbarian invasion,' and related historiographic themes; and gain a detailed understanding of a particular historical issue or event examined in the student's Research Essay.

- Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.
- Disciplinary research skills: students should develop skills at identification of sources of information (such as research tools, databases, and online resources), and problem-solving skills in dealing with these resources.
- Communication skills: Students should develop their oral and written communication skills, with particular emphasis on the abilities to discuss complex material in public, to reflect on research and organise one's ideas, and to comprehend alternative views and respond to them profitably; and on the ability to construct sustained arguments in writing, supported by clear logic and detailed research.

Tutorial Participation

Due: Weeks 2-6, 8-12

Weighting: 10%

Tutorials will consist of group-work or whole class-work activities, and some very short written activities may be undertaken in some tutorials. Attendance at tutorials, which will be recorded, is only a threshold for the tutorial mark: active participation, demonstrating significant preparation, is necessary to secure a mark.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Knowledge of the historical period and its modern study: Students should gain a broad understanding of major historical developments in the western half of the Mediterranean and Europe from the late fourth to late sixth centuries; acquire a fundamental body of knowledge of key concepts, events, and figures of the period; gain a broad understanding of historiographic debates and constructs concerning the 'Fall of Rome,' 'barbarian invasion,' and related historiographic themes; and gain a detailed understanding of a particular historical issue or event examined in the student's Research Essay.
- Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.
- Communication skills: Students should develop their oral and written communication skills, with particular emphasis on the abilities to discuss complex material in public, to reflect on research and organise one's ideas, and to comprehend alternative views and respond to them profitably; and on the ability to construct sustained arguments in writing, supported by clear logic and detailed research.

Examination

Due: Central Examination period

Weighting: 40%

The examination will be scheduled centrally. It will consist of unseen short-answer and essay format questions. The format will be discussed in lectures.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Knowledge of the historical period and its modern study: Students should gain a broad understanding of major historical developments in the western half of the Mediterranean and Europe from the late fourth to late sixth centuries; acquire a fundamental body of knowledge of key concepts, events, and figures of the period; gain a broad understanding of historiographic debates and constructs concerning the 'Fall of Rome,' 'barbarian invasion,' and related historiographic themes; and gain a detailed understanding of a particular historical issue or event examined in the student's Research Essay.
- Communication skills: Students should develop their oral and written communication skills, with particular emphasis on the abilities to discuss complex material in public, to reflect on research and organise one's ideas, and to comprehend alternative views and respond to them profitably; and on the ability to construct sustained arguments in writing, supported by clear logic and detailed research.

Delivery and Resources

Set Readings and Text:

It is essential to buy these two items from the Coop Bookstore on campus:

- AHIS220 Readings (this is essential for all tutorials): from the Coop Bookstore on campus
- Stephen Mitchell, A History of the Later Roman Empire, 2nd ed. (Blackwell; Malden MA, 2015): from the Coop Bookstore on campus or (if sold out) from online booksellers

Using Mitchell, A History of the Later Roman Empire:

This text-book is set as a supplement to the lectures. One chapter (Chapter 2, "The Nature of the Evidence") is also required reading for the Document Study.

The examination questions will be based on information from the text-book as well as from lectures and tutorials.

Students are expected to read the suggested chapters as self-guided reading throughout the semester. The unit Program (on the unit iLearn site) includes a recommended schedule for when particular chapters should be read in relation to the lecture program.

The book covers the eastern as well as western half of the Roman empire, from the late third to mid-seventh centuries, and so not all of the book is directly relevant to this unit. The unit Program recommends reading chapters 1-6. Most of Chapter 3 (one of the two main narrative chapters) covers material prior to the time-period examined in this unit; information from this chapter will not be included in the examination, but it is useful background to the period of this unit.

Using the Unit Reader:

The Reader contains translations of texts from the period of this unit. Texts for Tutorials Weeks 3 to 6 (also an extra text in the readings for Week 9) relate directly to the topic of the written assignment, the Historical Genre Study.

Note that each text has been provided with a short introduction with background information. These introductions are required reading and are assessable for the examination. They should not, however, be used as sources for the Historical Genre Study, for which you are required to undertake independent research.

Tutorial readings for some weeks include “Optional additional readings.” These will not be discussed in tutorials or assessed in the examination, but are provided as additional examples of works in genres relevant to the Document Study. Of course, all students are encouraged to read these additional texts, some of which (such as Sidonius Apollinaris) are of considerable historical significance.

Additional Resources:

Students who would like to have a more detailed narrative description of the period may wish to access the following book. Despite its age, it remains the fullest narrative account of events. It is available in the Library, in a relatively cheap paperback version, and the full text is available on a public site on the Web:

J.B. Bury, History of the Later Roman Empire, 2 vols. (1923)

Available at: Lacus Curtius (Prof. Bill Thayer, University of Chicago)

<http://penelope.uchicago.edu/Thayer/E/Roman/Texts/secondary/BURLAT/home.html>

‘Recommended’ Books:

The following books are available from the Coop Bookstore. They are not essential texts, and all are held in the Library (most on Reserve) – so you do not have to buy them. But should you wish to purchase additional works relevant to particular parts of this unit, these are recommended as useful:

A brief overview of the period of 'Late Antiquity':

· Gillian Clark, Late Antiquity: A Very Short Introduction (Oxford University Press; New York, 2011)

Two modern studies:

- Guy Halsall, Barbarian Migrations and the Roman West, 376-568 (Cambridge University Press; Cambridge, 2007) – a major new interpretation of the period
- Michael Kulikowski, Rome's Gothic Wars (Cambridge University Press; Cambridge, 2007)

Online resources

This unit has an online presence. Login is via: <https://ilearn.mq.edu.au/>

Students are required to have regular access to a computer and the internet. Mobile devices alone are not sufficient.

For technical support go to: http://mq.edu.au/about_us/offices_and_units/informatics/help . For student quick guides on the use of iLearn go to: http://mq.edu.au/iLearn/student_info/guides.htm
All lectures will be recorded on Echo360, and PowerPoint slides posted (after lectures) on the iLearn site.

Learning and Teaching Activities

Unit Requirements: Attendance, Readings, Assessment

Following are the components which you are required to undertake in order to complete the unit:

Attendance: · thirteen weeks of lectures (up to two hours each week) · ten tutorial meetings, all of which require preparation (close reading of texts and consideration of issues suggested below)

Preparatory readings: · self-guided readings from the set textbook (Stephen Mitchell, A History of the Later Roman Empire) · Tutorial Readings from the unit Reader , to prepare before tutorials

Assessment: · Quiz: 10% · Tutorial attendance and participation: 10% · Historical Genre Study: 40% · Examination (in central examination period): 40%

Attendance at tutorials, which is recorded, is only a threshold prerequisite for the tutorial mark; active participation, demonstrating significant preparation is necessary to secure a mark. Attendance at lectures is not recorded, but note that the final exam is based on the lectures, tutorial work, and the textbook; non-attendance at lectures will result in a poor exam mark. Marks from assessment items cannot be pro-rated for any assessment item that is not undertaken.

Attendance: · thirteen weeks of lectures (up to two hours each week) · ten tutorial meetings, all of which require preparation (close reading of texts and consideration of issues suggested below)

Student Workload

In accordance with Senate Guidelines, a student workload of 3 hours per credit point (i.e. 9 hours per week for this 4-credit point unit) for 15 weeks (13 weeks of lectures +2 weeks of recess) is expected. This includes either 2 hours of lectures, or three hours of lectures and tutorial, during the 13 weeks of teaching. The remaining time should be used for lecture preparation including reading and note-taking from the textbook and other readings; tutorial preparation including reading and note-taking from the unit Reader; and work on the Historical Genre Study. In cases of disputed grades, evidence of work including notes for lecture and tutorial preparation will be required.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central \(https://staff.mq.edu.au/work/strategy-planning-and-governance/university-policies-and-procedures/policy-central\). Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

- Academic Appeals Policy
- Academic Integrity Policy
- Academic Progression Policy
- Assessment Policy
- Fitness to Practice Procedure
- Grade Appeal Policy
- Complaint Management Procedure for Students and Members of the Public
- Special Consideration Policy (Note: The Special Consideration Policy is effective from 4 December 2017 and replaces the Disruption to Studies Policy.)

Undergraduate students seeking more policy resources can visit the Student Policy Gateway \(https://students.mq.edu.au/support/study/student-policy-gateway\). It is your one-stop-shop for the key policies you need to know about throughout your undergraduate student journey.

If you would like to see all the policies relevant to Learning and Teaching visit Policy Central \(https://staff.mq.edu.au/work/strategy-planning-and-governance/university-policies-and-procedures/policy-central\).

Student Code of Conduct

Macquarie University students have a responsibility to be familiar with the Student Code of Conduct: <https://students.mq.edu.au/study/getting-started/student-conduct>

Results

Results shown in iLearn, or released directly by your Unit Convenor, are not confirmed as they are subject to final approval by the University. Once approved, final results will be sent to your student email address and will be made available in eStudent. For more information visit ask.mq.edu.au.

See under "Assessment Tasks: General Assessment Information" above.

PLAGIARISM

Academic honesty is an integral part of the core values and principles contained in the Macquarie University Ethics Statement (<http://www.mq.edu.au/ethics/ethic-statement-final.html>). Its fundamental principle is that all staff and students act with integrity in the creation, development, application and use of ideas and information. This means that:

- All academic work claimed as original is the work of the author making the claim.
- All academic collaborations are acknowledged.
- Academic work is not falsified in any way
- When the ideas of others are used, these ideas are acknowledged appropriately.

The link below has more details about the policy, procedure and schedule of penalties that will apply to breaches of the Academic Honesty policy:

Academic Honesty Policy

http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/academic_honesty/policy.html

Plagiarism: Plagiarism entails any of the following:

- (a) use of published material without adequate acknowledgement and citation (i.e. you must footnote your sources clearly).
- (b) any use of any material produced by other students
- (c) any re-use of an assessment item you have produced for any other university unit
- (d) purchase of essay material from an essay-writing provider, either via the Web or otherwise.

The university penalties for plagiarism (which can include failure of the unit or expulsion from the university) will be strictly enforced.

If you are in any doubt about what constitutes plagiarism – and the difference between plagiarism and citation – please read Macquarie University’s official statement, “What is Plagiarism?” (<http://www.student.mq.edu.au/plagiarism/>), a helpful discussion with examples.

EXAMINATION

You are expected to present yourself for examination at the time and place designated in the University Examination Timetable. The timetable will be available in Draft form approximately eight weeks before the commencement of the examinations and in Final form approximately four weeks before the commencement of the examinations at: <http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au/exam>.

The only exception to not sitting an examination at the designated time is because of documented illness or unavoidable disruption. In these circumstances you may wish to consider applying for a Supplementary Examination under the Disruption to Studies policy. Information about unavoidable disruption and the special consideration process is available under the Extension and Special Consideration section of this Unit Guide.

If a Supplementary Examination is granted as a result of the Disruption to Studies policy, the examination will be scheduled after the conclusion of the official examination period, through arrangement with the relevant Departments.

Note: You are advised that it is Macquarie University policy not to set early examinations for individuals or groups of students. All students are expected to ensure that they are available until the end of the final day of the official examination period.

Graduate Capabilities

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Knowledge of the historical period and its modern study: Students should gain a broad understanding of major historical developments in the western half of the Mediterranean and Europe from the late fourth to late sixth centuries; acquire a fundamental body of knowledge of key concepts, events, and figures of the period; gain a broad understanding of historiographic debates and constructs concerning the 'Fall of Rome,' 'barbarian invasion,' and related historiographic themes; and gain a detailed understanding of a particular historical issue or event examined in the student's Research Essay.
- Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.
- Disciplinary research skills: students should develop skills at identification of sources of information (such as research tools, databases, and online resources), and problem-solving skills in dealing with these resources.

Assessment tasks

- Quiz
- Historical Genre Study

- Tutorial Participation
- Examination

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.
- Disciplinary research skills: students should develop skills at identification of sources of information (such as research tools, databases, and online resources), and problem-solving skills in dealing with these resources.

- Tutorial Participation

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Disciplinary research skills: students should develop skills at identification of sources of information (such as research tools, databases, and online resources), and problem-solving skills in dealing with these resources.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Understanding of historical materials: students should develop skills in analysing and discussing different types of documents, in order to identify their technical or genre-based aspects, to understand different types of discourses, and to extract data from them.
- Disciplinary research skills: students should develop skills at identification of sources of information (such as research tools, databases, and online resources), and problem-solving skills in dealing with these resources.
- Communication skills: Students should develop their oral and written communication skills, with particular emphasis on the abilities to discuss complex material in public, to reflect on research and organise one's ideas, and to comprehend alternative views and respond to them profitably; and on the ability to construct sustained arguments in writing, supported by clear logic and detailed research.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:
