Unit description

Property law lies at the heart of our legal system. Jeremy Bentham once aptly observed: 'Property and Law are born together and die together. Before laws were made there was no property; take away law, and property ceases'. This unit provides a contextual analysis and outline of the Anglo-Australian law on property and covers such topics as the history and theory of property law; systems of title to, and resolution of competing interests in, property; concurrent ownership of property; native title; and mortgages, leases, easement and covenants in relation to real property.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Demonstrate understanding of the historical development of Australian property law and of the major historical and theoretical principles that underlie it.

Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of Australian property law.

Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.

Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.

Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

General Assessment Information

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Quiz	20%	No	4 April
Hypothetical problem question	30%	No	8 May 2018
Final examination	50%	No	University examination period

Quiz

Due: 4 April

Weighting: 20%

The quiz will be based on the material covered in Lectures 1 – 4. Although the submission portal will remain open from 12pm – 8pm, the quiz is designed to be completed in 1 hour; the 8 hour time span is to accommodate the range of commitments and needs of both internal and external students. It will consist of 20 multiple choice questions some of which will be based on short hypothetical problem questions. When a student accesses the quiz they have 1 hour in which to complete it. The questions and responses available to each student will vary as they will be allocated from a bank of questions, with the order of the responses presented to each student also varying. Answers will be automatically submitted at the end of the hour.

A practice quiz will be available in Week 3

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate understanding of the historical development of Australian property law and of the major historical and theoretical principles that underlie it.
- Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of Australian property law.

Hypothetical problem question

Due: 8 May 2018

Weighting: 30%

The hypothetical problem question will be based on the material in lectures 3 - 7 (tutorial weeks 4 - 8) inclusive and will require a response to a hypothetical problem question involving property law.

Word limit 1500 including footnotes.

Further information and a marking rubric will be available on the question.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.
- Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.
- Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

Final examination

Due: University examination period

Weighting: 50%

The University examination period in the first half of 2018 is from Tuesday 12 June to Friday 29 June 2018. Unit convenors have no control over when examinations are scheduled and so students must be available to sit the examination on any date specified by the university during this time. The timetable will be available in draft form approximately eight weeks before the commencement of the examinations and in final form approximately four weeks before the commencement of the examinations.

The only exception to sitting an examination at the designated time is because a student has been granted Special Consideration because of short-term, unexpected, serious and unavoidable circumstances, which affect their performance in an assessment. Information about the Special Consideration policy is available under the Policies and Procedures section of this Unit Guide. Students who successfully apply for Special Consideration under this process will sit a formal supplementary exam to be held at the Law School on a date to be advised.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.
- Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.
- Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

Delivery and Resources

Compulsory Text

Janice Gray, Neil Foster, Shaunnagh Dorsett, Heather Roberts, Property Law in New South Wales, 4th ed, 2017, LexisNexis

Recommended additional reference: Students are not expected to purchase this reference: Brendan Edgeworth, Butt's Land Law, 7th ed, Thomson Reuters, 2017

Graduate Capabilities

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.

Assessment task

- Hypothetical problem question

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate understanding of the historical development of Australian property law and of the major historical and theoretical principles that underlie it.
- Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of

Australian property law.

- Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.
- Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.
- Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

Assessment tasks

- Quiz
- Hypothetical problem question
- Final examination

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate understanding of the historical development of Australian property law and of the major historical and theoretical principles that underlie it.
- Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of Australian property law.
- Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.

- Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

Assessment tasks

- Quiz
- Hypothetical problem question
- Final examination

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.
- Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.
- Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

Assessment tasks

- Quiz
- Hypothetical problem question
- Final examination

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of Australian property law.

- Demonstrate a detailed knowledge of the major forms of title to land in Australia and appreciate the fundamental difference between the creation and transfer of property rights in law and in equity.
- Solve complex priority disputes between competing claimants to the same property through the application of doctrinal and procedural rules of law and equity.
- Communicate an integrated body of knowledge about property through active and informed participation in class discussion and the completion of relevant assessment tasks.

Assessment tasks

- Hypothetical problem question
- Final examination

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate understanding of the historical development of Australian property law and of the major historical and theoretical principles that underlie it.
- Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of Australian property law.

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate understanding of the historical development of Australian property law and of the major historical and theoretical principles that underlie it.
- Critically analyse the way in which native title has been placed in the framework of

Australian property law.
