Unit description

This unit examines economic analysis concepts and tools that enable students to set an organisation's decision-making within its wider economic context. Topics include supply, demand, and market equilibrium; scarcity; exchange and trade; choice theory; theory of the firm; game theory and strategy; market structure; market failures; role of government and government policies; aggregate economy; and international trade. We look at economic variables and how rises and falls in these variables affect people and businesses. We investigate how government policies, decisions by households and firms, and changes in the world economy affect inflation, exchange rates, interest rates, unemployment, growth, and social issues such as poverty and inequality.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Evaluate a wide array of local and global economics information to formulate well-informed and robust business decisions.

Develop a strategy for efficient allocation of scarce resources in a global marketplace.

Critically reflect on how changes in economic conditions affect individual businesses and society.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
In-class Test 1	10%	No	22 October 2018
In-class Test 2	10%	No	5 November 2018
Essay	30%	No	23 November 2018
Final examination	50%	No	Exam Week: 26 Nov - 1 Dec 2018

In-class Test 1

Due: 22 October 2018

Weighting: 10%

Closed book, 60 minutes and you might need a calculator. You will need to be familiar with material covered in earlier classes and readings.

Note that in the event you cannot attend the test, you may apply for special consideration. An alternative assessment task will be arranged in the event these circumstances are appropriate, in accordance with university policies.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Develop a strategy for efficient allocation of scarce resources in a global marketplace.

In-class Test 2

Due: 5 November 2018

Weighting: 10%

Closed book, 60 minutes and you might need a calculator. You will need to be familiar with material covered in earlier classes and readings.

Note that in the event you cannot attend the test, you may apply for special consideration. An alternative assessment task will be arranged in the event these circumstances are appropriate, in accordance with university policies.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Develop a strategy for efficient allocation of scarce resources in a global marketplace.

Essay

Due: 23 November 2018

Weighting: 30%

A penalty of 10% of possible marks per calendar day will be applied to late assignment submission. This penalty does not apply for cases in which an application for special consideration is made and approved. WORD LIMIT IS STRICTLY 3,000 words. You can attach relevant appendices and supporting documentation which will not be counted in this limit.

However, the report should stand alone – do NOT depend upon a reader to read the appendices. The appendices should be there to identify the sources of your research, show how your conclusions are reached and provide relevant back-up to your arguments.

The essay will be assessed on:

- Clarity and conciseness;
- The extent to which the questions are in fact answered;
- The quality of research, timeliness and relevance of information and statistics;
- Quality of analysis;
- Its usefulness to real world management issues; and/or
- Implication for economic policy.

The essay will be assessed against the relevant unit objectives, being:

- Interpret the meaning of economic information (both statistical, and qualitative), and to identify the additional economic (and other) information which might be useful for a decision, and where to get it; and
- Identify the factors likely to lead to a change in economic conditions, and provide scenarios of the likely economic impact of those changes.

TOPIC: TBA in class

Please submit a softcopy through iLearn.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Evaluate a wide array of local and global economics information to formulate well-informed and robust business decisions.
- Critically reflect on how changes in economic conditions affect individual businesses and society.

Final examination

Due: Exam Week: 26 Nov - 1 Dec 2018

Weighting: 50%

The final examination is of three (3) hours and ten (10) minutes reading time, open book.

There will be two (2) compulsory questions.

You are expected to present yourself for examination at the time and place designated in the MGSM Examination Timetable. The timetable will be available at <https://students.mgsm.edu.au/>

sydney-students/units/exams/

Note that in the event you cannot attend the exam, you may apply for special consideration. An alternative assessment task (in the form of a supplementary examination) will be arranged in the event these circumstances are appropriate, in accordance with university policies.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Evaluate a wide array of local and global economics information to formulate well-informed and robust business decisions.
- Develop a strategy for efficient allocation of scarce resources in a global marketplace.
- Critically reflect on how changes in economic conditions affect individual businesses and society.

Unit requirements

You will not be expected to become an economist. You will be expected to acquire economic skills that are useful to managers.

To successfully complete the unit you will be expected to demonstrate that you can do the following things at a level acceptable in the business world:

- Understand and make practical use of basic economic concepts by applying them to typical business management problems.
- Interpret the meaning of economic information (both statistical and qualitative), and to identify the additional economic (and other) information which might be useful for a decision, and where to get it.
- Understand how economic models can be used in making predictions and interpreting economic trends. And be able to identify the assumptions and limitations of economic models used by economists to make predictions and policy recommendations.
- Identify the factors likely to lead to a change in economic conditions, and provide scenarios of the likely economic impact on a specific entity (such as a manufacturing or service company) of those changes.

- Evaluate the content and logic of reports containing economic information as it relates to the contemporary Australian, Asian and other world economies. Identify fallacies in economic arguments, and weigh up different theoretical interpretations of facts leading to alternative predictions.
- Identify and evaluate the options for managing economic variables to achieve specific objectives, at a corporate level (e.g. profit or sales maximisation).
- Analyse and report on the way that changes in economic circumstances are transmitted through the economy, and assess their likely impact on, and implications for a given entity.

Alignment with MGSM's mission-driven attributes

- Leadership: Develop skills required of leaders with respect to the synthesis of a wide array of economics information in order to make well-informed and financially robust strategic decisions
- Global mindset: Assessment of the implications of global activity and strategic decisions from an entity perspective, across a wide spectrum of stakeholders
- Citizenship: Apply a true and fair view approach to matters of economic policy making and implementation related to business strategies through consideration of the wider stakeholder implications which may arise from such policies and the subsequent business decisions
- Creating sustainable value: Adoption of a forward-looking perspective on the impact of decisions on the financial position and performance of the entity

Attendance Policy (MGSM)

The interactive environment of the classroom is central to the MGSM experience. Students are required to attend the full duration of all classes for the units in which they are enrolled. We recognise that exceptional circumstances may occur, such as unavoidable travel on behalf of your organization or the serious illness or injury of you or a close family member.

Special consideration may be given for a maximum of 20% non-attendance for such circumstances as long as lecturers are contacted in advance, and supporting documentation provided, to request exemption from attendance. Failure to abide by these conditions may result in automatic withdrawal, with academic and/or financial penalty. The full Student Attendance Policy is published in the MGSM Student Handbook at <https://students.mgsm.edu.au/handbook>
