Unit description

This unit will focus on the skills required for working with groups. The emphasis will be on the principles and practice of group work facilitation, particularly as it relates to group process. Students will be presented with relevant theory and will have the opportunity to participate in a group, and prepare and lead sessions for the group. Students will be encouraged to reflect on their own experience throughout; thus, dealing with the group process will be an important part of the overall educational experience. The unit will involve some level of reflection on students' own personal experiences and how they may facilitate learning the skills to become effective group leaders.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. Understand and reflect on the theory behind group work.
2. Demonstrate skills in leading an effective group session based on the theoretical underpinnings of group work.
3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.
4. Reflect on the personal experience of being part of a group experience.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Reflective Journal	20%	No	TBA
Reflections on Reading	20%	No	TBA
Demonstration of Group Leading	60%	No	TBA

Reflective Journal

Due: TBA

Weighting: 20%

This assignment will provide an opportunity for you to tailor your learning to those aspects of being a group member and group leader that you wish to enhance. Some of these goals will be readily obvious and conscious to you, while others will be more unconscious or preconscious and will become more apparent as you go through the experiences in the unit/group. For example you may want to understand and change the way you deal with power in groups, or the way you manage emotion or simply your level of participation (be it too much or not enough for the rest of the group). All of these goals rely upon your own personal reflection, a skill that is essential for psychologists to practice successfully. Feedback from group members may help you obtain a better understanding of what your goals should be and now you work on these goals. Your four reflections following each day we meet as a group will be a type of learning journal where you will honestly determine your learning goals and assess your progress towards those goals, as well as the challenges for the next day of the group experience.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.
- 4. Reflect on the personal experience of being part of a group experience.

Reflections on Reading

Due: TBA

Weighting: 20%

Four chapters have been identified in the textbook that will be used for these reflections on the discussion board where students will be encouraged to comment.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. Understand and reflect on the theory behind group work.
- 4. Reflect on the personal experience of being part of a group experience.

Demonstration of Group Leading

Due: TBA

Weighting: 60%

You will be required to lead the class in one or two group sessions, depending on the size of the class. Develop these sessions and lead the class group for a period of approximately one hour to 90 minutes. The sessions may be on any particular topic, but should take into consideration the stage that the group is at. It is a good idea to link consecutive group experiences with the one that precedes it in order to build continuity. If you like, you may even have a task that you want participants to complete prior to or following your session. You may find the textbook useful here as it is organised around the stages of the group. Otherwise, you may use any exercise that sparks your interest. (In the past we have had sessions focusing on values, making process comments, dancing, poetry, drawing, beginning groups, ending groups) Thus, the content is not as important as the process of how the session takes place. Remember if you use an existing exercise you must contextualize it within an overarching framework of a topic you wish to present. In other words, the task is not the point of the experience, it is how you use that task to further group members' learning about themselves. All criteria should be addressed in the sessions each of you lead, regardless of the topic selected. Special attention should be placed on the process, by your use of process comments throughout your session. Finally, you will need to write up the session plan, as well as an evaluation of it.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 2. Demonstrate skills in leading an effective group session based on the theoretical underpinnings of group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.

Delivery and Resources

This unit will be delivered through 4 whole day workshops. The unit relies upon models of adult experiential learning with each participant demonstrating group leader and group member skills. Textbook and library resources are available to facilitate student learning.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central \(https://staff.mq.edu.au/work/strategy-planning-and-governance/university-policies-and-procedures/policy-central\). Graduate Capabilities

PG - Capable of Professional and Personal Judgment and Initiative

Our postgraduates will demonstrate a high standard of discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgment. They will have the ability to make informed choices and decisions that reflect both the nature of their professional work and their personal perspectives.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 2. Demonstrate skills in leading an effective group session based on the theoretical underpinnings of group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.
- 4. Reflect on the personal experience of being part of a group experience.

Assessment tasks

- Reflective Journal
- Reflections on Reading
- Demonstration of Group Leading

PG - Discipline Knowledge and Skills

Our postgraduates will be able to demonstrate a significantly enhanced depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content knowledge in their chosen fields.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Understand and reflect on the theory behind group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.

Assessment tasks

- Reflections on Reading
- Demonstration of Group Leading

PG - Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

Our postgraduates will be capable of utilising and reflecting on prior knowledge and experience, of applying higher level critical thinking skills, and of integrating and synthesising learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments. A characteristic of this form of thinking is the generation of new, professionally oriented knowledge through personal or group-based critique of practice and theory.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Understand and reflect on the theory behind group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.

Assessment task

- Reflective Journal

PG - Research and Problem Solving Capability

Our postgraduates will be capable of systematic enquiry; able to use research skills to create new knowledge that can be applied to real world issues, or contribute to a field of study or practice to enhance society. They will be capable of creative questioning, problem finding and problem solving.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 2. Demonstrate skills in leading an effective group session based on the theoretical underpinnings of group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.

Assessment tasks

- Reflections on Reading
- Demonstration of Group Leading

PG - Effective Communication

Our postgraduates will be able to communicate effectively and convey their views to different social, cultural, and professional audiences. They will be able to use a variety of technologically supported media to communicate with empathy using a range of written, spoken or visual formats.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Understand and reflect on the theory behind group work.

- 2. Demonstrate skills in leading an effective group session based on the theoretical underpinnings of group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.
- 4. Reflect on the personal experience of being part of a group experience.

Assessment tasks

- Reflective Journal
- Demonstration of Group Leading

PG - Engaged and Responsible, Active and Ethical Citizens

Our postgraduates will be ethically aware and capable of confident transformative action in relation to their professional responsibilities and the wider community. They will have a sense of connectedness with others and country and have a sense of mutual obligation. They will be able to appreciate the impact of their professional roles for social justice and inclusion related to national and global issues

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 2. Demonstrate skills in leading an effective group session based on the theoretical underpinnings of group work.
- 3. Demonstrate effective attending to process within the context of a group.
- 4. Reflect on the personal experience of being part of a group experience.
