Unit description

"The city of Rome was the first preindustrial metropolis in Europe with a population of about 1 million people by the end of the first century BCE. This unit will provide students with both an overview of the key issues of living in Rome, governing the city, as well as understanding the roles of migration and disease. Alongside this overview of life in Rome, students will also investigate key skills for the study of the city, whether evaluating our knowledge of antiquity from texts or from archaeological evidence. Particular attention will be paid to the use of maps, including the Severan Marble Plan of Rome from antiquity. The work undertaken each week will build into a picture of ancient Rome, in which students will develop knowledge of the city. A characteristic of the unit is that there is an emphasis placed on the need to research specific monuments or a topic in depth and to develop the skills to communicate those findings to a wider public. Part of the assessment is in the form of a blogpost (rather than a traditional essay), in which students develop high quality text (alongside weblinks to key ancient sources) with a target audience defined as teachers and students of HSC Ancient History. "

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.

To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.

To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.

To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

General Assessment Information

IMPORTANT NOTE ON FINAL MARKS

Please note with respect to the marks you receive for work during the session: the marks given are indicative only; final marks will be determined after moderation

Late Assessment Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Participation	15%	No	Friday of weeks, 8-12
Short Paper on Source Material	20%	No	Friday of Week 4
Review of a Journal Article	20%	No	End of Week 7
Blog	45%	No	End of Week 12

Participation

Due: Friday of weeks, 8-12

Weighting: 15%

Each week you will prepare topics for discussion in a tutorial. Following the Tutorial you will need to write up a single topic as a post to an on-line forum. The post needs to be referenced to the reading that you have undertaken and should also refer to ancient sources, whether coins, archaeological plans/maps, prints from Rome, or texts. By posting to the forum, you will be able to develop and consolidate your knowledge gained from the tutorial and also from the lectures in terms of your knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome. Posts in weeks 8-12 form the basis for the mark in terms of assessment, but you are expected to contribute to the Forum each week (this means weeks 2-6 are to allow you to experiment and to practice using the format of a Forum).

The Tutorial and the Forum provide you with an opportunity to test ideas and to practice your writing.

The Forum accounts for 15% of the marks in the final assessment, hence it is essential that you complete this task each week.

Each post should be no more than 700 words (excluding bibliography/references)

This piece of assessment maps onto the following learning outcomes, in particular numbers 1-4

1. To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome. 2. To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome. 3. To critically use evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence. 4. To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.
- To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.
- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.
- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Short Paper on Source Material

Due: Friday of Week 4

Weighting: 20%

During the first 4 weeks of the unit, we will examine ancient sources and discuss how we approach them and what information they provide us with about the city of Rome in antiquity. Your report will need to include references to what you have read, but the key part of this assessment is to explain how this piece of source material provides us with information and how that information can be interpreted. It is also important to identify where in Rome places mentioned in the text can be found (annotated maps may help to communicate this aspect). Some buildings in ancient Rome, there is still uncertainty over their position in antiquity.

Your short report should be no more than 1000 words. The deadline for the report is 11pm on the Friday of week 4.

This assessment task relates to the following learning outcomes, but especially to numbers 2 and 4.

1. To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome. 2. To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome. 3. To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence. 4. To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.
- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

Review of a Journal Article

Due: End of Week 7

Weighting: 20%

Alongside your report on ancient source/s, you need to write a report in which you create a summary of the argument of a modern author in a journal article. A list of suitable articles will be provided. Your report should be written under the following headings:-

1) Summary of the Argument in the Article 2) Why was this article written 3) Why is this article important for how we understand/interpret source material? 4) Evaluate the argument set out by the author/s, is there a counter-argument to be made? 5) How does the author/s use ancient sources to make key points? Evaluate an example/s to make your argument stronger. Your short report should be no more than 1000 words. The deadline for this piece of assessment is 11pm on Friday of week 7.

This assessment relates to the following learning outcomes, but especially to numbers 1 and 3.

1. To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome. 2. To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome. 3. To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence. 4. To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.
- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

Blog

Due: End of Week 12

Weighting: 45%

The second half of the unit, weeks 8-12, will focus attention on your ability to undertake research on the city of Rome. This culminates in a piece of assessment that involves you in using the skills you have developed over the course of the unit. The assessment is in the form of a blog that is written to make research on a particular aspect or building in Rome accessible to the public. We will examine through lectures and tutorials the role of blogs in Ancient History, and consider how you as a student can contribute to discussion pages (e.g. on LinkedIn) and posts (for example on twitter).

The blog needs to be referenced, but you should put in hyperlinks to other websites so that your reader (the public) can access these in translation (Perseus or Lacus Curtius websites have translations of major authors). You should include pictures to make your blog more attractive and to ensure that what your blog describes is understood. In using images, you will need to identify whether they can be reproduced in a blog or whether copyright prevents the use of some images.

The maximum length of the blog should be 1500 words, not including references and bibliography.

This assessment fulfills the following Learning Outcomes, but especially number 5.

1. To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome. 2. To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome. 3. To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence. 4. To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving. 5. To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.
- To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.
- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.
- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Delivery and Resources

Teaching is comprised of 2 hours of lectures per week and 1 hour tutorial - held immediately after the lectures.

Key Books for this unit are as follows:

Coarelli, F. 2014. Rome and Environs. An Archaeological Guide, University of California Press

Erdkamp, P. 2013. The Cambridge Companion to the City of Rome, Cambridge University Press

Laurence, R. and Newsome, D. 2011. Rome, Ostia, Pompeii: Movement and Space, Oxford University Press Part III chapters 10-15 on movement in the metropolis

Students are expected to develop their own bibliographies (training provided) to research topics themselves, particularly for the final piece of assessment - a blog on a topic of their choice.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.
- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Blog

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.

- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Blog

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To make decisions in relation to planning, organizing and prioritizing work, including decision making and problem-solving.
- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Blog

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.

- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Short Paper on Source Material
- Review of a Journal Article

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.
- To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.
- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks

- Short Paper on Source Material
- Review of a Journal Article
- Blog

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To consolidate knowledge in relation to the historical processes and fundamental historical developments in the study of the city of Rome.
- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.
- To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Short Paper on Source Material
- Review of a Journal Article

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- To develop sophisticated research skills with which to analyse ancient sources (texts, coins, excavated remains, etc.) with reference to the city of Rome.
- To critically evaluate modern scholarship that has been influential in shaping our understanding of aspects of the city of Rome, including the use of evidence.
- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Short Paper on Source Material
- Review of a Journal Article

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- To develop an understanding of how research in Ancient History may be presented to a wider public through the development of virtual content.

Assessment tasks
