Unit description

This unit addresses current issues in electronic publishing, examining the many dimensions of communication in which the electronic and print mediums differ, and how to reversion content from print to screen delivery. It analyses their different document structures and page layouts, and issues of navigation and usability for web documents. Methods for indexing print and electronic materials are compared, and the use of metadata to optimise the searchability of website content is also examined. The editor's responsibilities for content in both mediums are discussed, as well as legal and ethical issues, as part of editorial project management.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Awareness of all the opportunities to publish content in print and electronically

Familiarity with the standard tools and techniques for indexing, for print and web documents

Understanding of the special demands of electronic publishing, in relation to screen delivery, and searchability on the internet

Familiarity with legal, ethical and cultural issues in publishing

Full awareness of the scope of editorial project management

Assessment Tasks

| Name | Weighting | Hurdle | Due |
|--------------------------------------|-----------|--------|----------|
| Website navigation, usability | 25% | No | 14/04/19 |
| Journal editing task | 10% | No | 28/04/19 |
| Online discussion | 25% | No | 26/05/19 |
| The scope of editing today | 40% | No | 23/06/19 |

Website navigation, usability

Due: 14/04/19

Weighting: 25%

Design a home page for a community organization. It must be an original idea and design. The home page should provide essential information about the organization and its work, as well as ready access to its newsletter and other resources. Decide what needs to go on the home page, how to project the nature of the site, and how to facilitate users' search for information.

You should

1. create a mockup of the home page, its layout and contents, using Word or any design or web authoring tool you have access to.
2. provide a rationale of up to 500 words on the design aims and decisions that are realized in the home page.

You are not expected to demonstrate advanced design skills. Your mock-up really amounts to a design brief for a professional technician; it will be assessed according to usability principles, not appearance.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Awareness of all the opportunities to publish content in print and electronically
- Familiarity with the standard tools and techniques for indexing, for print and web documents
- Understanding of the special demands of electronic publishing, in relation to screen delivery, and searchability on the internet
- Full awareness of the scope of editorial project management

Journal editing task

Due: 28/04/19

Weighting: 10%

Editing of papers for Journal of Audiovisual Translation (each student would be required to edit one paper and check another student's editing of one other paper).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Awareness of all the opportunities to publish content in print and electronically
- Understanding of the special demands of electronic publishing, in relation to screen delivery, and searchability on the internet
- Full awareness of the scope of editorial project management

Online discussion

Due: 26/05/19

Weighting: 25%

This discussion focuses on ethical issues in editing and publishing. It is designed to embrace questions such as selection and withholding of sensitive information, the prepublication review process, ethical issues raised by the content of the publication and its promotion, and the responsibilities of the editor and author.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Awareness of all the opportunities to publish content in print and electronically
- Understanding of the special demands of electronic publishing, in relation to screen delivery, and searchability on the internet
- Familiarity with legal, ethical and cultural issues in publishing
- Full awareness of the scope of editorial project management

The scope of editing today

Due: 23/06/19

Weighting: 40%

Your task is to write an essay of around 2500 words on the future of editing in the 21st century. To anchor it, you should select a text that makes predictions about the future of editing and publishing in the digital age. This text must have been published in the first decade of the 21st century, or earlier. You should examine to what extent your source text's predictions have turned out to be accurate, and make predictions of your own based on evidence from current trends. Your discussion will look at general issues, but should also choose one or two specific areas of publishing, such as newspapers, magazines, trade books, education, academic publishing etc., as a focus for your comments.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Awareness of all the opportunities to publish content in print and electronically
- Familiarity with the standard tools and techniques for indexing, for print and web documents
- Understanding of the special demands of electronic publishing, in relation to screen delivery, and searchability on the internet
- Familiarity with legal, ethical and cultural issues in publishing
- Full awareness of the scope of editorial project management

Delivery and Resources

Students will require Internet access with a reliable web browser and e-mail facility, and must be able to play back recorded lectures with accompanying slides.

How to apply for a late submission of an assignment

All requests for special consideration, including extensions, must be submitted via ASK.mq.edu.au and provide suitable supporting documentation

Late Assignment Submission

- Late submissions without an extension will receive a penalty of 5% of the total mark available for the assignment per day.
- Late submission of an assignment without an extension will not be permitted after marks have been released to the rest of the class.
- Extensions will only be given in special circumstances, and can be requested by completing the Special Consideration request at ask.mq.edu.au and providing the requisite supporting documentation.
- For more information on Special Consideration, see the university website <https://students.mq.edu.au/study/my-study-program/special-consideration>

- Assignments submitted after the deadline, regardless of the reason, will be marked and returned at a date determined by the unit convenor.
- Extensions cannot continue beyond the start of the following semester, and students should be aware that long extensions may impact graduation dates.
