Unit description
This unit examines the imaginative content and literary style of key early texts in the English literary tradition. It focuses on the use of two different modes – the dream vision and the reasoned debate – to create imaginary worlds and to present logical argument. Students are encouraged to analyse the multiple levels of meaning in a wide range of early texts from the Anglo-Saxon period to Chaucer and his contemporaries. We consider the impact on meaning of both the medieval context of composition and also the later critical reception of individual works. Discussion includes not only the content and narrative techniques of these texts but also their rhetorical and aesthetic qualities, wit, and cross-cultural intelligibility.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://students.mq.edu.au/important-dates

Learning Outcomes

1. A. Demonstrated critical reading habits, interpretive analysis, research, and effective communication, with particular application to the field of English studies

2. B. Undertake accomplished close reading of a range of textual representations of dream-processes in medieval literature, and understand the importance of close reading for building evidence in analytical arguments

3. C. Understand the relationship between the primary texts and their historical, intertextual, and ideological contexts
4. D. Engage in confident and appropriate application of relevant theoretical concepts and interpretative frameworks to the primary texts studied, and understand the intellectual, ethical, and ideological implications of applying these concepts and frameworks.

5. E. Ability to engage in informed critical discussion on unit content with peers and teachers, accommodate others’ points of view, and to argue a critical position.

6. F. Ability to apply understanding of narrative techniques to literary study and beyond to other situations.

Graduate Capabilities

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- E. Ability to engage in informed critical discussion on unit content with peers and teachers, accommodate others’ points of view, and to argue a critical position
- F. Ability to apply understanding of narrative techniques to literary study and beyond to Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

- E. Ability to engage in informed critical discussion on unit content with peers and teachers, accommodate others’ points of view, and to argue a critical position
- F. Ability to apply understanding of narrative techniques to literary study and beyond to Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- E. Ability to engage in informed critical discussion on unit content with peers and teachers, accommodate others’ points of view, and to argue a critical position
- F. Ability to apply understanding of narrative techniques to literary study and beyond to other situations

Commitment to Continuous Learning
Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes
• E. Ability to engage in informed critical discussion on unit content with peers and teachers, accommodate others’ points of view, and to argue a critical position
• F. Ability to apply understanding of narrative techniques to literary study and beyond to other situations

Assessment task
• Tutorial participation

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills
Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes
• A. Demonstrated critical reading habits, interpretive analysis, research, and effective communication, with particular application to the field of English studies
• B. Undertake accomplished close reading of a range of textual representations of dream-processes in medieval literature, and understand the importance of close reading for building evidence in analytical arguments
