Unit description

Biological organisms are inherently variable, which means that practicing biologists need a solid grasp of how to design and implement experiments, perform statistical analyses on the resulting data, and correctly interpret the results of statistical tests. This unit provides a foundation in the principles of experimental design and data analysis for biology. The unit is taught by biology staff and draws on research carried out in the Department of Biological Sciences. Students also learn the overall process of asking and answering questions in biology. Students learn a range of common data analysis techniques, and how to interpret the outcomes of these analyses. There is a strong emphasis on critically evaluating biological studies and identifying sound conclusions and not-so-sound conclusions. This unit is strongly recommended for students planning a career in biology or environmental science.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Develop testable hypotheses from general scientific questions

ULO2: Design an unconfounded experiment to test a given scientific hypothesis

ULO3: Choose an appropriate statistical test to analyse experimental data

ULO4: Carry out and correctly interpret a range of commonly used statistical tests using the computer package R

ULO5: Clearly present outcomes of statistical analyses using figures, tables and text

ULO6: Critically evaluate other studies with respect to experimental design and the application and interpretation of statistics

Assessment Tasks

Coronavirus (COVID-19) Update

Assessment details are no longer provided here as a result of changes due to the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

Students should consult iLearn for revised unit information.

Find out more about the Coronavirus \(COVID-19\) and potential impacts on staff and students

General Assessment Information

All assessments must be undertaken independently and written in your own words. You will be required to submit your Experiment Report to Turnitin to check for plagiarism. Practical participation is a hurdle for this unit. To pass, you must participate in a minimum of 9 of 13 weekly practicals.
