APPL7400 (Advanced Topics in Language for Specific Purposes)

Unit description

This unit provides an introduction to major issues in language for specific purposes. The focus is on analysis of the socio-cultural contexts associated with business, professional and vocational areas and the specific characteristics of both oral and written text types associated with them. Such information is essential in evaluating appropriate materials and assessment tasks for teaching language for specific purposes. We consider the implications of globalisation for communication, the impact of new technologies and new approaches to learning and teaching language. Students will have the opportunity to specialise in particular vocational or professional areas in assignments.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Explain the main historical trends in LSP since the 1960s and how they have impacted LSP teaching and learning

ULO2: Apply appropriate theoretical understandings to practical issues related to teaching LSP

ULO3: Apply principles of needs analysis and discourse analysis to analyzing specific language learning contexts and specific contexts of language use.

ULO4: Apply an understanding of the features of oral and written texts associated with particular professions and business and vocational contexts to the selection and development of appropriate curricula, materials and assessment practices in the context of teaching LSP

ULO5: Reflect on an LSP context of interest and evaluate the merits of different approaches to researching that site.
