Unit description

This unit explores linguistic pragmatics, with a focus on intercultural communication and prepares students to conduct research in pragmatics. The unit equips participants with the tools for analysis of how meaning is constructed in context through spoken and written language. The content includes speech act theory; politeness and face; the co-operative principle and implicature; relevance theory; cultural scripts; and metaphor. There is an emphasis on how communication operates in different cultural contexts and on accessing and interpreting current research. Communication in social and institutional contexts, language in the media, and practical implications for learning and teaching and interpreting and translating are explored.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: 1 Identify examples of successful and unsuccessful cross-cultural communication and use pragmatic theories to explain the reasons.

ULO2: 2 Analyse examples of authentic discourse using speech act theory, politeness theory and theories of implicature.

ULO3: 3 Make judgements about the types of analysis that are most suitable for researching particular types of discourse.

ULO4: 4 Evaluate current research in pragmatics in an area of personal or professional interest.

ULO5: 5. Plan research in an area of personal or professional interest.
