Unit description
This unit introduces students to a selection of texts produced during the “long” nineteenth century in Britain, covering a period from the French Revolution of 1789 to the first decade of the twentieth century. The novels and poems you will study helped to create new visions of the human, creating and responding to changing worldviews about many facets of social life: political, scientific and artistic. Major figures such as Jane Austen, William Wordsworth, Emily Bronte, Christina Rossetti and George Eliot will be studied alongside lesser-known innovators such as Charlotte Smith, John Clare and Augusta Webster. The unit will explore how these writers used literature to respond to the most challenging and divisive issues of their time in a way that still speaks to modern readers and created the foundation of the world we live in today.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Delivery and Resources

For this unit, students will be expected to listen to a 1 hour lecture each week of session (weeks 1 to 12, inclusive). Students will also be expected to participate in online forum discussions (acting in lieu of face-to-face tutorials, which have been suspended for S2, 2020 due to ongoing concerns about Coronavirus).

A list of readings will be provided for students via iLearn. Most readings will be provided in digital format via Leganto.

In addition to the digitised reading, students will be asked to source copies of the following texts:

Emily Bronte, Wuthering Heights (Penguin Classics)

Charles Dickens, Great Expectations (Penguin Classics)

Thomas Hardy, The Return of the Native (Oxford World’s Classics)

For each of these texts, the editions are recommended only and you may use other editions if you wish.
