Unit description

In this unit students develop their creative writing practice across one or more writing genres, drafting new creative work in the genres of the short story, novel, or poetry. Students extend their skills both in the crafting and the analysis of the craft of writing, and practice close reading skills. New approaches to craft and technique or genre are explored, and students reflect upon and interrogate their writing and writing process. Analysis and evaluation of published creative works and contemporary narrative studies inform and enlarge students' writing skills and technical vocabularies. At the end of the unit students will have drafted, workshoped and written a new creative work in their chosen genre.

Please check here for updated delivery information: https://ask.mq.edu.au/account/pub/display/unit_status

Classes commence Week 1.

Our flipped classroom

This unit uses a mode of learning and teaching called the flipped classroom. Students arrive prepared for the seminar, having listened to the pre-recorded lecture and undertaken the readings and other preparation beforehand. All the lectures are accessed through ECHO and you are required to listen to these before the relevant class. Internal students will fully engage with the unit via the iLearn site, and contribute to a set number of online discussions in groups with external students, in addition to face-to-face seminar attendance.

You will read other students' creative writing for workshop before the workshop. Reading and preparing feedback notes is part of your appraisal and analysis work. Discussions in class extend on these feedback notes. You might (of course) come up with new understandings, responses, ideas during the workshop discussions.

Seminar structure

Weekly seminars will include 6 weeks of discussion and quizzes that focus on the readings, topics, themes and lectures; and six weeks of workshop intensive classes, complemented with writing exercises.

Resources

Most of the essential and recommended readings for this unit are available via the unit's Leganto link. Some books will need to be borrowed or purchased. Your lecturer recommends that you source these from Australian suppliers in order to support your peers (i.e. Australian writers, booksellers and publishers). Bootopia.com; independent booksellers such as Gleebooks; your local library; and Australian re-sellers of used books such as through Abebooks.com are all excellent supply sources.

Violent and Sexually Violent Content in creative writing workshop and assessment submissions

Material that might seriously disturb or distress other students or the teacher is not suitable for the University writing workshop environment. The aim of our workshops is to provide a safe place for students to share their work in progress. We are all required to read and discuss work that is presented in the workshop, and so for this reason you must consider the impact on others if you are planning to write potentially distressing content.

Students presenting work that includes detailed descriptions of violence including sexual violence, especially material that involves rape, or harm to animals must contact the Unit Convenor before submitting the work for workshop or as work for assessment. They must discuss their work with the convenor at least 2 weeks before the scheduled workshop or assessment due date. Permission may be withheld, in which case the student will be required to submit a new work by the due date.

You should also be aware of the Student Code of Conduct and in particular clauses in the sections Safety and Breach of Rights http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/student_conduct/conduct.html
