Unit description
Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander populations have been sharing knowledge for over 65,000 years. This unit explores many of these older ways of teaching and learning and inter-generational knowledge transmission. This unit also examines how Western education practices and policies have impacted Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people since colonisation. Racism and the exclusion of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people from various public-school systems is investigated.

General Assessment Information

Tutorial Activities – 30%

Each week you will be expected to contribute to the online learning of the cohort. This contribution will help in building your own understanding of the content as well as bringing new and creative approaches to weekly topics from which all students will benefit. Marks will be aggregated each week (results to be available at the end of session) will be awarded on the following three criteria:

1) At least one contribution to the weekly forum (a response the weekly questions, an interesting and related link to a website, video, audio recording, or other relevant material, or posing a question of your own);

2) A response to another student’s post. (i.e. answering a question; providing links to relevant material that makes a contribution to the post / discussion; or posing a question in response);

3) The quality of your contribution. Posts and comments should demonstrate a critical engagement with and understanding of the relevant readings and lecture materials.

- Assessment Task Quiz – 30%

The quiz is multiple choice. The content will be based on all the material delivered via iLearn during the first five weeks of semester. You will have one week (30th March – 5th April) in which to access and complete the quiz. The quiz will not be available outside of these dates.

Major Essay – 40%

You will complete a 2500-word essay which responds to a choice of questions. The aim of the major essay is to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of the content of the history of Indigenous education in Australia. You will be required to produce an essay that demonstrates critical thinking and high-level written communication skills. Potential questions will be made available on iLearn.
Referencing

Referencing is an essential component of academic writing or presentation since it enables the reader to follow up the source of ideas and information presented in your work, and to examine the interpretation you place on the material discovered in your research. Reliable referencing clearly indicates where you have drawn your own conclusions from the evidence presented. Importantly, much of the material you will use is covered by copyright which means that you must acknowledge any source of information, including books, journals, newsprint, images and the internet. It is obligatory for students to reference all sources used in their written work including electronic material. Students should consult the University library website for a detailed explanation and examples of how to reference electronic material correctly.

Accurate Harvard Referencing is required in your major essay. A guide to Harvard referencing is available at: https://libguides.mq.edu.au/referencing/Harvard

Referencing in online tutorial discussions is required however, given the conversational character of the forum, this may take the form of simply posting relevant (hyper-)links or providing the author’s name and title of publication. No reference list is required.

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Academic Integrity

All assessment tasks must adhere to Macquarie University’s policy on academic integrity.

Protocols for Indigenous Studies

In Australia there are two distinct Indigenous peoples: Aboriginal people and Torres Strait Islander people.

When writing about Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders do not use the acronym ‘ATSI’, write in full. Capital letters should always be used when referring to Aboriginal peoples and or Torres Strait Islander peoples.

While Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander are acceptable terms to use, it should be recognised that these are collective terms and often used improperly to impose a single identity on the many different communities.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people generally prefer to be known by the language/cultural groups or communities, to which they belong, that is, own names rather than terms such 'the Aboriginals' or 'the Islanders'. For example, Aboriginal people in the area surrounding Macquarie University may refer to themselves as Dharug. It is important that you always check the correct name or terms to use for people in the area/region.

The use of incorrect, inappropriate or dated terminology is to be avoided as it can give offence. Many historical terms or those in common usage some years ago are now not acceptable, including terms such as 'aborigine' 'native', 'savage' and 'primitive'. Similarly, do not use the terms 'half-caste', 'part-Aborigine/Aboriginal' or any reference to skin colour or physical features, as they do not signify that a person is Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander and may cause offence. When quoting from academic or other sources that uses inappropriate, dated terminology or racists language, use (sic) directly after the inappropriate term of phrase, thus calling attention to the fact that it has been sourced from the original and that you understand it to be outdated, inappropriate or problematic in the contemporary context.
