Unit description

To be successful, organisations must develop value-creating marketing strategies and implement them. The core determinant of marketing strategy is the identification of promising target markets and the development of differential competitive advantage and clear positioning. Most importantly, marketing leaders must focus on developing marketing as a strategic partner within organisations.

This unit develops students' knowledge of the process of designing competitive marketing strategies. It focuses on how to identify and develop higher-order objectives and the role of organisational factors such as culture, strategic orientation and important aspects of market analysis in designing competitive marketing strategies.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Analyse and evaluate theories and concepts related to marketing strategy.

ULO2: Identify and evaluate the impact of organisational factors and market forces on designing marketing strategy.

ULO3: Develop higher-order objectives relevant to marketing strategies.

ULO4: Design competitive marketing strategies.
