Unit description

In our consumer society, we are what we buy. When you purchase organic coffee, fast-fashion clothes or an adventure trip abroad, it is about your identity, status and belonging. Consumer choices are also shaped by social conventions, cultural meanings and workings of capitalism. This unit examines everyday consumption in the past and the present, from a global and intersectional perspective and through the lens of power and justice. The aim is to address urgent questions of our time such as: In what ways can we use consumer power to challenge gender, racial and other inequalities? What new opportunities and problems emerge in the age of digital consumption? How can we balance environmental protection and the pleasure of consuming stuff? This unit is suitable for a wide range of students, including those interested in society and culture, gender studies, social justice, media and economy.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Use theories and concepts to analyse everyday consumption sociologically.

ULO2: Explain how individual beliefs and actions are intertwined with social, cultural, historical and economic forces.

ULO3: Communicate ideas through effective listening and speaking, constructive debates with peers and personal reflection.

ULO4: Write coherently, logically and succinctly, while following appropriate academic and stylistic conventions.

ULO5: Use research and communication skills to make a persuasive argument and inspire others.

Assessment Tasks

Coronavirus (COVID-19) Update

Assessment details are no longer provided here as a result of changes due to the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

Students should consult iLearn for revised unit information.

Delivery and Resources

Coronavirus (COVID-19) Update

Any references to on-campus delivery below may no longer be relevant due to COVID-19.

Please check here for updated delivery information: https://ask.mq.edu.au/account/pub/display/unit\_status

The iLearn site has required unit materials, recommended readings, and other resources for students. For this reason, students need a computer and Internet access to complete the unit satisfactorily.
