Unit description
In this unit, students explore the new genres, styles, techniques, platforms and audiences generated by contemporary digital writing. Basic techniques in authoring narrative and poetry-based interactive hypertext works are introduced, employing open source software such as Twine. Students will explore the technological and aesthetic issues relating to the writing and production of short digital texts, with an emphasis on fiction, poetry and mixed genre works such as narrative-based games. Web-based and other electronic media are engaged with by students to develop skills that advance digital literacy. At the end of the unit students will have written and produced a minor and a major digital creative work in two different technologies.

Important Academic Dates
