| Unit description Research is fundamental to creating innovative writing and constructing a believable storyworld: the shared universe within which settings, characters, and events unfold in a narrative. This unit focuses on developing the different types of research skills needed to create believable characters and vivid settings, and to use historical and contemporary events to ignite the imagination. Students learn how to engage in research that provides: relevant factual information for their topic; background material to assist with world-building; up-to-date scholarship on their genre of writing to gain a critical understanding of how their field has developed, and to identify current trends. Skills learned apply to different genres of writing such as historical or contemporary fiction, fantasy or futuristic writing, romance, crime, local or family history, and biography. |

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- ULO1: Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of how creative writers incorporate different types of research into different forms and genres of writing.
- ULO2: Identify and analyse written works that engage with relevant historical, social, cultural, global and ethical issues within particular genres of writing.
- ULO3: Apply specialised research skills and creative language skills to produce a narrative or other textual forms of creative writing.
- ULO4: Create a major written work that incorporates specialised knowledge and understanding of a specific period of history, or that explores current issues within contemporary, futuristic or fantasy writing.

ULO5: Analyse and appraise the work of others in writing communities.
