Unit description

This unit shows how colonialism, imperialism, post-colonialism and neo-colonialism affect identity. The unit explores the tensions between Third and First World feminists. This leads us to talk about imperial feminists and transnational feminists' responses to their agendas. The issue of identity is also discussed in relation to Muslim women through a focus on veiling, unveiling and Islamic feminism. The unit's discussion of the North-South divide throws light on the relations between the identities of citizens of poor and wealthy countries. The course shows how religion, race, borders, Orientalism, imperialism and globalization affect gender relations and one's sense of self.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Group Presentation	20%	No	Different due dates
Self-Reflection	35%	No	Sunday of Week 6
Research Essay	45%	No	Sunday of Week 13

Group Presentation

Assessment Type ¹: Presentation

Indicative Time on Task ²: 26 hours

Due: Different due dates

Weighting: 20%

This task consists of small group presentations on the readings the class has done. In Week 1 tutorial, each student will be assigned a group with which to prepare a presentation on the weekly readings. Each week, a different team of 2-3 students presents a critical analysis of the compulsory and/or recommended readings. The presentation should open up class discussion.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the complexity of colonialism, post-colonialism and neo-colonialism.
- Demonstrate an understanding of imperial and transnational feminisms.
- Demonstrate an ability to examine the power dynamics that govern the relationships between the Global South and North.
- Demonstrate a realistic understanding of the lives of women in developing countries.
- Analyse critically a variety of texts (documentaries, novels, songs, media articles, news clips) and data sources concerning gender within their historical, social, geopolitical and theoretical contexts.
- Examine the relationship between forms of knowledge and forms of everyday living.

Self-Reflection

Assessment Type ¹: Reflective Writing

Indicative Time on Task ²: 24 hours

Due: Sunday of Week 6

Weighting: 35%

In this assessment task, students explore personal experiences, feelings and events and link them to the theories and concepts learnt through the unit materials. The Personal Reflection is an opportunity to reconsider events which students lived, watched, read or heard about. The sources of these experiences can be students' personal lives, books or popular culture artefacts (rap songs, TV shows, films, ads, comics, cartoons, the news, blogs, Vlogs, etc).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the complexity of colonialism, post-colonialism and neo-colonialism.
- Demonstrate an understanding of imperial and transnational feminisms.
- Demonstrate an ability to examine the power dynamics that govern the relationships between the Global South and North.
- Demonstrate a realistic understanding of the lives of women in developing countries.

- Analyse critically a variety of texts (documentaries, novels, songs, media articles, news clips) and data sources concerning gender within their historical, social, geopolitical and theoretical contexts.
- Examine the relationship between forms of knowledge and forms of everyday living.

Research Essay

Assessment Type ¹: Essay

Indicative Time on Task ²: 35 hours

Due: Sunday of Week 13

Weighting: 45%

Research and compose a 2000 word essay in response to one of the questions provided.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the complexity of colonialism, post-colonialism and neo-colonialism.
- Demonstrate an understanding of imperial and transnational feminisms.
- Demonstrate an ability to examine the power dynamics that govern the relationships between the Global South and North.
- Demonstrate a realistic understanding of the lives of women in developing countries.
- Analyse critically a variety of texts (documentaries, novels, songs, media articles, news clips) and data sources concerning gender within their historical, social, geopolitical and theoretical contexts.
- Examine the relationship between forms of knowledge and forms of everyday living.
