Unit description

This unit will offer students an understanding of the key role social media now plays in media practice and culture. The ways in which social media impact and influence public debate will be explored. The unit will involve students in integrating existing and emerging online platforms and technologies into media practice. Students will analyse the way media organisations, corporations and individuals utilise social media to produce narratives and participate in public discourse. They will also examine the way social and online media have opened up new possibilities for building audiences and communities using a wide variety of social media platform and practices.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: synthesize a range of theories related to digital media, visual studies and social media studies.

ULO2: apply disciplinary theories to evaluate the various uses of visual framing and networked images in social media.

ULO3: evaluate the ontological, epistemological and ethical differences between how networked computers, humans, and institutions experience perception, knowledge and action.

ULO4: deploy the walk-through method to illustrate and unpack the visible and invisible governing structures of a social media platform, application, or practice.

ULO5: analyse and apply the theme, question, object, lens, method, presentation approach to assessing case studies in global social media culture.

General Assessment Information

Late Submission: Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Platform Walkthrough	50%	No	Friday April 9 by 23:59 PM
Comparative Case Analysis	50%	No	Tuesday May 25 by 23:59 PM

Platform Walkthrough

Assessment Type ¹: Project

Indicative Time on Task ²: 49 hours

Due: Friday April 9 by 23:59 PM

Weighting: 50%

For this exercise, students are required to consider the question, “How do social media platforms deploy visibility to signal their ideological biases to users?” For this exercise, you should focus on ONE social media platform of your choosing, and ONE ideological bias of interest (e.g. safety, usefulness, popularity, friendship, a ‘good’ experience, etc. As we discussed in class, platform visibility involves what (or whom) seem to receive visual emphasis, as well as what (or whom) seems hidden, obscured, or overlooked.

Refer to iLearn for further information.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- synthesize a range of theories related to digital media, visual studies and social media studies.

- apply disciplinary theories to evaluate the various uses of visual framing and networked images in social media.
- evaluate the ontological, epistemological and ethical differences between how networked computers, humans, and institutions experience perception, knowledge and action.
- deploy the walk-through method to illustrate and unpack the visible and invisible governing structures of a social media platform, application, or practice.
- analyse and apply the theme, question, object, lens, method, presentation approach to assessing case studies in global social media culture.

Comparative Case Analysis

Assessment Type ¹: Qualitative analysis task

Indicative Time on Task ²: 49 hours

Due: Tuesday May 25 by 23:59 PM

Weighting: 50%

This assessment has been designed to test the “theme, question, lens, method, presentation” approach to social media studies. Using a traditional or creative format, students will be asked to compare two social media related events, phenomena, news developments, or user experiences.

Refer to iLearn for further information.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- synthesize a range of theories related to digital media, visual studies and social media studies.
- apply disciplinary theories to evaluate the various uses of visual framing and networked images in social media.
- evaluate the ontological, epistemological and ethical differences between how networked computers, humans, and institutions experience perception, knowledge and action.
- deploy the walk-through method to illustrate and unpack the visible and invisible governing structures of a social media platform, application, or practice.
- analyse and apply the theme, question, object, lens, method, presentation approach to assessing case studies in global social media culture.

- the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment

- the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

² Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

CLASS DESCRIPTION: SEEING SOCIAL MEDIA

This is a class devoted to social media culture: the personal, social, political and economic ramifications of living in a time dominated by social media. As you might expect from our class title, we will spend a substantial amount of time thinking about life online in terms of networked images.

This can put us in contentious territory. If it is true that the internet is a trash fire, networked images provide a fair amount of its garbage, and most of its gasoline. Be they 'stupid' reaction GIFs, 'narcissistic' selfies, 'confusing' memes, 'serious' displays of evidence (as in photographed protests) or 'horrifying' displays of depravity (as in live-streamed executions), networked images tend to figure heavily into debates about what social media 'has done' to notions of identity, community, creativity, privacy, news, ethics, and pleasure around the world.

In this class, we will consider some of these debates, but we will also consider how the hyper-visibility of digital images contrasts with the opaqueness and transparency of platforms, apps, and technologies. This matters, because at the platform level, social media includes nearly every site or app we access each day. Everyone knows social networking services like Facebook, YouTube, Instagram and Snapchat "count" as social media. But we should also be thinking in terms of knowledge-building platforms like Wikipedia, shopping platforms like Amazon, travel platforms like TripAdvisor, streaming platforms like Spotify, Netflix, and Twitch, fitness platforms like FitBit, plagiarism detection platforms like Turnitin, gaming platforms like Xbox Live, baby monitoring platforms....the list goes on.

We should also be aware that even platforms that aren't explicitly social can be driven by technologies that create socially networked effects. We've probably all heard of algorithmic manipulation on social networking sites like Facebook with "personally designed news feeds," but the most notorious company deploying algorithmic "recipes" to sort, rank and target its users is actually Google. Companies like Uber that gather our geographical data are also key players in the tracing and tracking game. Even if you never go online at all, your phone is already designed to work like a drone, collecting and reporting your movement patterns back to the companies that built them (and sometimes to the governments where they are located.)

The class will take up these issues, framing them in terms of what can be seen, known, enforced, and resisted in social media culture. Throughout, we'll continue to return to the question: What are the best ways to learn, advocate, create, love and protect ourselves in social media culture, when both visibility and invisibility offer promise and threat?
