Session 2 Learning and Teaching Update

The decision has been made to conduct study online for the remainder of Session 2 for all units WITHOUT mandatory on-campus learning activities. Exams for Session 2 will also be online where possible to do so.

This is due to the extension of the lockdown orders and to provide certainty around arrangements for the remainder of Session 2. We hope to return to campus beyond Session 2 as soon as it is safe and appropriate to do so.

Some classes/teaching activities cannot be moved online and must be taught on campus. You should already know if you are in one of these classes/teaching activities and your unit convenor will provide you with more information via iLearn. If you want to confirm, see the list of units with mandatory on-campus classes/teaching activities.

Visit the MQ COVID-19 information page for more detail.

Unit description
Modern organisations are characterized by increasingly higher levels of uncertainty, complexity and diversity. In this context, power and politics play a significant role in all decision-making. Being 'savvy' about the presence and character of organisational politics and having the capabilities and 'nous' to be able to influence people in this context is a crucial capability for managers at all levels. This is particularly the case for entry into senior leadership positions. Areas covered in this unit that address these issues, include: conceptualising and measuring power and politics; appreciating the nature and interplay between 'positive' and 'negative' politics; analysing and developing strategies for influencing stakeholders; building coalitions, and effectively establishing, integrating and influencing steering committees and working teams; and acting with integrity and purpose in 'playing politics'.
