Unit description
What is history and how do historians practice their craft? What is the history of history and does it inform issues and debates in contemporary society? What skills does it teach us? Through the prism of historical literacy this unit explores the meanings, structures, methodologies and interpretive frames of historical thinking as well as the relationship between history and the public sphere. Drawing on knowledge and content from across the major students work individually and collectively on a set of big theoretical questions about history, historical practice and memory. The unit enables students to understand and articulate how their historical literacy is an important attribute of their employability.. All enrolment queries should be directed to Open Universities Australia (OUA): see www.open.edu.au

Individual thesis

Assessment Type [1]: Essay
Indicative Time on Task [2]: 40 hours
Due: Monday 19 April, midnight
Weighting: 40%

Students will compose an extended written response to a debate/presentation topic. This will be a critical piece of writing, setting out an argument in depth and including three historical/historiographical examples to illustrate. This will then form the basis of a group debate presentation later in the semester.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Reflect on and articulate discipline specific skills and literacy.
- Integrate and apply discipline specific knowledge to contemporary and historical problems
- Think critically and analytically
- Communicate effectively in written, oral and interpersonal forms
- Synthesise and integrate knowledge from multiple topic areas

Debate/Online Presention

Assessment Type [1]: Debate
Indicative Time on Task [2]: 30 hours
Due: Weeks 11 and 12
Weighting: 30%

Students will deliver individual online presentations based on their individual debate theses. These are to be 6-8 minutes in length.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Integrate and apply discipline specific knowledge to contemporary and historical problems
- Think critically and analytically
- Communicate effectively in written, oral and interpersonal forms

Written reflection

Assessment Type [1]: Reflective Writing
Indicative Time on Task [2]: 20 hours
Due: Friday, 4 June, midnight
Weighting: 20%

Students will write a short, 800 word, reflection on historical understanding, drawing on the key themes of the unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Reflect on and articulate discipline specific skills and literacy.

- Think critically and analytically
