Unit description
This unit examines the evolutionary, cultural, socio-economic, and political dimensions of disease and health. Notions of disease causality and healing practices vary across societies, and an understanding of the dynamics of these factors is crucial not only for theoretical advancement, but also for applied intervention in the field of international public health. In addition to surveying the key conceptual developments in medical anthropology, we look at how anthropological perspectives and methods can be used in applied settings. We also explore issues in critical medical anthropology, such as: How do global inequalities and violence affect health in developing countries? What larger social transformations accompany the rise of biomedicine, including recent biomedical technologies? These topics explore various dimensions through which medical anthropology can analyse and shape global health policies and interventions, preparing students to work in health policy and applied research.

Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Demonstrate command of anthropological knowledge and theories relevant to the subdiscipline of medical anthropology and the broader study of illness and healing practices in their social and cultural contexts.

ULO2: Interview, analyse, and represent the illness experience of another person, emphasizing the integrative factors (culture, politics, social structure, etc.) influencing their condition.

ULO3: Apply the theories and concepts of medical anthropology to critically evaluate one’s own culture and determinants of illness and health.

ULO4: Demonstrate an understanding of how healing systems often cut across categories of religion, medicine, and social organization.

ULO5: Analyse how illness and health (and normality) are constructed within particular social, cultural, political, and environmental contexts.

ULO6: Identify how inequality, social hierarchy, and structural violence generate unequal and often unique health determinants in the global and transnational context.

General Assessment Information

Delivery and Resources
The draft 2021 timetable has scheduled this seminar to meet on Wednesdays from 2-4pm in the 109 Tutorial Room, 9 Wallys Walk. Due to Covid-19 restrictions, seminars will be temporarily conducted as 'zoom' meetings. Students will be informed if and when on-campus seminars recommence. When this occurs, please check the timetable to confirm this location at https://timetables.mq.edu.au/2021/.

Your active participation is essential to your learning experience. The weekly 2-hour seminars (either through zoom or on-campus) will not be recorded, so you must plan to attend in person, and participation is a mandatory component of your final mark in the unit. Students are expected to be active participants and demonstrate that they have actively engaged the readings and material presented. Each student are expected to lead the seminar discussion one week with the unit convenor.

Detailed information about seminar topics, resources, and assessment tasks can all be found on iLearn.

The unit convenor will use the first half of each seminar to introduce concepts, provide background information or examples, or offer an overview of the key issues under discussion. The second half of the seminar will be devoted to discussing the issues and readings as well as your progress on the research essay. All required readings will be available electronically through iLearn.

Unit Schedule
A full outline of weekly seminar topics is available on iLearn.
